UNMASKS PEACE PLOTS

SECRET AIDS TO GERMANY

Traitors In and Out of Congress Should Be Crushed to Earth.

RUSSIA GAINING STRENGTH

Elihu Root and his colleagues of the special mission to Russia were formally welcomed by the city and the citizens of New York yesterday, and welcomed, in the words of Charles E. Hughes, as a mission which had begun as a mission to Russia and ended as a mission to the United States.

After telling in the afternoon of the great difficulties confronting the Russian people, their marvelous progress in unifying and organizing their new polity under the most unfavorable circumstances, and the admirable qualities which they were displaying in the transition period, Mr. Root turned last night in his speech at the Union League Club, following a reception given by that body to the commission, to the danger of pro-German propaganda in America.

"I feel," he said, "that there are still some Americans who do not quite understand why we are fighting. If they did, these pro-German traitors who are selling our country, who are endeavoring by opposition and obstruction in Congress and out of Congress to make what America does in preparation for the war so ineffective that when our young men go to the firing line they will meet defeat—if the people all understood why it is that we are going into this war they would rise and crush these traitors down to earth.

"Should Be Shot at Sunrise."

"There are men walking about the streets of this city tonight who ought to be taken out at sunrise tomorrow and shot for treason. They are doing their work under false pretense, they are pretending to be for the country and they are lying every day and in every word. They are covering themselves with the cloak of pretended Americanism; and if we are competent and fit for our liberty we will find them out and get at them.

"There are some newspapers published in this city every day the editors of which deserve conviction and execution for treason. And sooner or later they will get it."

And Charles Edward Russell, the patriotic Socialist who was expelled from the party after he started with the Root mission to Russia, said later: "Disloyal American that disgraces the Congress of the United States! Traitor in disguise that has taken the oath of allegiance and goes to the Senate of the United States to do the dirty work of the Kaiser! Oh, if I could have taken you by the throat and dragged you to Petrograd and put you up there in the Field of Mars on a Sunday afternoon and let you see the result of your work! For then you would have seen those miserable, fawning, slimy creatures that take the dirty money of Germany—some of them, I am ashamed to tell you of it, some of them with American passports in their pockets.

"You would have seen them, disloyal Senator, going from crowd to crowd upon that field and repeating your words of treason, quoting what you say in the Senate of the United States when you introduce a resolution demanding that the Allies state their terms. Within three weeks those words will be repeated by the agents of Germany; when you introduce a resolution in Congress looking toward a peace conference, within three weeks those words will be repeated upon the field of Mars.

Work of the Traitorous Senator.

"These agents will say:

"'We have always told you that the people of the United States were not in this war; we have always assured you that this war was made by the Government of the United States, but not by the people; we have always told you that the Government of the United States is merely a Government of capitalists, that it is merely a Government of munition makers; that this war was created by the American munition makers for their protection, and here is the proof. This Senator of the United States has said this in the Senate; he has appealed for peace, he has declared he represents the people of the United States; it is the voice of the people, then, not alone the voice of the Senator.'

"That, disloyal Senator, is the result of your work, and every word that you utter in the Senate of the United States in behalf of peace or in behalf of treason, every one of them is a poisoned dag-

Mr. Root's Verdict on Russia's Future; "Freedom's Sure Foundation" in Her People

From Elihu Root's speech yesterday at the Chamber of Commerce.

They [the Russians] have self-control equaled in few countries of the world. They have consistency of purpose; they have a most kindly and ingrained respect—not only respect—regard for the rights of others. They will not willingly do an injustice to any one, and that sense of justice carries with it a broad character. They have a noble idealism which is developed and exhibited in the minds that are enlarged by education, they have a strong sense of the mission of liberty in the world, and they have an extraordinary capacity for concerted action.

If their character is unequal to the task, all the aid of all the great countries in the world cannot give them their freedom. Freedom must find its foundation, its sure foundation, within the people themselves, and we think the Russians have that sure foundation.

ONLY ONE EXCUSED BY STATE BOARD

Other Appeals for Exemption Are Promptly and Finally Denied.

NO DISCUSSION PERMITTED

It is not going to be an easy matter for a man of draft age, who is physically fit for service, to win exemption from service in the national army. This was indicated yesterday when the New York City District Board, of which Charles E. Hughes is Chairman, handed down decisions in twenty-two cases, fifteen of which had been appealed from decisions of local boards, and seven of which were made direct to the board. The board denied the appeals in twenty-one of the cases and granted a conditional six months' exemption in the other case, which was that of a man who is employed in an important capacity in the munition industry.

The work of filling the ranks of the national army proceeded with celerity in this city yesterday. Seventy-nine boards reported that 5,946 men had been examined, of whom 1,809 were enrolled. This makes a total of 20,465 soldiers obtained in New York to date.

The courtroom on the third floor of the Federal Building, in which the Appeal Board holds its public sessions, was crowded when Chairman Hughes called the board to order at 10:30 o'clock. The board is a strictly business organization and permits no delaying tactics on the part of any one. The name of the man who appeals, his serial number, the board in whose district he lives, and his reasons for exemption, are read, and then the decision is announced. When the word "denied" or "granted" is uttered the case is at an end. No arguments, oral or written, are permitted, and, except in certain cases where exemption is sought for occupational or industrial reasons, the decision is final. In the exceptional cases referred to appeal to the President is permissible under the law.

It is understood that decisions in a large number of other cases will be handed down tomorrow, and the impression is general that the proportion of those granted to those who are denied exemption will be in the favor of the Government by a big margin. The decisions announced yesterday involved all kinds of claims, varying from that of the man who had a newly married wife to support to the man whose employment was such that the Government could not get anybody to take his place if he was sent to war. They also included the sick men who were found to be physically fit by the doctors.

William E. Hoffman appealed from the decision of Board 124, which had denied his claim for exemption on the ground that he is the sole support of a widowed mother. The papers in the case showed that the mother had two other sons who are in a position to assume her support, and the appeal was denied. Charles H. Katz was certified for service by Board 153. He appealed from the decision on the ground that his eyesight was defective and that he suffered from other disabilities. The district board affirmed the decision of the local board.

Irving Shattan appealed from the decision of Board 169, which denied his claim for exemption on the ground that he was the sole support of his wife. The appeal was denied. Samuel H. Crittenden was found fit for service by Board 129, and appealed for exemption as the sole support of his mother. It was shown that the father had deserted the mother thirteen years ago. The board ruled that the son was not the sole support of his mother, as contemplated by the law, unless it was shown that the husband was not in a position to support her. The decision of the local board was affirmed.

James F. Kehoe, appealing from Board 124, based his claim for exemption on the ground that he was the sole support of his wife. The appeal was denied. Jesse C. Gerowe, also an appellant from Local Board 124, claimed that he was the sole support of his wife. The local board had ruled that the wife could live with her parents in Binghamton while Gerowe was in the National Army. The District Board affirmed this decision.

Found No Physical Disability.

Joseph J. Heledson filed a claim with Board 124 for exemption on the ground of physical disability. The examining physicians of the board ruled that Heledson was physically fit, and the Dis-

BIG CORPORATION TO CONTROL WHEAT

PRICE-FIXING BOARD NAMED

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—The food administration prepared today to take over the entire 1917 wheat crop, if necessary, to stabilize the price of wheat throughout the year. It formed a $50,000,000 corporation, with all of the stock held by the Federal Government, to buy and sell wheat at the principal terminals.

The move was one of a series largely with the object to reduce the price of bread. Millers already have agreed to put themselves under voluntary regulations and are working out with the food administration a differential of profits. Distribution of flour by wholesalers and the baking of bread will be taken up next.

The hope of the food administration is to establish a scale of prices from the farm to the grocery store, eliminating undue profits and ending speculation. The maintenance of a standard price for wheat, its officials believe, is the first and most necessary step.

In announcing the formation of the wheat corporation, the food administration also made known the personnel of a committee which will fix the price to be paid for this year's wheat yield and the names of twelve men who will act as purchasing agents for the corporation at terminals.

The wheat corporation will be put under the Administration's grain division. Its Chairman will be Herbert C. Hoover and its President Julius Barnes, a Duluth exporter, now serving as a voluntary aid in the food administration. The price-fixing committee will be headed by President Garfield of Williams College, and will comprise twelve members, representing producers and consumers.

TAMMANY TAKES HYLAN FOR MAYOR

TRIUMPH FOR McCOOEY

C. L. Craig Practically Selected as Nominee for Controller—O'Loughlin Rebels in Kings.

Tammany Hall decided yesterday to accept County Judge John F. Hylan of Brooklyn as its candidate for Mayor this year. It will thus ratify the selection made by the Democratic Fusion Committee of 170 at its meeting on Tuesday night, as well as that of the Business Men's League. The word has gone forth from Leader Charles F. Murphy to the district leaders to take Judge Hylan and to try to win with him. There was no disguising the fact that the district leaders did not want Hylan. While the organization will be loyal to the candidate it was frankly admitted that the campaign would start with a considerable lack of enthusiasm so far as the leaders were concerned.

The selection of Judge Hylan was admitted yesterday to be a personal triumph for John H. McCooey, the Democratic leader of Brooklyn. McCooey has urged Judge Hyland's selection all along, and when it became known that the Judge would have the backing of William R. Hearst the Democratic Fusion Committee decided that it could not choose a better candidate. Murphy and his close advisers were placed in an awkward position, as some fifteen or twenty Tammany men were on the Fusion Committee and had agreed to stand by the committee's choice. Among these members are Sheriff Smith, Thomas F. McAvoy, Senator James A. Foley, and Senator Robert F. Wagner.

These Tammany members of the committee had hoped to exert enough influence with the other members to obtain the candidate they wanted. Either Sheriff Smith, William B. Ellison, or Thomas W. Churchill would have been acceptable to the Tammany crowd, but when it became known that the Hearst influence was altogether behind Judge Hylan, the trend to the Brooklyn Judge set in. Leader McCooey furnished the final incentive when he declared that Kings County might be the pivot in the election and that with a Brooklyn candidate the full Democratic strength there would be brought out.

Mr. Murphy called together the Executice Committee of the organization yesterday and after it had been finally determined to accept Judge Hylan for Mayor and Sheriff Smith for President of the Board of Aldermen, consideration of other candidates on the ticket was taken up. The committee agreed to select Frank L. Dowling as its candidate for Borough President of Manhattan and then adjourned until noon today in order to get suggestions from district leaders as to the makeup of the rest of the slate.

It was practically agreed to take Charles L. Craig as the organization's candidate for Controller. The Democratic Fusion Committee, at a meeting last night, also indorsed Mr. Craig for the office. Mr. Craig is counsel of the West End Association, which has fought the Riverside Drive improvement project, and his selection, it was understood, will mean that this subject will furnish one of the issues in the Tammany campaign. Several names are under consideration for Sheriff, those of Samuel Marx, leader of the 30th Assembly District; Peter J. Brady, Secretary of the Allied Printing Trades, and H. Walter Hubbard, leader of the 22d district, being the most prominent.

District Attorney Swann may not receive the designation for his present office, but may be designated for the Supreme Court. In this event, it was said that the designation for District Attorney might go to Alfred J. Tally, now one of Judge Swann's assistants.

McCarthy Praises Hylan.

United States Marshal Thomas D. McCarthy, who was mainly responsible for the bursting of the Ellison Mayoralty boom because of his attack upon Mr. Ellison at a meeting of the Democratic Fusion Committee, came out yesterday in the support of Judge Hylan. He said:

"It is to be earnestly hoped that the Democrats of the city will nominate Judge Hylan. We will then have a candidate for Mayor who will fuse all elements of the Democratic Party and who will gather to himself a substantial amount of independent Republican support. It cannot be said that he represents any one element of the Democratic Party. His stand on the questions that concern the people of the city are sufficiently well known to garner great

ENGLAND GIVES OUT THE POPE'S NOTE ASKING BELLIGERENTS TO MAKE PEACE; CANADIANS TAKE HILL 70, KEY TO LENS

GAINS FROM LOOS TO LENS

VICTORS' CASUALTIES LIGHT

Intense Barrage Broke Germans' Resistance—British Sprayed Them with Oil.

LONDON, Aug. 15.—With only slight casualties, Canadian troops, fighting east and south of Loos, captured today German positions on a two-mile front, including the dominating Hill 70, formidably fortified and desperately defended, which is regarded as the key of the surrounding territory. The attack drove a wedge a mile deep into the enemy's defenses. Five German counterattacks have been repulsed.

An unofficial account of the battle reports hand-to-hand fighting in the western part of Lens, which marked the southern limit of the assault.

These gains, which in some quarters are regarded as among the most important of the year, are recorded in tonight's British official communication, which reads:

This morning Canadian troops stormed German positions south and east of Loos, on a front of two miles. The formidable defenses on Hill 70, which resisted our attacks in the battle of Loos in September, 1915, and had since been improved and strengthened by every method and device known to our enemies, were carried by assault.

After storming the enemy's first line trench system on the whole of the front attacked, our troops advanced as far as the western defenses of Cité St. Auguste, penetrating the German positions to a depth of about a mile. Besides the elaborate series of trench lines and strong points forming the defenses of Hill 70, the villages of Cité Ste. Elizabeth, Cité Ste. Emilie, and Cité St. Laurent, as well as the Rasé Wood, and the western half of the Hugo Wood, are now in our possession. All our objectives were captured. Our casualties were slight.

During the day five hostile counterattacks were repulsed by our infantry or broken up by our artillery. One of these was carried out by troops of the division of Prussian Guards. The enemy's losses, both from our attack and his unsuccessful counterattacks, were heavy.

The number of prisoners captured has not yet been ascertained, but 282, including 15 officers, reached the collecting station this afternoon.

There was great activity in the air again yesterday and severe fighting took place. In the course of which nine German airplanes were brought down and five others driven out of control. Seven of our machines are missing, two of which were overtaken in a violent storm while working over the enemy's lines.

In an earlier official statement, Field Marshal Sir Douglas Haig reported that his troops had carried the German first line at all points of the attack. The statement reads:

Our troops have carried the German first lines of defense at all points and are making satisfactory progress.

Hostile raiding parties attacked our new positions last night east of Klein Zillebeke, but they were completely repulsed, leaving fourteen prisoners in our hands.

The stormy weather continues. Heavy rain again has fallen.

Hand-to-Hand Fighting in Lens.

The Associated Press correspondent at the British front in France and Belgium says:

"The British and Germans late today were in close grips in a bitter battle being waged in the western part of the city of Lens. In the first stage of their offensive the Canadians met with little opposition, but as they advanced into the environs of the mining city the Germans stiffened their defense and began to offer determined resistance.

"The attack at dawn was along a front of approximately 4,300 yards. The line which the onrushing Canadians

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, Aug. 15.—The Foreign Office tonight issued the French text of the letter from the Pope to the King of England, inclosing a copy of his appeal to the heads of the belligerent peoples. The appeal reads:

To the Leaders of the Belligerent Peoples:

Since the beginning of our Pontificate, the horrors of a terrible war let loose on Europe, we had in view above everything three things to preserve: Perfect impartiality toward all belligerents as is suitable for him who is the common Father and who loves all his children with equal affection; continually to attempt to do all the good possible and that without exception of person, without distinction of nationality or religion as is dictated to us by the universal law of charity which the Supreme Spiritual charge has confided to us with Christ; finally, as our pacific mission also requires, to omit nothing as long as it was in our power which might contribute to hasten the end of this calamity by trying to lead people and their leaders to more moderate resolution, to hasten a serene deliberation of a peace just and durable.

Whoever has followed our work during those three painful years which have just passed has been able easily to recognize that, if we have always remained faithful to our resolve of absolute impartiality and to our attitude of benevolence, we have not ceased to exhort the peoples and the belligerent brothers again to become brethren, although publicity has not been given to all that we have done to attain this very noble aim.

Toward the end of the first year of the war we addressed to the nations in conflict most lively exhortations, and more, we indicated the part to be followed to arrive at a stable and honorable peace for all. Unfortunately, our appeal was not heard and the war continued desperately for another two years with all its horrors. It became even more cruel and extended over the earth, over the sea, and in the air, and one saw desolation and death descend upon the cities without defense, upon peaceful villages and on their innocent population, and now no one can imagine how the sufferings of all would be increased and aggravated if other months or, worse still, other years are about to be added to this sanguinary triennium.

Is this civilized world to be nothing more than a field of death? And Europe, so glorious and so flourishing—is it going as if stricken by a universal madness to run the abyss and lend its hand to its own suicide?

In such a terrible situation and in the presence of a menace so serious we, who have no particular political aim, who do not listen to suggestions or to the interests of any of the belligerent parties, but are solely compelled by a sentiment of our supreme duty as the common father of the faithful, by the solicitation of our children who implore our intervention and our pacifying word, through the voice, even of humanity and of reason, we once more emit the cry of peace and we renew a pressing appeal to those who hold in their hands the destinies of nations.

But in order no longer to speak in general terms, as the circumstances had counseled us in the past, we now wish to make more concrete and practical proposals and to invite the Governments of the belligerent peoples to come to an agreement upon the following points, which seem to be a basis of a just and durable peace, leaving to them the task of analyzing and completing them.

First of all the fundamental points must be that for the material force of arms be substituted the moral force of right, from which shall arise a fair agreement by all for the simultaneous and reciprocal diminution of armament, according to the rules and guarantees to be established, in a measure necessary and sufficient for the maintenance of public order in each State. Then in the substitution for armies of the institution of arbitration with its high pacifying function, according to the rules to be laid down and the penalties to be imposed on a State which would refuse either to submit a national question to arbitration or to accept its decision.

Once the supremacy of right has thus been established, all obstacles to the means of communication of the peoples would disappear by assuring, by rules to be fixed later, the true liberty and community of the seas, which would contribute to ending the numerous causes of conflict and would also open to all new sources of prosperity and progress.

As to the damages to be repaired and as to the war expenses, we see no other means of solving the question than by submitting as a general principle complete and reciprocal condonation, which would be justified, moreover, by the immense benefit to be derived from disarmament, so much so that no one will understand the continuation of a similar carnage, solely for reasons of an economic order.

For certain cases there exist particular reasons. They would be deliberated upon with justice and equity, but these pacific agreements with the immense advantages to be derived from them are not possible without a reciprocal restitution of the territory at present occupied.

Consequently on the part of Germany there should be the complete evacuation of Belgium with the guarantee of her full political, military and economic independence toward it.

The evacuation of French territory, (also; and,) on the part of other belligerent parties similar restitution of the German colonies.

As regards the territorial questions, as for example those which have arisen between Italy and Austria and between Germany and France, there is reason to hope that in consideration of the immense advantages of a durable peace with disarmament, the parties in conflict would wish to examine them with a conciliatory disposition, taking into consideration, as we have said formerly, the aspirations of the peoples and the special interests and the general welfare of the great human society.

The same spirit of equity and justice ought to be followed in the examination of other territorial and political questions, notably those relative to Armenia and the Balkan States, and the territories making a part of the ancient kingdom of Poland, whose noble and historical traditions and sufferings, which it has endured, especially during the present war, ought to conciliate the sympathies of nations.

Such are the principal bases, whereon, we believe, the future reorganization of the peoples ought to be built. They are of a nature to render impossible the return of similar conflicts, and to prepare a solution of the economic question, so important for the future, and for the material well-being of all belligerent States.

Therefore, in presenting to you, who direct at this hour the destinies of the belligerent nations, we are animated to see them accepted and to see thus the conclusion at an early date of the terrible struggle, which more and more appears a useless massacre.

The whole world recognizes that the honor of the armies of both sides is safe. Incline your ears therefore to our prayer. Accept the fraternal invitation which we send you in the name of the Divine Redeemer, the Prince of Peace. Reflect on your very grave responsibility before God and before man.

On your decision depends the repose and the joy of innumerable families, the life of thousands of young people, in a word the happiness of a people for whom it is your absolute duty to obtain their welfare.

May the Lord inspire your decision in conformity to His very holy will. May God grant that while meriting the applause of your contemporaries you will also obtain in the future generations the splendid name of pacificators.

As for us, closely united in prayer and in penitence with all those faithful souls which sigh for peace, we implore you to light and counsel of the Divine Spirit.

AT THE VATICAN, Aug. 1. (Signed) BENEDICT.

Cardinal Gasparri's Note of Transmission.

In connection with this appeal, the Papal Secretary addressed this note to the King:

Your Majesty: The Holy Father, anxious to do everything he can in order to put an end to the conflict which for the last three years has ravaged the civilized world, has decided to submit to the leaders of the belligerent peoples concrete peace proposals exposed in a document which I have the honor to attach to this letter. May God grant that the words of his Holiness will this time produce the desired effect for the good of the whole of humanity.

The Holy See, not having diplomatic relations with the French Government or with the Governments of Italy or of the United States, I very respectfully beg your Majesty to be good enough to have handed a copy of his Holiness' appeal to the President of the French Republic, to his Majesty the King of Italy, and to the President of the United States. I also beg to add twelve other copies, which I request that your Majesty be good enough to hand to the leaders of the nations friendly to the Allies, with the exception, however, of Russia, Belgium, and Brazil, to whom the document has been sent direct.

In expressing to your Majesty my sincere thanks for this extreme kindness, I am happy to take the opportunity to offer you the homage of sentiment and very profound respect with which I have the honor to sign myself.

Your Majesty's very humble and devoted servant,

GASPARRI.

NOTE NOT IN WASHINGTON

Expected It Will Be Presented Today by the Spanish Envoy.

WILSON'S POSITION FIRM

LIKELY TO RESTATE AIMS

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—The Pope's peace note to the warring Governments will be presented formally to the United States tomorrow. Until it has been received, this Government, it was said at the State Department today, would suspend opinion and action. Unless the communication of the Pontiff differs materially in its terms from the summary in the possession of President Wilson and Secretary Lansing, there is no likelihood that this latest effort to bring about an ending of the great war will have the outcome hoped for by the Pope.

It is difficult to enumerate the reasons advanced for unfavorable action by the United States and the allied Governments on the proposal of the Pope, as they are so many and take such a wide range. Boiled down, they may be said to embrace the feeling that the Pope has merely proposed an armistice, rather than definite terms for ending the war, and that as the allied nations have already made known their aims and plan of settlement in response to the urging of President Wilson last December, it is for Germany and not for any neutral interest to make the next move.

President in War to Stay.

To those who believe that peace negotiations along the lines laid down by the Pope would mean that this great struggle of the democratic nations to preserve their democracy from the menace of Prussian autocracy had been fought in vain, one fact stands out boldly. That fact is that President Wilson has set his teeth hard in the determination to see the war through to a victorious finish. Those who know something of the President's attitude have no anxiety as to how he regards the part that the United States should play in the great conflict. It seems to be fixed in his mind that there must be no backward step on the part of America and her allies in their common effort to defeat the German Empire.

The President is represented as feeling that the United States must stay in the war until the reforms which this Government set out to help accomplish have been accomplished. It is said that he was never more determined than he is in this intention. Those who understand his determination are satisfied that he will not, cannot, agree to the terms of peace proposed by the Pope.

It goes without saying that the President will make a response to the Pope's proposal. It goes without saying, also, that it will be a courteous and sincere response that will give full value to all that the Pope has to say.

Responsibility Placed on Berlin.

No doubt is felt here that the President will agree with the proposals of the Pope that are in accord with the principles heretofore laid down by the United States and its allies. It is felt, however, that the President, after consultation with the members of the Entente, will suggest that the aims of the Governments at war with Germany have already been stated, and that progress toward peace cannot be made until Germany herself has come forward with a definite explanation of the basic terms upon which she would be willing to enter peace negotiations.

The Allies and the United States have been definite in stating their aims. It is Germany, according to the view emphasized here, that has lacked frankness and directness.

While the action of the Pope is referred to in some quarters as an international mystery, and a rather general opinion is that the Government of Austria-Hungary instigated the move, it is nevertheless accepted that the Pope acted from humanitarian motives designed to stop the bloodshed on the battlefields of Europe. The Pope's note is said to show that he felt that, regardless of the political aspects of the struggle, the time had come when, unless the slaughter and devastation ceased, the world would be virtually ruined and its progress retarded for many years.

Granting this, observers here still felt that it would be unwise to enter into peace exchanges with Germany on the Pope's terms. What he has proposed, it is held, is a resumption of the status quo ante bellum. From the Washington viewpoint, an acceptance of this situation would mean that Germany would go on as before, carrying out her preparations for ruthlessness and keeping in mind always that when the opportune moment arrived she would strike again.

Comment on Teutonic Stress.

Another important aspect of the Pope's proposal is found in the suggestion that Austria prompted the action of the Vatican because Austria is sick of the war. It is believed in quarters whose opinions are worth consideration that the course of the Pope is the outgrowth of knowledge on the part of both Germany and Austria that the struggle cannot be continued much longer and it is necessary to find some basis for ending hostilities with the least possible delay.

In these quarters the Pope's proposal, granting that it was instigated by Austria with Germany's knowledge, is looked upon as the most encouraging sign that has appeared for many a day. "We have got them on the run," was one expression used today. It is felt by some that America's military participation in the war will be marked by a series of events, each bringing the allied Governments a step nearer to the end of the Prussian autocracy.

The Pope, it is conceded today, chose the moment to make his peace proposal when the desire for peace was taking form in several of the belligerent nations, even in the British Isles, where some Laborites have shown a strong inclination to engage in peace discussions with their fellows from other countries at war. It is true that a considerable number of persons in Washington whose opinions are generally worth while hold to the view that the Pope's overture was not well-timed. Their contention applies, however, to the effect of the proposal on the Entente Governments and the Government of the United States.

Others, composing, perhaps, a larger element, feel that the Pope has at least furnished an impetus for a continuation of peace discussions that will prevent the subject from dying and may bring the world nearer actual peace.

On the whole, there is a widespread feeling in Washington that the present peace offer will not produce definite results unless Germany and her partners come forward with definite assurances of willingness to accept the terms that the Allies have already outlined. And Germany, it is confidently believed, is not yet willing to do that.

The French and Spanish Ambassadors were among the visitors at the State Department today. It is believed here that the Spanish Government will have a foremost part in making peace representations in behalf of the Vatican. Secretary Lansing said that he had not received the Pope's proposal, but he acknowledged that he had been informed unofficially of its character since Saturday.

Call Issues Irreconcilable.

Although the higher officials of the Government are inclined to be reticent, inquiry in the proper quarters of both the Administration and allied diplomatic establishments indicates that the following represents the prevailing view of the Pope's proposals:

A careful analysis of the suggested peace terms, together with a study of possible interests which may have induced Pope Benedict to approach the belligerent powers, discloses that in reality it is not, as the Pope intended it to be, a genuine way to peace, but a way to an armistice with certain conditions.

Pope Benedict has suggested a partial settlement, which would not reach the fundamental issues involved, whose elements are irreconcilable. These irreconcilable elements cannot be brought together at the present time, and can only be brought together by the declared willingness of Germany to accept the word of the Entente Powers and of the United States at its face value, and to submit to the just terms Germany's enemies will dictate.

In proposing the arbitration of such questions as Alsace-Lorraine, Italia Irredenta and Serbia, the Pope has suggested the impossible in the opinion of American officials and of Entente diplomats here.

There seemed to be a consensus of opinion that no neutral sovereign or neutral democracy would consent to challenge the Entente Powers with a peace proposal now, and it was thought in some quarters that the Vatican, feeling as did President Wilson when he formerly addressed the belligerents, pointing a way to a discussion among them of peace terms, consented to make the effort despite a possible conviction that it would not succeed.

No government, it was believed, would have the temerity now to advise the nations at war to compose their differences. Any which might do so, it was declared, would probably learn directly that the side line of this war is dangerous, and that those who do not enter it should abstain from projecting themselves into its concerns.

There was a general opinion that now more than ever the Allies needed the association and support of the United States. Some close observers of international affairs even asserted that it was within the power of America at this moment, taking advantage of the Pope's proposal, to bring the war to an end. If President Wilson should follow that course, they declared, America would be held responsible, morally and historically, for the defects of the settlement and for the inconclusive character of the peace.

Russia Opposes Plan.

Even Russian opinion, it was learned today, does not take sympathetically to the Vatican's proposal. "The Allies," it was declared in an authoritative Russian quarter, "cannot accept a peace on the basis proposed by the Pope. A peace on the basis of the status quo would not be satisfactory to Russia."

Asked if Russia, in declaring for a peace without annexations and indemnities, meant an unchanged map, this Russian authority said it did not. He said Poland must be free, being given not only the ancient Polish territory held by Russia, but also the Polish territory held by Germany and Austria. Both Russia and the Allies, he said, would insist upon this at the peace conference.

It was intimated that Russia regarded France's aspirations to recovery of Alsace-Lorraine not as lust for conquest, but as a legitimate desire to recover territory which historically belonged to her and which was taken from her by force.

Russia also is pleased by the declaration of war upon Germany and Austria-Hungary by China. Under the old Chinese régime, it was said, Russia distrusted China, but under a democratic form of government Russia welcomes China into the war as an ally and has entire faith in China's intentions. The aims of China and Russia in the Far East were declared to be identical.

The Liberal Catholic Party of Italy does not support the Vatican's peace effort, feeling that peace discussions now will mean only the delaying of the re-establishment of an enduring peace. This attitude of the Italian Liberal Catholics was indicated in a dispatch from Milan, received here today, quoting Father Merda, a priest who had just addressed the Provincial Council of Milan. He said:

"The only possible peace is a peace which will assure Europe a régime in accord with the principles of justice, and guarantee the world against the outrages and devastations of war. Peace cannot come about as the result of the will of a few persons, nor can it be brought about through weariness. Peace ideas not based upon historical reality cannot endure. Discussion of peace now only means delaying the moment when real peace can be established."

Chance to Restate Aims.

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—Conferences among Entente diplomats today crystallized into conviction the opinion here that Pope Benedict's peace move is not likely to change in any substantial degree the attitude either of the Entente or the American Government.

It is agreed that there must be a response to the Pope's proposal far more comprehensive than a mere acknowledgment of receipt. To do this without opening the field to argument which might result in developing differences among the Allies to be seized upon by the Germans is realized to be a difficult and delicate undertaking.

On the other hand, some consideration is being given to the suggestion that the Pontiff has afforded President Wilson a golden opportunity to impress again upon the American people and the world in the most convincing fashion the rectitude of his position in recommending to Congress the declaration of a state of war with Germany.

Secretary Lansing is reserving any expression of opinion until he has the official text of the Pope's message. Experience has taught him that often traps are concealed in diplomatic communications that are not visible in any abstract.

While there is no disposition to question the good faith of the Pope, it is conceivable that he might have been imposed upon by German cunning, assuming that he has been induced to take this step through the pleas of the strong Catholic elements in Austria and Bavaria.

Lansing Confers With Envoys.

Mr. Lansing talked during the day separately with Ambassador Jusserand of France and Colville Barclay, Chargé of the British Embassy, in the absence of Ambassador Spring-Rice. These talks may be regarded as preliminary to more formal exchanges expected to take place among the allied powers before answers are returned to the Vatican proposals, and it is understood they are designed to place the foreign offices in London and Paris in possession of the general views of Secretary Lansing as a basis for their own actions.

Ambassador Riano of Spain, also talked with the Secretary, who afterward indicated that he thought the Pope's message might reach him through that channel.

Damper on Senate Debate.

In anticipation of an outburst of peace talk at the Capitol, plans were made during the day by Senate leaders, both Democratic and Republican, to prevent open discussion of the subject in the Senate. They propose to force executive sessions and close the doors upon the beginning by any Senator of an address bearing on peace negotiations or the general subject of peace.

This program and other measures to deal with various pending peace resolutions and future speeches probably will be discussed with President Wilson within the next few days. An executive session of the Senate was planned late today to consider closing the doors for peace debate, but the matter went over, probably until tomorrow.

Senators of the small so-called pacifist group are expected to oppose the secret session program. The leaders, however, are prepared to base their action upon the ground that such discussions would relate to treaties, including a possible peace treaty, and, therefore, as is usual in all such matters, should be carried on behind closed doors.

If adhered to, the secret session plan would materially affect speeches planned by Senator Stone, Chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, and by Senator La Follette and others on the Wisconsin Senator's resolution proposing that this nation and the Allies make more definite announcement of possible peace terms.

Reply May Convince Socialists.

Those who expect President Wilson to make his reply to the Pope the occasion for a restatement of America's reasons for going to war, think something of the same kind may be done in London, Paris and Rome to meet Socialist unrest. It was pointed out in diplomatic quarters here that the speech of Albert Thomas in France last Sunday showed that he was in line with the French socialistic program as declared last week in Paris.

This was by no means antagonistic to the Governmental policies so far as the objects or prosecution of the war were concerned, but did seek to secure a disclosure of the ends in view, with the hope of capturing the Stockholm Conference for the cause of democracy.

POPE HIMSELF WROTE PROPOSALS TO POWERS

Dispatched them by Couriers to European Governments—They Will Be Cabled Here.

ROME, Aug. 14.—The peace proposals of Pope Benedict were written entirely in his own handwriting. The Pope consulted Cardinal Gasparri, Papal Secretary of State; Archbishop Ceretti, Assistant Papal Secretary of State, and Mgr. Tedeschini, Papal Under Secretary of State, in formulating the document. Archbishop Ceretti, who arrived recently from America, where he stopped on his journey from Australia, is now supervising translation of the communication into English.

The proposals were sent by courier to the European Governments. Arrangements were made to cable the document from England to Washington and Tokio, on account of the time which would be required to forward it to those points by courier or mail.

The Corriere d'Italia, semi-official organ of the Vatican, says that in the Court of Arbitration destined to avoid future conflicts the pontifical authority will be worthy of being represented, being a guarantee of the disinterested protection of the interests of peoples.

The Giornale d'Italia says the Papal appeal is the most impressive and the most concrete ever addressed to the belligerents, giving them the general lines on which peace negotiations may be initiated. It adds: "The explicit terms in which the note is worded lead to the supposition that the intentions of the two belligerent groups are not in absolute conflict with the ideas and hopes of the Pope."

The Tribuna expresses the opinion that the peace proposals were made on independent initiative and that the Entente Powers will not feel in any way constrained to accept them, although they will receive them with the deference due the sender.

The Idea Nazionale says it will abstain for the present from expressing an opinion as to the opportuneness of the Papal initiative.

ONLY HOPE IN VICTORY, LLOYD GEORGE SAYS

Labor and All Other Aims Unattainable if Entente Allies Are Defeated.

LONDON, Aug. 15.—Premier Lloyd George, speaking this afternoon at a luncheon given in honor of Premier W. A. Holman of New South Wales, declared that Great Britain was fighting for one thing, and that was a "victory of democracy over aggression."

All other things, wrapped up in the programs of no matter what party, the British Premier said, were unattainable unless the Entente Allies won. There was nothing in the program of labor which could be attainable if the Entente Allies were beaten. There was room within the orbit of the British Empire, he declared, for the federation of all its peoples, providing one formidable obstacle was removed—that of aggressive German militarism.

CARDINAL GIBBONS'S VIEW.

DEAL BEACH, N. J., Aug. 15.—Cardinal Gibbons, ranking prelate of the Roman Catholic Church in America, said tonight that it would be premature for him to express an opinion regarding Pope Benedict's peace proposals until the text had been made known to him. The Cardinal added:

"Every rational citizen will acknowledge that the Pope is actuated by lofty, humane, and disinterested motives, and therefore his suggestions deserve to be received with the attention and respect due to them. Consequently, I have no doubt that the United States Government will give to them the profound consideration which they deserve, whatever may be our individual opinions."

Cardinal Gibbons is here on a two weeks' visit at the home of Mrs. S. H. Fay. He is accompanied by the Rev. D. J. O'Connell, Bishop of Richmond.

IRELAND DEFERS COMMENT.

Premature to Discuss Pope's Peace Proposal, He Says.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. PAUL, Aug. 15.—"All discussion of the peace plans submitted by his Holiness, Pope Benedict, is premature, therefore I shall say nothing at present," said Archbishop Ireland at his residence, 977 Portland Avenue, today in reply to an inquiry as to his views. "When the time is ripe," added the Archbishop, "I shall be glad to make a statement through our Church papers."

MOVE TO SILENCE SENATE PACIFISTS

Lewis Offers Resolution Declaring Peace Talk Embarrassing to the President.

HAS EXECUTIVE SANCTION.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—Senator J. Hamilton Lewis of Illinois, a strong Administration supporter, offered a resolution in the Senate today aimed at preventing any move in Congress at this time looking to the affirmation of peace terms upon which America would treat with Germany, and suppressing any further peace talk in the House or Senate.

The Illinois Senator recently had a conference with the President and among other things peace was touched upon. The President, it is understood, expressed the opinion that any peace talk now was premature. The resolution offered today, which went over for debate, is believed to reflect the sentiment of the President.

Senator Lewis's resolution calls upon Congress to affirm its confidence in the President and to rely upon him to indicate when the time is propitious to take up the promulgation of peace terms. Until the Executive makes that communication to Congress, the resolution provides, Congress shall not make any move toward peace, so as not to embarrass him.

It became known at the Capitol tonight that Senator King of Utah, who offered a resolution last Saturday, proclaiming the sentiment of Congress that the war must go on until Germany either was vanquished, or made acceptable peace overtures, is to call upon the President tomorrow to ascertain what action, if any, he desires Congress to take. The Utah Senator will ask the Executive if he favors the passage of Mr. King's resolution, or that of Senator Lewis, or if any other action is wanted. Senator King is actuated by the desire that Congress do nothing that will in any way embarrass the President.

After Senator King's conference with the President, it is expected that there will be a conference of Senate leaders. If the President indicates that he wants any action taken to smother further peace moves, these leaders—who will represent both sides of the Senate—will bring the matter up quickly in the Senate. It is a foregone conclusion that the Senate, by overwhelming vote, would adopt a resolution, such as Senator Lewis's or Senator King's, putting an end to all peace agitation in Congress at this time, providing the President favored such action.

Sherman Wants Peace Terms.

Still another peace resolution made its appearance in the Senate, after Mr. Lewis had offered his. This was offered by Senator Sherman of Illinois, Republican, calling on the President to confer with representatives of the Allies with the view of putting before the world the precise terms upon which they would end the war with Germany. The resolution goes exhaustively into a statement of terms that would be acceptable to America. Among these, as outlined by Senator Sherman, are the restoration of all invaded territory, no indemnity, the guarantee of freedom of the seas after the war and limitation of armament.

Senator Sherman's resolution, furthermore, condemns submarine warfare, as now conducted by Germany, as piracy, and provides that in any future war, civilian, non-combatant population and hospital agencies on land or sea be immune from attack. The rehabilitation of Belgium and other devastated territory, the resolution provides, shall be done at the joint expense of all belligerents signing the treaty of peace.

It is regarded as likely that Senator Sherman's resolution will find its way to the discard that awaits that put in last Saturday by Senator La Follette of Wisconsin. Senator La Follette hopes to bring up his resolution for debate by the end of the week.

Here is the resolution offered by Senator Lewis:

Whereas, The United States is at war with the Imperial German Government, caused by acts of aggression upon the United States by the said Imperial German Government; and,

Whereas, By the Constitution of the United States and the laws thereunder the President of the United States is the Commander in Chief of the army and navy, and during war is made the Director in Chief of all movements of war or peace; and,

Whereas, It must be presumed that by virtue of the position of the President of the United States and of his privileges and opportunities he has all reliable information upon which any practicable course for war or peace could be undertaken when the time for such move was appropriate and profitable;

Therefore, Be It Resolved, That the American people are assured by the Senate of the United States that so soon as reliable conditions make possible for peace between the warring nations which the United States could direct or suggest consistent with the just purposes of which America entered upon the war—the President of the United States can be depended upon to take action and at such occasion, wherever arising, will duly inform the American people, as well as communicate with the Congress of the United States upon the subject.

Resolved, That until such occasion so exists as hereby recited, all action taken by Congress or any members thereof, preceding the suggestion of the President of the United States, works confusion in the discipline of the naval and military forces of the United States, and embarrasses the Executive in the due performance of the duty of conducting the war with unity of action and vigor of purpose, as now devolves upon him.

KAISERISM MUST GO, GOMPERS DECLARES

Says Labor Cannot Indorse Pope's Terms Without This Basic Principle.

Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor and member of the Advisory Commission of the Council of National Defense, says the terms of peace proposed by Pope Benedict cannot be indorsed by organized workmen because the proposals do not provide for the elimination of "Kaiserism and the establishment of world democracy."

"Anything the Pope says must be seriously considered by the men of labor," said Mr. Gompers yesterday, a few minutes before his departure for Washington. "The proposals made by the Pope for world peace, however, contain nothing which can be considered as foundations for permanent peace. There is nothing in the proposals that would insure the peoples of the world against a recurrence of this terrible war."

While Mr. Gompers refrained from commenting on the features of the Pope's suggestions, he intimated that with the exception of Prussianism or Kaiserism the proposals included suggestions that were good so far as they went.

"The one basic thought for permanent peace," continued Mr. Gompers, "is that of either the abdication of Kaiserism to the democracy of the world, or else autocracy must be crushed by the democracy of the world. This is the only alternative, in my judgment. Until this can be attained there ought not to be peace."

As an official spokesman for organized labor, Mr. Gompers insisted that he had no feeling against the Kaiser as a man, but solely against the spirit and policy of Kaiserism.

NOTE'S TEXT CONFIRMS BRITISH OBJECTIONS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 15.—The Times thus comments editorially on the Papal peace note:

"The full note bears out the fears we expressed yesterday. It propounds a plan of settlement for the world which the Allies are bound to reject. It is more pro-German and more anti-Ally even than was the summary.

"We do not in the least question the profession of 'perfect impartiality' which the Pope makes, but this feeling is merely subjective.

A comparison of the main proposals of the note with those put forward by the Reichstag resolution, in German schemes for the Stockholm conference and in recent German articles and speeches demonstrates that the peace which he proposes would in fact be a German peace, and strongly confirms the suspicion that the note itself and the choice of the moment for its issue are the outcomes of German inspiration.

"The Pope declares he does not listen to suggestions of any of the belligerents. No doubt he does not consciously listen to them, but it is impossible to read this scheme without seeing that it is permeated with German ideas."

The Daily Telegraph, after remarking editorially that the Papal note creates a new situation, asks by whom it was created, and proceeds:

"We can assume without hesitation that the hand of the Central Empires is in it. Communications between the Vatican, German Catholics, and Vienna have been very lively for a long time past. The German Catholics and Vienna between them have already compelled Michaelis to make definite renunciation of a policy of conquest and the pontifical proposals, which go further than that, may well represent what Austria-Hungary, South Germany, and a strong body of opinion in Prussia itself have united to force upon the German Imperial Government.

"If these proposals are to be regarded as being in fact a foreshadowing by our enemies of the terms which they are prepared ultimately to accept, that is, of course, no reason for treating the Papal note without full and courteous consideration. As a basis of peace negotiations it is wholly inadmissible."

As regards the Pope's proposal for the restoration of Belgium and the invaded French territory, &c., The Telegraph says:

"This very inadequate program of restoration represents, no doubt, what the enemy Governments have made up their minds they must accept. At this moment they prefer to 'say restoration,' as Lloyd George has put it, through the mouth of the Pontiff, so far as they say it at all."

The Daily Chronicle summarizes the Pope's suggestion to belligerents as not simply to cry quits, but to make an agreement to disarm all around and establish compulsory arbitration, and then they can afford to cry quits.

"We must all agree with the Pope that if the risk of war were definitely eliminated from the world in future, territorial and other questions could be approached in a very different spirit," it says. "What would it matter whether Germany recovered her oversea naval bases, or Austria kept her one-sided Italian frontier, if both Germany and Austria were certain never to take part in war again?

"But there is one vital point which his Holiness overlooks. This abolition of war will depend not only on an agreement being made, but on its being kept. Can anybody in the light of what has happened since the German ultimatum to Belgium believe that the Potsdam autocracy would keep it? Is it safe to stake our whole future on scraps of paper signed by the Hohenzollerns and Hapsburgs? President Wilson has asked those questions, though the Pope does not, and he has answered them 'No.' Accepting that answer as we do the Pope's whole argument collapses, for, as we have said, his is not a mere cry quits appeal, though the enemy do their best to exploit it as if it were."

LONDON, Aug. 5.—Comments on the Pope's peace proposals by the afternoon papers today are not more favorable to them than were those of the morning press.

The Standard says that the persistence and energy with which the Central Powers are playing every card is due to the fact that Germany is working to bring about peace before the weight of the United States is felt on the battlefield. It asserts there can be no peace until Germany admits her wrongs and until restitution is made. The newspaper contends that the Pope was singularly uninformed as to the state of feeling in allied countries.

The Pall Mall Gazette asks what security there would be for fulfillment of any terms put forward by the Vatican, and adds: "Treaties with Germany are worthless as long as she has the power to break them."

The Globe says: "What should have been, might have been a great and splendid effort to stay the tide of slaughter stands revealed as a pitiful German manoeuvre, and in giving to it his countenance the Pope has warned free nations that in him and his they have neither part nor lot."

PALLEN OPPOSES PEACE PLAN.

Says American Catholics Want No Settlement Favoring Germany.

Dr. Conde B. Pallen, editor of The Catholic Encyclopedia, does not believe that American Catholics approve peace proposals made at this time, and certainly not proposals to restore to Germany her conquered colonies.

"We ought not to have peace until Germany has been beaten to her knees," he said last night at his home in New Rocheele, "and not until the Allies are in a position to dictate terms. Germany must be punished for her crimes. The world must get rid of the Prussian menace for good, and any peace accepted now would only be temporary and compel the world to go through all the horrors of another war later.

"I do not believe the general sentiment among the Catholics of the city and nation is in favor of such a peace. In fact, I am certain it is not. I think that the peace proffers are the result of German suggestion, and are merely feelers."

Dr. Pallen recently published a poem on the war entitled "The Day of Wrath," in which he extolled the awakened spirit of Great Britain and France, and their determination to force Germany to make reparation for her atrocities. He circulated the poem in pamphlet form among his friends.

AS A BASIS FOR BARGAINING.

Paris Temps So Estimates Benedict's Peace Proposals.

PARIS, Aug. 15.—Pope Benedict's peace proposition, the Temps says, shows that the Pontiff is faithful to his principles and is presenting it as a transaction subject to bargaining.

"The intervention of the United States and the failure of the submarine war," the Temps says, "have definitely taken from the Hohenzollerns all hope of dictating peace and, under these conditions, the Austrian Government has more reason than ever for desiring an immediate end of the war."

MAKES PLEA FOR AUSTRIA.

M. P., Recently a War Prisoner There, Favors Rapprochement.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 15.—Captain Wilson, M. P., who has arrived in London after being released by the Austrian Government, which held him as a prisoner of war for twenty months, says in an interview printed in The Daily Chronicle:

"I am not the bearer of peace, but I should much like to see some rapprochement between the Entente and Austria-Hungary."

LONDON MILLIONS CHEER OUR TROOPS

ARE REVIEWED BY THE KING

Cabinet Breaks Up Meeting to Join in Spontaneous Welcome to Americans.

LONDON, Aug. 15.—Millions of Londoners, men, women, and children, banking solidly the flag-decked line of march and many of them waving American flags, roared themselves hoarse in welcome to a large contingent of American troops from a training camp, who marched through the metropolis today, escorted by all the famous bands of the Guards, English, Scotch and Irish, and were reviewed by Ambassador Page and Admiral Sims from the balcony of the embassy in Grosvenor Gardens and afterward by King George at Buckingham Palace.

British soldiers on their way to the front and wounded men recently sent back from the firing line joined in the demonstration, the like of which had not been seen since the frenzied scenes which marked the return of the troops from the Boer War. Several hundred wounded soldiers had been accommodated with seats on Trafalgar Square.

The welcome was truly a spontaneous one, for not a word about the coming of the Americans had been allowed to get out until last night, when announcement was made through the evening papers, so that no inkling of the parade should reach the enemy and prompt him to attempt to spoil it by an airplane raid.

A meeting of the Cabinet was in progress when the Americans approached Whitehall. It was promptly adjourned and the Premier and his colleagues hurried in a body to the War Office. As the Americans passed the Horse Guards Parade to Whitehall they were greeted from the windows of the War Office by Premier Lloyd George, Foreign Secretary Balfour, Chancellor Bonar Law, War Secretary Derby, Winston Spencer Churchill, Minister of Munitions; George N. Barnes, member of the War Council; Admiral Jellicoe, and other high officials, as well as by French and Belgian officers.

Great Roar of Cheers Greets Them.

The route from the Horse Guards up Whitehall to Trafalgar Square, Picadilly, Grosvenor Gardens, Buckingham Palace, Mall, and Westminster Bridge was literally packed with spectators. As the troops swung into Whitehall a roar of cheers, which was heard many blocks away, was started. It continued all along the route. All traffic was stopped. Windows and roofs were crowded. Persons in the throngs continually shouted out greetings such as "We're glad to see you, America," and "Go get them, boys."

The Americans for the most part kept their eyes to the front. Only occasionally did a man here or there look to the right or left, grinning broadly or wiggling a hand in such a way that the officers could not see him.

The greatest crowd gathered in front of Buckingham Palace. The people completely filled the broad plaza and overflowed to the palace grounds. The King, accompanied by the Queen, the Queen mother Alexandra, Princess Mary, Field Marshal French, commander of the home forces; the household staff, and officers, took his place at the gate. The Americans then filed past, eyes left, officers at salute, while the bands played and the cheering and waving of flags continued. As the first Stars and Stripes passed with the ranks the King and his party raised their hands in salute. The flag was dipped and the crowd roared approval so vigorously that the King was forced to smile. The windows and roof of the palace were crowded with soldiers and attendants, who silently waved to the Americans.

A slight rain fell from the sunny sky during the review, but not a spectator departed. As each flag passed the King saluted, and the enthusiasm of the crowds became almost uncontrollable. Men threw their hats into the air. Some of the hats were from the heads of Tommies and colonials such as Australians and Canadians.

Just before the last of the troops passed Premier Lloyd George hurried up in a motor car. The Premier was recognized by the guards and the parade was halted for a moment while his car passed through. The Premier jumped from his automobile and almost ran to the King to tell him the news of the latest British advance in Flanders. The King and Premier discussed the British success for a moment, and then the King turned back to review the troops.

After the review the Americans camped temporarily in Green Park, at the rear of the Palace. There they rested and had luncheon. This and their breakfast, which had been partaken of at Wellington Barracks, had been undertaken by the War Office through the Navy and the Army Canteen Board. The arrangements met with the approval of the persons chiefly concerned—the troops.

Green Park is the centre of the fashionable section, overlooked by Buckingham Palace on one side and the Piccadilly clubs and ducal residences on the other side. Hundreds of tables with white cloths were spread and hundreds of waitresses attended the soldiers, whose arms were stacked about the tables. While they ate, thousands of persons gazed upon the troops through the iron railings around the park, and the windows of all the clubs and the residences were filled with spectators. Whenever English girls could get near enough to the soldiers they pleaded for buttons or regimental badges as souvenirs. They got many of them.

At the conclusion of the repast the visitors resumed the march through the city, the earlier scenes being repeated. As they neared Waterloo Station, whence they took their departure, taxicabs filled with old men fell in behind the procession. They bore big banners inscribed "London Division, U. S. Civil War Veterans." The veterans stood up in the cabs and cheered, the hindmost troops responding.

The allied soldiers in the crowds, in common with other spectators, commented on the youthfulness, soldierly bearing and snappiness of the Americans. Regrets were heard on all sides that they were not permitted to have leave while here so that each man personally might have a warm welcome.

The evening newspapers united in praise of the American soldiers. The Standard displayed on the front page the large headline: "Sons of the Pilgrims Back in London," under which it said:

"Lean, lithe, straight-backed, sallow, thin-lipped, set-jawed, they impressed everybody as doers rather than dreamers, men of few words who look you straight in the eye, take your measure at a glance, give you their opinion in a rough epigram and then get to business. They are a distinct set of men of a definite type, not Canadian, not Australian, not New Zealander, but in the snap of the eye and the expression of the mouth something distinctly United States."

The Westminster Gazette observed:

"Not since the war broke out have there been such manifestations of enthusiasm, such density of crowds. The procession brought home vividly to London the fact that we have a great new ally, and London celebrated that recognition with a demonstration of unusually vivacious responsiveness."

The Pall Mall Gazette said that the procession "is a visible sign that the Old World and the New are one, that the civilization of the West knows no geographical barriers, that henceforward all that touches our liberties will be a matter of concern for us all."

STOCKHOLM COUNCIL NOT TO BIND RUSSIA

Kerensky Government Announces That It Alone Will Determine War and Peace.

PETROGRAD, Aug. 15.—The Russian Government does not desire to place any obstacles against Socialist participation in the Stockholm conference, according to a statement issued today from an authoritative source in regard to the reports in foreign newspapers concerning the Government's attitude toward the conference. The statement, which is issued through the semi-official news agency, says:

"The Government considers that the solution of questions affecting war and peace appertains exclusively to it in unison with the allied countries. The Stockholm conference, as pointed out hitherto, is one of the particular political parties and as such cannot lay claim to formulating decisions which bind the Government in any way.

"The Government always has been far from refusing passports to Socialists, believing that questions concerning war and peace may be submitted for decision to the Socialist Internationale. The Prime Minister and Foreign Minister have informed the allied Governments that the Provisional Government does not consider it desirable to place any obstacles against the participation of Socialists in the conference."

The statement concludes by saying that the Government does not deny the political bearing of the conference, but holds that decisions formed at it must not be of a character belonging to the Government.

GOMPERS DENOUNCES MASKED PEACE WORK

Says People's Council Is Engaged in "Nefarious Propaganda of Treachery."

With the peace-at-any-price People's Council asserting that by the end of September it will have 2,000,000 workers in its ranks, Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, and as such head of the American Alliance for Labor and Democracy, declared yesterday that the time had come "to strip the mask from those who in the name of democracy, anti-militarism, and peace are now engaged in the nefarious propaganda of treachery.

"We indignantly repudiate the claim that this propaganda—which, be it remembered, brings joy and comfort to the German autocracy—has the support of the labor movement of America," said Mr. Gompers. "Not even at the behest of the so-called People's Council will the organized workers of America prostitute the labor movement to serve the brutal power responsible for the infamous rape of Belgium—the power that would subject Russia to a worse despotism than that of the Romanoffs."

Mr. Gompers yesterday issued an appeal to the workers of America to listen not to the voice of the socialistic peace-at-any-price propaganda but to give their best efforts to their country at war. He said:

"The American Allianece for Labor and Democracy submits to all the American people the following statement of the purposes which called it into existence, the principles it seeks to inculcate, and the purposes it aims to achieve.

"We uphold as fundamental the ideals of democracy and internationalism, politically as well as industrially. These are also the fundamental principles and ideals of the American labor movement, and we hold further that never was the active assertion and maintenance of these ideals more urgently needed than at this time.

"As believers in the great and splendid vision of democracy and internationalism, the fraternalism and solidarity of all peoples, we assert at this time our unqualified loyalty to the Republic of the United States of America, and our determination to do all that lies in our power to win the war in which it is engaged.

"Loyalty to the ideals of freedom and democracy and internationalism requires loyalty to America. Disloyalty to America in this crisis is disloyalty to the cause of freedom, democracy and internationalism. No national selfishness impelled this Republic to enter the war.

"Fully impressed by these facts, realizing that a noble internationalism is implicit in our American conception of national existence, it shall be our purpose to bring to the support of the Government all the moral and material power of the working class of the nation. It shall be our task to interpret America's democratic spirit and purpose in this conflict to our fellow-workers, especially those of foreign birth, and to combat every form of propaganda, no matter by whom it may be carried on, which tends to weaken the loyalty and devotion of the masses and their willingness to strive and sacrifice for the nation and its high purposes.

"Democracy will not be served by the victory of autocracy by letting the Declaration of Independence be supplanted by the Kaiser's fiat. Militarism will not be checked by surrender to the power which has organized all the resources of civilization to the end of imposing its brutal rule on the world. Peace will not be secured to the world through the subjection of the free and democratic nations. We shall be as loyal to the struggle for freedom and democracy at home as to the struggle for freedom and democracy in international relations.

"To the men and women of the American labor movement, and to all sincere friends of democracy and internationalism, we call for loyal support to America and her allies in this great struggle. The American Alliance for Labor and Democracy brings this challenge to the brain and conscience of America, supremely confident of an enthusiastic and loyal response to America's call for service and sacrifice."

Almost coincident with the appeal of Mr. Gompers, the People's Council issued a statement saying that one local union of the Federation of Labor was joining the council each day. The statement concluded by saying:

"Two million workers will be members of the People's Council by the end of September, and those two million will be made up to a great extent of workers now in the American Federation of Labor. The working class of the United States have looked in vain to Mr. Gompers and his associates who have plunged labor into the war without a referendum, who have done little if anything to combat the silence of the press with regard to the peace movement."

GERMANS ARE NETTLED BY KAISER TELEGRAM

Emperor's Irresponsible Conduct of Foreign Affairs Again Brought to Front.

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 15.—Publication of Emperor William's telegram to President Wilson in the memoirs of ex-Ambassador Gerard, and the belated explanation made by the semi-official Norddeutsche Allgemeine Zeitung calls forth criticism in the German press of what is termed the German Emperor's irresponsible conduct of the foreign affairs of the empire.

Berlin newspapers comment on the system which permits a Sovereign to pass upon a proposal from a neutral power and to draft an important State document without consultation with a responsible Minister, and even without the necessary record subsequently being made.

The incertitude of the semi-official organ, which can only say that "possibly" the Emperor may have drafted some such memorandum, occasions general discontent.

The German press also sharply criticises the action of the censor who prevented the publication of any reference to the Gerard disclosures for nearly a week after Entente and neutral newspapers had printed full particulars, and the inability of the new German Foreign Secretary, Dr. von Kühlmann, in his first official action, to produce a firmer and more convicing refutation or explanation.

Berlin newspapers intimate that the question of Ministerial responsibility or non-responsibility for Emperor William's autographed document will be raised in the Reichstag, the situation in general lines resembling that arising from the famous interview with the Emperor printed in The London Daily Telegraph several years ago, which likewise appeared without the Chancellor, Foreign Secretary, or any other responsible official having any definite idea of its contents.

The most comprehensive presentation of press opinion is given by the Hamburger Fremdemblatt. It criticises the delay in appearance of the semi-official statement which, the newspaper says, was "neither adroit nor forceful, betrays the embarrassment of the writer and adopts a tone of discouraged defiance."

The Fremdenblatt is inclined to question the veracity of the assertion made by the Norddeutsche Allgemeine Zeitung that the document was not a telegram, saying that if Ambassador Gerard really characterized mere notes jotted down to assist his memory as a formal telegram from the Emperor it would undoubtedly be incorrect, but adding that the semi-official newspaper does not question that the ideas were the Emperor's. The Fremdenblatt concludes that the explanation of the Norddeutsche Allgemeine Zeitung is not calculated to raise German prestige. It admonishes Foreign Secretary von Kühlmann when next he is confronted by revelations from the other side to act more boldly.

DENIES THE KAISER ERRED.

Berlin Tageblatt Says Gerard Embarrasses English King.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Aug. 15, (via London.)—The Tageblatt, commenting on ex-Ambassador Gerard's revelations, says:

"That telegram, if you leave out Gerard's comments, contains nothing that would in any way expose the Kaiser personally or Germany's interests. The delay in permitting a report of the telegram in the German press can only be explained by assuming that it was thought necessary to ascertain in the proper quarters what there was in it.

"Its publication must have been very painful, though, to the English King. It clearly proves that King George, to prevent war, actually assented to Austria's occupation of Belgrade. While Gerard's revelations appeared in The Daily Telegraph, the Serbian Premier Pasitch sojourned in London. Even the most eloquent after-dinner speeches in his honor cannot have unconvinced him that for a space of time the Serbian cause was not considered worthy of English assistance and that Austria was to have been permitted to use force against 'that free little nation.'

"The only really new feature of Gerard's revelations is that on the morning of Aug. 10, 1914, he went to the Kaiser with an offer of mediation by President Wilson, and that the Kaiser gave him a telegram, or as the Norddeutsche Allgemeine Zeitung says, only notes. Really Gerard has little to add to the history of the fatal period just before the war."

TEUTON INVASION GAINS IN RUMANIA

3,000 PRISONERS CAPTURED

BERLIN, Aug. 15, (via London.)—Austro-German forces in the lowlands of the Sereth River, on the Rumanian front, yesterday stormed the bridgehead at Baltaretu, on the west bank of the river, according to the official statement issued today by the German General Staff. The Russians and Rumanians lost on the Sereth and in the mountains more than 3,000 prisoners. Troops under Field Marshal von Mackensen are pursuing the retreating Russo-Rumanian forces in the mountain land on both sides of the River Putna. On the fringe of mountains the Teutons captured Stracani, northwest of Patziu. The Russians and Rumanians attempted to cover the retreat of a wing of the Second Rumanian Army and the Fourth Russian Army. The Austro-German troops have pushed forward beyond Soveja. Following is the text of the official statement:

Front of Prince Leopold of Bavaria—Between the northern Sereth and the Zbrocz there was an increase in firing activity. Southeast of Tarnopol Russian attacks supported by armored motor cars broke down before our positions.

Front of Archduke Joseph—South of Trotus Valley the enemy sought by strong relief attacks to cover the retreat of the inner wing of the second Rumanian Army and the Fourth Russian Army. All the attacks were repulsed. Our troops pushed forward beyond Soveja.

Front of Field Marshal von Mackensen—Our columns are pursuing in a northeasterly direction the retreating enemy in the mountain land on both sides of the Putna. On the fringe of the mountains Stracani, northwest of Pantziu, has been taken victoriously by our advancing troops, who checked violent enemy counterattacks. In the Sereth lowlands German divisions stormed on the western bank of the river.

In addition to heavy casualties, the Russians and Rumanians lost on the Sereth and in the mountains more than 3,000 prisoners, several big guns and numerous machine guns.

PETROGRAD, Aug. 15.—Austro-German forces, after a series of battles yesterday, occupied the Russo-Rumanian positions on a height west of Ocna, on the Rumanian front, says today's official statement issued by the Russian War Department. The Teutons by an energetic attack penetrated the Russian trenches in the region of Kredcheni, but later were driven out by a counterattack. The statement reads:

An enemy attack in the region of the valley of the River Casinului was repulsed by the Rumanians.

In the region of Kredoheni the enemy launched an energetic attack against our positions, but after penetrating a portion of our trenches he was driven out again by a counterattack, and the situation was restored.

LONDON, Aug. 15.—The Rumanian Press Bureau announces that King Ferdinand and the Rumanian Government are still at Jassy, Northeastern Rumania.

FINNS FIRE ON RUSSIANS.

An exchange of shooting followed, during which several Finns were killed and wounded.

PETROGRAD, Tuesday, Aug. 14.—A dispatch from Helsingfors declares that the Landtag, ignoring the Government's dissolution manifesto, will resume sessions this week. Nevertheless, the Socialist majority is preparing for the contingency that Petrograd may enforce the dissolution and the holding of elections.

The Socialist Congress declares that though such elections are unconstitutional the party must participate and demand that the new Landtag proclaim itself a constituent assembly empowered to enact a new constitution by a bare majority without consulting Russia.

POLISH COURTS FOR POLAND.

Council of State, However, Rejects German Education Plan.

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 15.—Administration of justice in the Kingdom of Poland will be handed over to the Polish authorities Sept. 1, when the Council of State will establish a Ministry of Justice and Hierarchy of Courts. These are the first actual powers placed in the hands of the Council of State.

The council is unable to accept the educational plan submitted by the German authorities and hence declines to undertake the school administration.

BRITAIN CONFERS WAR MEDAL HERE

Clive Bayley, the British Consul General, in the name of King George V. yesterday conferred the distinguished conduct medal upon an American Sergeant Alexander McClintock of Lexington, Ky., for meritorious conduct in a bombing raid in the Ypres salient in September last. The official communication of the British War Department which accompanied the medal, in telling why it was conferred, said:

"For conspicuous gallantry in action. He displayed great courage and determination during a raid against the enemy's trenches. Later he rescued several wounded men at great personal risk."

Sergeant McClintock while an invalid in the King George Hospital in London last Christmas suffering from twenty-two shrapnel wounds was personally thanked by King George for his bravery. Early in the year McClintock returned to this country on a furlough. Later he received his honorable discharge, and despite the fact that he still had a number of shrapnel splinters in his hip, he is to join the second Plattsburg officers' training camp.

Sergeant McClintock, who is 25 years old, went to Canada in November, 1915, and enlisted in the Eighty-seventh Infantry Battalion, which soon was in the trenches.

In September, 1916, he was sent with a party of sixty to bomb the German trenches under a heavy machine gunfire. Of the sixty only seven returned whole. The rest either were killed or wounded. McClintock did not receive a scratch, and after he returned to his trench made four trips to No Man's Land for injured comrades. He brought two back alive, and one soldier died as he was carrying him in.

The young American was severely wounded in the battle of the Somme on Nov. 18. He was removed to Rouen and thence transferred to London. He walked with a slight limp as he received his medal yesterday.

"I have had plenty of good experience and ought to be real handy up at Plattsburg," was his comment as he walked from the British Consulate General.

BERLIN ASKED ABOUT OUR CITIZENS IN ARMY

Spanish Ambassador in Germany Is Conducting Inquiry—Neutrals Object to Our Draft.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—Reports of American citizens impressed into the German armies and recurring protests against the drafting of partly naturalized foreigners in this country are presenting some difficult problems for the Government's international law experts.

It became known today that an official inquiry had been begun at Berlin by the Spanish Ambassador into stories that Germany is forcing into military service those of German parentage and birth regardless of their claims to American citizenship. It is admitted that even should the report prove true, there is little this Government could do except retaliate. The idea of retaliatory methods is repugnant, but officials are withholding a decision.

How many Americans might be affected is not known here, but there are believed to be in Germany less than 100 men of unquestioned American citizenship. A few weeks ago complaint was made to the State Department that Americans were being detained in Germany, and investigation showed that most of those held were of German birth. Obtaining of the first papers of citizenship in the United States is said to be regarded in Germany as insufficient reason to remove the liability of such persons to German military service.

In many respects this position coincides with that assumed in neutral protests against the drafting of aliens here who have taken out first papers. President Wilson is considering these protests, but in the meantime Provost Gen. Crowder is placing such men on the rolls of the National Army. The President is expected to pass on the point shortly. It is known that he hesitates to follow the plan of President Lincoln, who gave first-paper men the option of either fighting in the Union Army or going back to their own country on sixty days' notice.

EX-CZAR REMOVED; MAY GO TO SIBERIA

GOVERNMENT FEARED PLOT

Motives Political and Military, Nekrasoff Explains—Will Reveal Destination When It Is Reached.

PETROGRAD, Aug. 15.—Former Emperor Nicholas and his family were removed yesterday from the palace at Tsarskoe Selo to a destination which, although the Provisional Government refuses to reveal it, is reported to be Tobolsk, Siberia.

N. V. Nekrasoff, Vice Premier, said to The Associated Press today that the removal of the ex-Czar was decided on after a series of secret sessions of the Council of Ministers late last month. The motives of the Ministers, he said, are political and military. It was decided to get Nicholas out of the way before circumstances arose making it difficult. When he reaches his destination the facts will be announced.

No one except the local military and officials specially sent from Petrograd witnessed the departure of the ex-Emperor, and, according to M. Nekrasoff, the accounts published in the only newspaper which reported the departure were imaginary.

It appears that the plan was to remove Nicholas before dawn, but the train arrived at Tsarskoe Selo several hours late. Instead of the gorgeous Imperial train in which Nicholas was taken to Tsarskoe Selo from Mohilev in March, an ordinary train composed of three sleeping cars, one dining car and several third-class coaches was sent. A second train was assigned to take the baggage and the servants, fifty of whom accompanied the ex-Emperor and his family.

Nicholas was very depressed in appearance, but the former Empress, Alexandra, who was seen walking for the first time in months, seemed pleased at the prospect of a change in surroundings.

In view of the need for special precautions, the guard on the route from the palace to the railroad staion was not composed of any single unit, but of delegations of eleven trusted men from each battalion of the Tsarskoe Selo garrisons. An hour after the train arrived Nicholas appeared on the steps of the palace, dressed in a Colonel's uniform, with a khaki blouse and with no decorations. Without lifting his eyes from the ground he entered an automobile, accompanied by Prince Dolgoroukoff and Count Benckendorff, former Court Marshal, who thus far have shared the captivity of the fallen ruler. They were followed by the former Empress Alexandra, who was accompanied by Countess Naryshken, her close friend and former Lady of the Court; all the four Grand Duchesses, with their maids of honor, and finally by Alexis, the former heir to the throne, at whose side was the gigantic sailor "Derevenko," the protector of Alexis since his birth, and his constant companion and playmate.

In order to keep the departure secret as long as possible the train was not drawn up to the station platform, but was kept on a side track some distance away, to which Nicholas and his party went. The public was unaware of the transfer until late last night. In order to keep up the fiction that Nicholas was still in the palace the guards were retained around the park, and special vigilance was shown in keeping the people away.

Many rumors are current in regard to the motives for the removal of the Imperial family. The semi-official news agency says the demands for Nicholas's transfer were due to fears of the authorities that attempts would be made to liberate him in connection with a counter-revolutionary movement. A prevalent theory is that the discovery of the letter in which General Gurko, former commander of the southwestern front, expressed loyalty to the former Emperor and of plots to effect the escape of Nicholas caused the Council of Deputies to demand his removal to a safer place—either Tobolsk, or Kostroma, which was the original seat of the Romanoff family. M. Nekrasoff said, however, that all stories to the effect that the removal was connected with the Gurko affair or with attempts to liberate Nicholas were untrue, the transfer having been decided upon last month. Arrangements were made to keep it secret until it had been executed.

"Our motives were political and military," he continued. "We decided to get Nicholas out of the way before circumstances might arise which would make this difficult. It is absolutely untrue that the Council of Delegates compelled the Government to act. Secrecy was dictated by considerations of absolute necessity. In this particular such precautions were taken that the destination of the train was and still is unknown to the chief of the Traffic Department of the Ministry of Communications who was intrusted with the arrangements."

Tobolsk is an out-of-the-way town of Western Siberia, far from the railroad and visited only by steamers which ply the Irtish River. In former times it was an administrative centre for exiles banished to Siberia by the Russian rulers. It is a city of something more than 20,000 inhabitants. The climate is extremely severe in Winter.

Very little has been heard of Nicholas Romanoff and his family since they were placed under guard in the Palace of Knasnoe-Selo, sixteen miles from Petrograd, in the last week in March. This little has been imparted by newspaper correspondents who, in the weeks succeeding the revolution, were permitted to visit certain buildings of the Imperial domain and to view his late Majesty digging in the garden.

It was also reported that his children were all down with the measles and that the Court physician was being assisted by one appointed by the Government. There have been rumors, too, that the former Czarina, who is the daughter of Ludwig IV., Grand Duke of Hesse, was unreconciled to her fate and might soon be removed elsewhere—but whether for her own safety or because of her lively pro-German affiliations, it was not stated.

Meanwhile, two petitions of Nicholas Romanoff have been denied by the Provisional Government: one that he be permitted to contribute to the first revolutionary loan and the other that he be allowed to take part in the general election on Oct. 1.

BRITISH IN LENS; CAPTURE HILL 70

reached in the early hours was in the shape of a crescent which began above the Hugo Wood and circled the eastern side of Hill 70, the point of the crescent reaching the northwestern environs and the lower extremity encircling the suburbs of Cité St. Laurent and Cité St. Emilie.

"The attack began at 4:25 o'clock, just as the first gray streaks of dawn were appearing. All night the British big guns had been pouring a steady stream of high explosive shells into the German positions, great detonations overlapping one another like the rapid crackling of machine-gun fire and swelling into a mighty volume of thunder that shook the earth and stunned the senses.

"Then, a short time before the hour of the offensive arrived, the batteries abruptly ceased, and a strange, almost oppressive stillness, fraught with the certainty of the portending cataclysm, crept over the country, which until then had been an inferno of death. It had been raining, and gray clouds still hung low over the trenches where crouched the Canadian infantrymen, waiting eagerly for the arrival of the moment which would summon them to the attack.

"Suddenly, ten minutes before the time set for the attack, every British gun within range broke out with a hurricane of shelling, and solid lines of crimson lightning belched from the German trenches as the explosives broke about them. To this lurid picture was added the unforgettable spectacle of the burning oil which the British threw upon the enemy lines. Great clouds of pinkish colored smoke rolled across the country from the flaming liquid, and the murky sky threw back mydriad colors from the conflagration below.

"The moment of attack arrived, and, as the British guns dropped their protecting barrage in front of the Canadian trenches, the clouds parted and the yellow crescent moon appeared. Under the light of this beacon the Canadians leaped over their parapets and began their methodical advance behind their barrage fire.

"The British barrage was without a flaw. Behind it the Canadians mounted Hill 70 and swept along the rest of the line. On the crest of the hill, where so much blood had been spilled before, heavy fighting might have been expected, for the position was well manned with machine guns. The resistance here, however, was not strong, and it was not until the dwellings in the outskirts of the suburbs were reached that vigorous fighting occurred. The ground over which the infantry advanced was honeycombed with British shell holes, and the barbed wire defenses had been leveled so that they gave little trouble.

Desperate Combats in Cellars.

"The first serious resistance from the Germans was met at a point where the enemy was intrenched strongly in concreted cellars, and here sanguinary fighting occurred.

"The place is a sample of other suburbs about Lens. The city is surrounded with colliery communities which are so close together and so near the city proper that they really form one large metropolis. Lens before the war had a population of 30,000, but it is now a mass of ruins.

"Folowing their usual tactics, the Germans had carried out systematic destruction of the houses and had constructed strong underground defenses. The whole city is undermined with tunnels and dugouts, which have been reinforced with concrete, and most of the ruined buildings have been turned into machine gun emplacements. It was in such difficult surroundings as this that the Canadians were battling today.

"The effect of the British preliminary bombardment was most demoralizing to the enemy. Prisoners already taken were in a dazed state as the result of the terrific bombardment they had undergone, and it is not strange, perhaps, that when the British began their barrage fire this morning many Germans were seen to desert their posts and flee to the rear.

"The extreme depth reached in the first stage was 1,500 yards, and this was achieved in ninety-three minutes. This new front, taken into conjunction with positions secured in the last few days in the southwestern outskirts of Lens, established an angular line like a pair of shears, whose points reach out to the north and south of the city.

"As the Canadians pushed in on the northwest this morning, a simultaneous advance was started by the troops on the lower blade of the shears, and close fighting began with the Germans intrenched in their concreted cellars, which were linked up with barbed wire and filled with hundreds of machine guns.

"A considerable number of German prisoners is beginning to arrive at the British camp, and it is remarked that many are mere lads. Some of them apparently are not more than 17 years of age.

"Beginning at a point just above Hugo Wood (Bois Hugo) the new British positions now run southeast and beyond Hill 70 toward Lens. The line then bends southwest and encircles the suburbs of St. Laurent and Ste. Emilie.

"The capture of Hill 70 ranks in importance with the biggest military operations of this year. It was the last dominating position in this section which remained in the hands of the Germans, and from it a wide territory can be controlled.

Hill 70 Dominates Loos Salient.

"Hill 70 is to Lens and the Loos salient what Messines is to Ypres, and in some ways it is even a more enviable position than the Messines Ridge, because even after the fall of Messines the Germans still retained Pilken Ridge, from which they could sweep tho country surrounding Ypres."

French Gain Near Dixmude.

PARIS, Aug. 15.—The official report issued today announces a new French advance in Belgium in these words:

BERLIN, Aug. 15, (via London, British Admiralty per Wireless Press.)—The repulse of British attacks around Ypres, in Flanders, is reported in the official statement, which says:

Front of Crown Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria.—The increased effect of our artillery fire in Flanders compelled a relaxation of the enemy's destructive fire for a part of yesterday. Great quantities of munitions were used to relieve the infantry. Only toward evening was the enemy able to resume the artillery battle with full force. The battle continued throughout the night with undiminished intensity.

English detachments which had worked their way forward over the Steenbeke, near Langermarck, were destroyed by our attack. Violent local English attacks south of Frezenberg and on both sides of Hooge were repulsed.

The supplementary report issued by the War Office this evening says:

There have been artillery duels in Flanders, in Artois and on the Aisne and near Verdun of varying intensity. Infantry engagements thus far are in progress only north of Lens and east of Cerny-en-Lanois.

BATTLE FIERCELY IN OUTER DEFENSES

By PHILIP GIBBS.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WAR CORRESPONDENTS' HEADQUARTERS, Aug. 15.—This morning at dawn the Canadians captured Hill 70. They attacked and gained a maze of streets and trenches forming the mining colonies of St. Laurent and Ste. Emilie, and are now fighting on the outskirts of Lens. A fair number of prisoners has been taken.

Some of the enemy's troops were seen running way from the wreckage of the red houses in the suburbs of Lens as soon as Hill 70 was taken, but in some parts of the outer defenses, north and west of the city, the garrison is fighting fiercely. The Canadians, at any rate, have gained most of the outward bastions of Lens formed by the saparate colonies, or "cités" as they are called, made up of blocks of miners' cottages and the works united in one big mining district.

Hill 70 is British again, after two years, since it was taken and lost.

Before the attack began at dawn wild flights of shells passed over this little world of ruin to Hill 70, which is no hill at all, but just a low hummock of ground, criss-crossed with trenches, burrowed with dugouts and barren and filthy with relics of death, on the northern side of the city of Lens.

From all the ruins around the separate villages in ruin, joining up with the streets of Lens itself, red flames gushed up when our batteries fired at a hot pace, and where the shells burst there was a long, low flash, spreading across a sky heavy and black with storm clouds. Over the German lines and houses where they held the cellars the shells burst in a tumult, which had its sudden beginning just before dawn, and above all their smoke and fire there were fountains of wonderfully bright light, of burning gold and of running flame, all scarlet and alive.

The light was from the smoke-producing rockets of the British, and the running flame was from the drums of boiling oil which they fired into the enemy's trenches to burn him him alive if they caught him there.

I saw a great spread of gunfire in the early morning after the thin crescent moon had faded, and when there was a gray, moist light over the city and the fields. Soon after the Canadians had taken Hill 70 the enemy flung back a great barrage, so that the ridge was vomiting up columns of black smoke, like scores of factory chimneys on a foggy day, and into all the suburbs of Lens, those cités of St. Laurent and Ste. Emilie and St. Pierre, and into Lievin and Calonne and Maroc and Grenay, he pitched heavy shells which came howling across the wilderness of bricks and slag-heaps and broke into gruff, enormous coughs, out of which black demons of smoke rose like evil genii out of a bottle, darkening the view.

An hour or so later the sun came up brightly through the clouds, and these cities of strife, girdled by cornfields in which stocks are standing and by green hills across which the tide of slaughter has swept, leaving them in peace again, were bathed in fresh glinting light, so that the scene was rich in color.

There was not a figure to be seen on Hill 70, not a movement of the line among the houses around Lens. The Canadians had gone across in the smoke and were now hidden among the ruins. The only life was that of shell fire, and it has a life of its own, though it is meant for death.

HEAVY GUN FIRE ON THE AISNE

French Repulse Attack Near Verdun and on Vauclerc Plateau.

PARIS, Aug. 15.—The Germans last night directed a heavy artillery fire against the French first lines on the Aisne front between Hurtebise and Craonne. On the Verdun front the French repulsed German attacks.

These developments are recorded in the afternoon communiqué, the text of which says:

Between Hurbebise and Craonne our first lines were bombarded heavily. A surprise attack against one of our small posts on Vauclerc Plateau was repulsed completely.

Everywhere else the night passed in quiet.

The War Office statement issued tonight says:

North of the Aisne, in Champagne, on both sides of the Meuse, and in the Alsace Mountains we carried out a surprise attack at Four de Paris and brought back to our lines machine guns and material. The Germans have bombarded Rheims and have thrown 100 howitzer shells into Pont-a-Mousson.

BERLIN, Aug. 15, (via London, British Admiralty per Wireless Press.)—The official report from German Headquarters records the failure of French attacks on the Aisne front, near Cerny. The text follows:

Front of the German Crown Prince.—On the Chemin des Dames several French attacks near Cerny failed. The thrusts had been prepared for by strong artillery fire. There were lively artillery battles on the other sectors of this and the Champagne front. On both banks of the Meuse there was a continuation of the increased artillery activity. Here also, the good results of the fighting activity of our batteries, which at times paralyzed the enemy artillery, were recognizable.

BERLIN PREPARED FOR LOSSES

Newspapers Hinted That Further Retreats Might Be Expected.

BERLIN, Tuesday, Aug. 14, (via Amsterdam, Aug. 15.)—Another great offensive by the Entente Allies on the western front is expected by the Berlin evening newspapers. The Lokal-Anzeiger, however, says:

"We know that the enemy hitherto never has succeeded in enlarging his small initial successes into really deciding events."

The Tageblatt says:

"Doubtless offensive plans on a great scale exist on the French side, and simultaneously we must reckon with a resumption of the English attack in Flanders. The strong fire playing incessantly on three local points—on the Aisne, at Verdun and in Flanders—announces that these attacks may speedily be expected."

The Vossische Zeitung says:

"It is true also that these attacks in the beginning may bring the enemy here and there at the front in possession of a piece of trench, but this must not frighten or worry us. On the contrary, we will be grateful to the High Army Command that in the new, well-tried methods of defense in past months it has found means of maintaining the spirit and strength of our troops and fresh spirit and energy for our attacks, even when yielding to the enemy portions of positions which have been battered down by enemy fire and have been impossible to hold because they offer no protection."

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 15.—The renewal of the Entente offensive on the Western front on a greater scale than ever before is looked for by German newspapers, according to Berlin dispatches. It is expected that the new allied attempt may be made on a section of the front heretofore quite calm.

A heavy French bombardment on the Aisne and before Verdun, energetic reconnoissance activity, increased activity by aviators, and the closure of the French-Swiss frontier are interpreted as signs of impending developments of the greatest moment.

FORTY FRENCHMEN ROUT 400 GERMANS

Defenders of Verdun Trenches Repulse and Shatter Shock Troops.

FRENCH FRONT, July 19, (Correspondence of The Associated Press.)—Forty French cavalrymen were the heroes of one of the most brilliant feats of arms—which stands out by itself among the innumerable stories of heroic deeds of this war—during the German attack on June 20 on the French positions around the Mort Homme, to the northwest of Verdun. These few men, who were in charge of a sharp salient whose point stuck far into the German position, not only held out against half a battalion (about 400 men) of the famous German shock troops supported by flame projectors, grenadiers and machine guns, as well as by one of the most intense artillery bombardments ever experienced, but beat them back, after inflicting heavy losses upon them.

The German attack, preceded by a bombardment in which more than 500 of their cannon rained shells on the French positions along a front of only 1,800 yards, was led by the model battalion of German shock troops headed by Captain Roehr himself, the inventor of the new system of selecting special troops to make sudden strong rushes on the opposing positions. These shock troops, while their comrades were attacking the other part of the French line, came forward with an impetuous rush on to the little salient held by the forty dragoons, since it was most important for the Germans to take that point if their attack was to be completely successful.

The dragoons comprised two sergeants, four corporals and thirty-four privates. They could see the enemy approaching rapidly. Three squads of pioneers led the way, each equipped with a flame projector throwing burning liquid before them as they advanced. Behind them in the intervals could be seen three squads of hand-grenade throwers, and still further in the rear a wave of ordinary infantrymen, carrying, besides their rifles with fixed bayonets, spades for the purpose of organizing the French position after they had captured it. Other lines could be seen dimly in the distance carrying sandbags and ammunition supplies.

This overwhelming force did not affect the nerves of the dragoons, who belonged to the determined Breton race—their regiment, the Twenty-fourth, is recruited in Brittany—and had all participated in the cavalry fighting of the beginning of the war as well as in many a battle in the trenches. One of their Sergeants took command. Their rifles spoke out with rapid fire and their portable machine gun worked unceasingly.

Soon they saw Germans falling everywhere in front, and the frontal attack on the salient wilted away. The Germans, however, were determined to take the salient, and they immediately organized a flank attack, but it was foreseen by the French Sergeant, who placed two of his men kneeling on each traverse with three men below in the trench to supply them with grenades. Gradually the Germans advanced as the Frenchmen fell back wounded, but for each section of trench they were compelled to make a fresh fight until the Frenchmen had retired for a distance of 200 yards along the front trench.

It took three hours to make this progress, and by that time the dragoons had reached the opening to a communication trench leading to the rear. Here they decided to form a redoubt and make their last stand.

Just then the Sergeant in charge of the dragoons noticed a relaxation in the German attack. He gathered all his remaining men together, made a dash forward, and in less than half an hour had reconquered the entire salient and had taken four prisoners. He then hastily wrote a report and sent it to the rear: "Quiet has been restored and nothing has been lost."

The roll call showed that only twenty of the dragoons had escaped wounds or death. They had accounted during the fight for two full companies of Germans, and had retained the salient which had been intrusted to their charge.

COLONEL DENOUNCES TRAITORS AT HOME

Tells Harvard Men War Must Be Won if It Takes 5,000,000 American Soldiers.

AMPLE WORK FOR CIVILIANS

Would Turn Their Attention to Pacifists, Propagandists, and Sedition Spreaders.

"If ever there was a holy war, it is this war," Colonel Roosevelt told Harvard men who have joined the colors in the course of an address last night at the Harvard Club in West Forty-fourth Street, in which he denounced members of several organizations as "traitors at home." The Colonel summarized what had been accomplished since the United States entered the war, urged greater efforts to carry on the war successfully, and suggested that, if necessary, 5,000,000 men be sent to end the conflict.

Colonel Roosevelt gave details concerning men and munitions sent abroad since this country entered the war, which he said had not resulted in the firing of an American gun at the foe, or the placing of a single company of American soldiers in a French trench, although the period equalled the length of the Franco-Prussian war.

At the conclusion of his address the Colonel told reporters that he did not want to be quoted to the extent of making public military information, but that he had felt it was his duty to "stir up the country as to its duty, and to indicate the way to meet the peril confronting the American people." In his address Colonel Roosevelt, after citing what should be done, and comparing it with what had been accomplished in a military way, said:

"It shows the utter fatuity of military preparedness that does not include universal military service. What we have done since we entered the war would have been excellent had we commenced it three years ago."

Many of the Harvard men in the big audience were in uniform. In urging them to go into the war to win against an autocracy that meant ruin to this nation if allowed to have its way, Colonel Roosevelt said:

"I hear some say every now and then that we are not fighting the German people, but their Government. But, I say, until the German people separate themselves from the acts of their Government, I am fighting the German people."

He said the inhuman, unspeakable, brutalized Prussian Government would do here, if it had the chance, what it had done in Belgium, Serbia, Rumania and elsewhere. That chance, he said, had not been given because of the British fleet and the French armies.

"We civilians, you and I, who are not given a chance to go abroad, may do our work here by looking after the traitors to the country. Those here who make attacks on our allies are traitors to this nation. Some of them are found speaking on the streets and some in the columns of newspapers—some printed in German and some in English.

"I appreciate the work of the Police Commissioner and what he is doing, but I am going to beg him to see to it that the police make short shrift of these papers and of these street-talking traitors. Some of these papers and street talkers preach revolution, German propaganda, and some are for revolutionary Ireland—Sinn Feiners. They must be prevented from continuing their disloyal attacks. If they do not like this country and its Government, let them get out. This country has now no place for any but Americans, both in spirit and act.

"Young men who go to this war, we are behind you. This nation would forever be dishonored if we did not back you through to the end. We will be dishonored if we do not bring this war to an end by an overwhelming victory."

Colonel Roosevelt referred to the pacifists of the civil war in a comparison with conditions today.

"If the pacifists of the civil war had had their way we would have had peace, but we would have been fighting ever since. We have had peace for more than half a century because our fathers had iron in their blood. And now we have what is the name of that organization?" queried the Colonel to one of his friends on the platform. Then he continued: "Pacifists, Socialists, I. W. W.'s, and a whole raft of the sexless creatures, who, if they had their way, would give us their kind of peace.

"Every young man who is fit should go to this war. When he have the men—there may be 5,000,000—the hour for the end of the Hohenzollerns will strike. No matter what the cost be in blood, money, and sacrifice, we must stay in this war until we win and bring autocracy to its knees in the dust before the civilization it has offended."

Other speakers included Major Gen. J. Franklin Bell, commander of the Department of the East.

DENIES INFECTING COURT-PLASTER HERE

German Papers Assert America Is Trying to Incite the People as Entente Has Been Doing.

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 15.—A New York dispatch stating that an official warning had been issued in the United States against the use of German bandage materials and court-plaster has just been permitted publication in German newspapers. Appended to the dispatch, as printed in newspapers received from Germany, is an emphatic denial that German bandages and court-plaster had been infected with disease germs.

It is stated that the contents of the dispatch are clumsy libels and lies and that Americans are using "similar methods for the incitement of the people, as the Entente has done for three years."

The warning which the Department of Justice issued on July 28 relative to court-plaster did not say that German agents were suspected. "Without sharing in any sensational views as to the manner in which sticking plaster or court-plaster became infected," stated the warning, the public was cautioned not to buy plasters from street peddlers or vendors.

In a statement issued on the same date, however, the State Department of Health, through the State Defense Council, recalled that stories had been in circulation that German agents were supposed to be attempting this method of fighting for the fatherland.

CRUSH TRAITORS, ROOT'S WARNING

ger plunged toward the heart of your country. It is terrible work, traitor, that you are doing, for upon your work hangs the possibility of the loss of a million American lives, and twenty billion dollars of American money.

Mr. Root, in reminding the Union League Club of some of its traditions, declared that the mental states of the men who are working to build up the Government of Russia reminded him of the days of 1863 when the Union League Club was established to help preserve the country.

"I wish to say to you," he said, "that I have never seen a more gallant fight with purer motives and nobler purpose than the few men who are controlling the Government of Russia today have been making against overwhelming odds for the freedom of their people and the safety of democracy in Russia and the world.

"German agents have produced an effect on the army of Russia that has made them generally along all the thousand-mile line unwilling to fight. They were tired of the war, as all the peoples of Europe are tired of the war. And when we reached Russia it seemed as if the game was over. Sagacious observers there said, 'According to all the rules of the game, Russia is out of the war.'

"A few men, thoughtful men, realized that the erection of a system of free self-government according to the life, the customs, the spirit of Russian life, could never be developed under the suzerainty of Germany. They realized that subjection to Germany meant the death of Russian liberty, and they set out to re-inspire in the Russian people a knowledge, a realization, a spirit of defense for their newly won freedom, and under the splendid leadership of Kerensky, under the wise and sagacious control of Nekrosoff and Tereshchenko and Tseretelli and a score of others, they gradually brought discipline back. Out of confusion and bewilderment they have brought a knowledge and a realization of duty, and Russia has found herself and has begun again to fight for the preservation of her own freedom.

Germans Appeal to Base Motives.

"Germany has appealed in Russia, as she has appealed in America and all over the world, to all the baser motives of mankind. She has appealed to cupidity, she has bought men in and out of office, right and left, by scores. She has expended millions of money in Russia, as she has here, to buy treason for her own benefit. She has appealed to passion and prejudice, to local interest that quarrels with the public good, to personal selfishness and ambitions. Wherever in Russia, wherever in this world a baser motive was to be found, Germany has developed a failing for it as swift and irresistible as any chemical combinations that we know of.

"Every base, every despicable, every damnable influence that tends to break down law and order and to frustrate noble purposes and great designs for good, she has employed. She has done it in Russia, as she has done it here, with diabolical ingenuity. But in one thing Germany has failed; she has been incapable of measuring, of understanding, the great moral forces that move mankind, the great moral force leading modern civilization to higher and better things. Germany could not understand that love of country and the passionate desire for Italia Irredenta would take Italy out of the Triple Alliance and range her against the German armies."

From the time the Commissioners left their quarters at the Plaza in the morning till they returned at night they had a day full of ovations. At many places crowds had assembled which burst into cheering when the Russian and American flags on the automobiles appeared and cheered more vigorously for Mr. Root and the other members of his party.

The head of the mission, in speeches addressed to each of the gatherings which welcomed him, told the story of the early days of the Russian revolution. He pictured the difficulties of the Russian people upon overthrowing a Government which was ruining the country, without being able to replace it offhand; he told of the gradual recovery and the present progressing stabilization of the nation, and paid a deep tribute, as did Mayor Mitchel, to Kerensky's work in upbuilding his nation.

Warning Against German Agents.

Mr. Root depicted briefly but effectively the destructive work of anarchists, of German agents, and of Russian refugees returning from America whose efforts were bent to overthrowing the republican governments of both the country they came to and the one they had left. And he reminded his hearers that the insidious propagandas which had wrought so much harm in Russia were working steadily in America and might do far-reaching damage unless sharply checked.

One of the notable incidents of the day was Colonel Roosevelt's speech at the luncheon following the meeting of the Chamber of Commerce, in which he outlined the kind of peace he thought America should demand—"a peace with victory," he phrased it afterward, which should safeguard democracy both without and within.

"When we pledged ourselves to make the world safe for democracy," he said, "we pledged ourselves to smash the Austrian and the Turkish Empires." He declared that Constantinople must be taken away from the Turk and given over either to Russia or to an autonomous Government. And he declared that a complement to this program was the safeguarding of industrial democracy at home, a movement in which even conservatives should take the lead to remove inequality of opportunity, while firmly opposing the standardization of inequality such as he declared was offered by the present organization of Socialism and the I. W. W.

GREETED AT CITY HALL BY MAYOR'S COMMITTEE

The day's ceremonies in honor of the Root mission began at the City Hall. In the Aldermanic Chamber, hung by Russian and American flags, the Mayor and his committee waited to greet the members of the commission. Mr. Root's colleagues, who accompanied him on the day's round of ceremonies were Major Gen. Hugh L. Scott, Rear Admiral J. H. Glennon, John R. Mott, Cyrus H. McCormick, Samuel R. Bertron, James Duncan, Charles Edward Russell, Colonel T. Bentley Mott, Colonel R. E. L. Michie, Basil Miles, Major Stanley Washburn, and Lieutenant Alva D. Bernhard.

The members of the Mayor's Committee were Oscar S. Straus, William A. Prendergast, Major Gen. J. Franklin Bell, Nichail M. Oustinoff, Theodore Roosevelt, Charles E. Hughes, Charles H. Boynton, Arthur Woods, Robert Adamson, George T. Wilson, Major Gen. Daniel Appleton, Captain William H. Haskell, Commander E. S. Kellogg, Basil Soldatenkoff, George McAneny, William Fellowes Morgan, George R. Sheldon, Daniel Guggenheim, John G. Agar, Walter Scott, Leon G. Godley, George Featherstone, and Richard Patterson, Jr.

In greeting the commission Mayor Mitchel said: "We have understood that in Russia there is being tried out today the effectiveness and the future of democracy, and we have known that you went to Russia for the people of the United States to hearten the people of that great nation in the undertaking. You have been able to strengthen the hands of Kerensky in his great work, and you have contributed thereby to the success of the allied nations in this war."

The Mayor then introduced Mr. Straus to welcome the commission on behalf of the citizens of New York.

America's Welcome to Russia.

"It will ever be remembered," said Mr. Straus, "that America was first among the nations to extend its official recognition to the new Russia and to welcome her into the family of democratic nations. The President deemed it of the first importance to interpret the spirit of our great democracy, with its trials, struggles, and triumphs, to our youngest co-partner and ally, and he selected from among all of our citizens the foremost of our constructive statesmen, and placed him at the head of this important and extraordinary commission."

He told of the conviction of some Americans early in the war that in it America had no part, and went on: "The past three years have clearly revealed that the Prussian eagle, like the Romanoff eagle, is not a symbol of light, but a vulture of darkness in the domain of freedom, and that wherever they wing their flight international anarchy and moral desolation follow in their wake. The Russian people have brought their bird of prey to earth, and, unless the German people will profit by the logic of events and destroy the vulture that is eating out their souls, the war must go on to the bitter end.

"Let our people not forget that this is an American war no less than it is a French, a British and an Italian war. It is a war for freedom against the common enemy, the treacherous betrayer of the world's trust, and no one can be loyal to America who is not at the same time the determined enemy of the foes of freedom."

Then the Mayor presented the National Arts Club's medal of valor, awarded to Mr. Root for his acceptance of what the Mayor called "the very real hazards of this mission." In replying, Mr. Root observed that this was the first fruit of the mission which had not been shared with perfect equality among its members.

Mission Absolutely Harmonious.

"The duty which was imposed upon the special diplomatic mission to Russia," Mr. Root continued, "was one of very great importance and significance, but its performance required no extraordinary qualities and involved no extraordinary merit. The way was plain, and we had, each one of us, merely to do our bit as best we could in the discharge of a simple and imperative duty. We did the best we knew how. We did it with the most perfect harmony and with whatever strength comes from united action. Drawn from all parts of the country, selected with an evident purpose to represent different points of view of the American people—a soldier, a sailor, a manufacturer, a retired capitalist, a banker, a labor leader, a Socialist, a New York lawyer—we all were absolutely united in our conception of the spirit of our mission and in the union of effort to perform out duty.

"It is not the first time that the importance of the cause has been transferred to the individuals who have represented the cause. It was a great cause, it was a great mission. There never was in history a people finding itself in a more difficult and perilous position than the people of Russia found themselves in a few months ago.

"They had been accustomed to receive orders and to obey. They had no habits of thought which would enable them, the great body of them, to evolve institutions through which to govern. And so this vast people which had never been permitted to speak or write or think upon self-government was left confused, bewildered, gathering in little groups in aimless and endless discussion. Then came the propaganda of the extreme Socialists and Anarchists, of the Internationals, the analogue in Russia to the I. W. W. of this country; the men whose model is that the worst is the best; the men who seek to destroy the industrial organization of the world, to destroy the nationalism of the world with a far-off dream in its place of a universal brotherhood to govern all the world in harmony and peace.

"These men, aided by thousands who had swarmed back to Russia from America, thousands who returned vilifying and abusing the land that gave them refuge, gave them security, gave them liberty to think and speak and act; these men returned to Russia, declaring America to be as tyrannous as the Czar, and calling for the destruction, not for the setting up, of competent government in Russia, but for the destruction of all Governments—of America, of England, of France, of Italy, and, incidentally, of Germany. They poisoned the minds of the workingmen and of peasants and of soldiers. Their definite and distinct object was to destroy the whole industrial and national system of Russia. And they had the power in Petrograd, for there at the beginning the garrison adhered to them.

German Propaganda Enters.

"Into this condition of vast confusion and bewilderment was thrust a great German propaganda. Thousands of German agents swarmed over the line immediately upon the coming of the revolution. They awakened all the pro-Germans in Russia. They spent money like water. Millions upon millions were used. They bought people; they bribed people; they bought newspapers; they established newspapers; they circulated literature; they went to and fro among the troops at the front. They said, 'Why go on fighting? This was the Czar's war; it was not your war; why go on? Let us have peace.'

"And the people of Russia, the soldiers of Russia, were wearied of war, as all the rest of Europe, and peace seemed so desirable to them that for the moment it seemed as if this German propaganda had captured Russia, had done what her arms never could do, captured Russia; and they made common cause with the internationals, the extremists. These men who were preaching a great world union of human freedom made common cause with the bribing and insidious agents of the German autocracy to overcome the freedom of Russia, and against these influences, with this attempt, with untrained minds, to build up a new republic, with the enemy at its gates, and the insidious influences sapping all their power, a few men in Russia made the bravest, noblest, most gallant fight of our time for the safety of human freedom and the building up of free self-government in their country.

"It was the function of this mission not merely to carry a message of friendship and good feeling from the United States to Russia. As events developed before we reached Russia, it became the function of this group of American citizens to carry to the people of Russia a message of faith in democracy, to say to them: 'Take heart, be of good cheer; faint not, despair not. We say to you from the hundred million free people of America, who for 140 years have been fighting the battles of democracy, that there lives a power in democracy that will overcome all evil, and it is with you, and with it you will triumph.'

"And since our departure from Petrograd processes that began before have been going on along the lines that were explained to us before we left, and the results that the Government then had in mind have been worked out and are there today, with Kerensky, that man of conviction, of intense purpose, of tremendous personality, devoted to his great cause to the last drop of his blood. Kerensky, who, when we were there, was agreed upon by the members of the Government for his present position, now rules the destinies of Russia and with him are wise, prudent, sagacious men of affairs.

"And so we have come back with faith in Russia, faith in the qualities of character that are the essential tests of competency for self-government, faith in the purpose, the persistency, and the power of the Russian people to keep themselves free, and they know that they cannot be free; that they cannot build up a structure of government based upon and conforming to the life and character and genius of the Russian people if Germany is allowed to dominate in their land."

Mr. Roosevelt Denounces Traitors.

The last speaker was Colonel Roosevelt. "This is not a time," he said, "when we can do our duty by an exhibition of that pawnbroker patriotism which consists in financing a gunman to save a pawnbroker's life. Let each one of us do all he can; and make the public servants who devote their whole energy to the detriment of this nation, nominally in the interests of pacifism and morality feel that they are unhung traitors to the United States in the view of every honest American."

REGENERATE RUSSIA HAILED AT LUNCHEON

After the reception the party drove to the Chamber of Commerce Building at 65 Liberty Street. Here they were received by officers of the Chamber, headed by the President, Eugenius H. Outerbridge, and escorted to the Assembly Hall. In welcoming the Commission, Mr. Outerbridge spoke of the difficulties which the makers of the Russian republic were confronting, and which called for the sincerest sympathy and the fullest aid for that country from America.

"The mission," he said, "was intentionally separated from any concern with business, with trade, investment, or enterprise, or money making of any kind. This was done carefully, and it was insisted upon strenuously by the mission itself in Russia, in order that our message to the Government and people of Russia, might be free from any suspicion or color of selfish purpose.

"The extraordinary ease with which the Czar's Government was removed was due not merely to the fact that it was an autocracy, but also to the fact that it did not govern efficiently; it was not up to the job; it had allowed Russia to drift into a position where there was vast confusion and they were on the verge of bankruptcy, and the Government had become, practically, merely a government of suppression, a government of negatives that ceased to lead the people, so that the Czar and the bureaucracy were slipped off as easily as a crab sheds its hard shell when the proper time comes.

Hand of Germany at Work.

"Now, into that state of affairs there came intervention by that malevolent power which is intermeddling with the affairs of every nation upon earth, stirring up discord, stimulating, feeding, financing all the forces of evil—doing it here among us now—that power that finds its account in alliance with all evil passions, all the sordid impulses of humanity in every nation in the world, entered into Russia. Thousands of agents poured over the border immediately upon the revolution.

"Notwithstanding all this, in a country with no central government that had power to force its decrees, in a country with no police, a country in which the sanction and moral obligation of the laws had disappeared with the disappearance of the Czar, there reigned order to a higher degree than has existed in the United States of America during this period.

"In the first enthusiasm for freedom in the liberation of political prisoners a great many ordinary criminal prisoners were also released and they went about and committed some depredations which of course all found their way into the newspapers, but, even with that, the general average of peace and order, of respect for property and life in Russia was higher than could reasonably be expected from any 180,000,000 people in the world under any Government.

"Now that extraordinary phenomenon called for a study, a careful study, not merely from the newspapers or from talking with Government oficials, but by countless serious interviews and conversations with men of all grades and stripes and callings and conditions of life, and those studies satisfied all the members of this mission that the Russian people possessed to a very high degree qualities that are necessary for successful self-government. They have self-control equaled in few countries of the world. They have persistency of purpose; they have a most kindly and ingrained respect—not only respect—regard for the rights of others. They will not willingly do an injustice to any one, and that sense of justice carries with it a broad character. They have a noble idealism which is developed and exhibited in the minds that are enlarged by education, and they have a strong sense of the mission of liberty in the world, and they have an extraordinary capacity for concerted action.

"If their character is unequal to the task, all the aid of all the great countries in the world cannot give them their freedom. Freedom must find its foundation, its sure foundation, within the people themselves and we think the Russians have that sure foundation.

Confident of Financial Future.

"Now there is great financial difficulty in Russia; the old régime brought the country into a very involved and critical condition financially; there is great disturbance industrially. But when I have met people, and I did, a great many, who shake their heads over the industrial and financial conditions there, I have thought always, with a cheerful reassurance, of what a fine character are the people, and I have remembered that our dollar in the civil war was as low as the Russian rouble, and I haven't any doubt that the character of the Russian will pull up their finances just as the character of America pulled up our finances.

"No one can tell what the outcome will be, but this is certain, that Russia, tired of the war, worn and harried by war; Russia, which has lost 7,000,000 of her sons, every village in mourning, every family bereaved, Russia has again taken up the heavy burden; she has restored the discipline of her army; she has put away the bright vision of peace and rest, and returned yet again to the sacrifice and the suffering of war in order that she might continue free. Ah! If we loved freedom, if we are true children of our fathers, and cherish their ideals, confidence and hope will go out from us to those brave Russians who are fighting our battles as they are fighting their own, and we will uphold the hands of our Government and encourage the spirit of our people to do our duty beyond measure, to help them in their great and noble work.'

At the close of Mr. Root's address to the Chamber the audience adjourned to a buffet lunch, while the members of the commission and the Mayor's Committee, with officers of the society, lunched in private in one of the rooms above. After the luncheon Colonel Roosevelt roused the enthusiasm of the audience by his rejection of the idea of any compromise peace.

"I remember three or four years ago reading a pamphlet in Germany issued by a member of the German General Staff," he said, "describing in detail the methods to be followed by the German Army in the event of an invasion of the United States. I remember reading about a year ago, while we were still neutral—the neutrality that Pontius Pilate might have envied—reading from Reventlow, and one or two others, the fact that they intended that the United States should pay the expense of this war. We are fighting for America; we are fighting for our own liberty, for our own rights; and while we want to help in every way, with railroad experts, with the Red Cross, with food, with cargo ships, with money, we want to put our own fighting men into the line, or we will not deserve to rank among free men when the war is ended.

"It is the man with sword girt on thigh that ultimately must win the respect of mankind. Let him never draw it in a foul cause, or undeservedly against the weak, but he is beneath contempt if he hesitates to draw it against the strong when the strong may wrong him. Woe to us if we don't do it. That is our issue, but that is not the only issue. We are fighting to make democracy safe in the world. It is our business to turn that phrase into a fact. We can only do it by understanding what it means concretely.

"Minimize the chances of war by minimizing the injustices which must be overcome. And then let me say also that, having done that, it remains for us to make democracy safe in our own country, and we can make it safe in our own country only along the lines that the wise Russian radicals have followed in the last six months—the lines that you described, Mr. Root. We can make democracy safe in this country only by going forward so far in the direction of radicalism as to remove all just complaints of the man who has not had his fair share of the good things of this life."

SAYS THE HIGH FLEET GOES TO SEA OFTEN

NEVER VENTURE VERY FAR

Kaiser's Sailors Kept in Dark Regarding Our Part in War, Are Told We Are Preparing Against Japan.

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 15.—The German fleet, according to an informant of The Associated Press who recently had been at Wilhelmshaven, justifies its name of High Sea Fleet by running out from Wilhelmshaven with considerable regularity, some times two or three times a week. The fleet only makes short trips, however, and never goes very far out to sea.

The High Sea Fleet usually leaves Wilhelmshaven in the evening and is back by early dinner time between 11 o'clock and noon on the following day. On a few occasions it has remained out longer, but only because thick weather set in, making a passage through the German mine fields dangerous and forcing it to remain in the shelter of Heligoland until the weather cleared.

A greater part of the time the battleships and cruisers comprising the battle fleet are anchored in security behind mine fields and nets and a triple line of pickets protecting the entrance to the base. Once in March the fleet had a considerable period of enforced repose, when British mine layers, taking advantage of thick weather, sowed the coastal waters so full of mines that the German vessels were unable to leave the harbor.

The enlisted personnel of the fleet knew nothing of American preparations for active participation in the war. The men were told by their officers that America's declaration of war on Germany was only issued as a cover to preparations against Japan and that American troops would not be used in Europe.

The German losses in submarines, according to the informant, has been twenty to twenty-two boats, this figure apparently covering the losses since the start of the unrestricted submarine warfare campaign. Four additional boats are said to have been lost in the Mediterranean.

Germany now has almost 300 submarines, the newest boats being of the big seagoing type and armed with a six-inch gun. This armament appeared on boats commissioned in the middle of June, the earlier boats of this latest, or D. E. E. type, and the preceding C. E. E. type being armed with a pair of 105 millimeter guns, approximately four-inch guns, fore and aft.

The 300 submarines, however, include a large number of the so-called canal boat type, built for passage through the Belgian canals to Zeebrugge, and which are of inferior armament and a smaller radius of action.

CONVERT DEUTSCHLAND INTO WAR SUBMARINE

Undersea Boat, Which Visited Here, May Be Sent to Operate in the Pacific.

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 15.—The German commercial submarine Deutschland, which visited the United States before that country entered the war, has been converted into a war submarine, according to German fleet gossip reaching The Associated Press. The Deutschland has been fitted with six torpedo tubes.

The submarine, it is said, may soon leave for the Pacific to operate against traffic from San Francisco. The U-boat was to have started activities some time ago, but an explosion on board while the vessel was on a trial trip made necessary repairs which took considerable time.

10 DIE ON SUNKEN STEAMER.

Norwegian Foreign Office Tells of Destruction of Two More Ships.

LONDON, Aug. 15.—According to a dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph from Copenhagen, announcement is made by the Norwegian Foreign Office that the Norwegian steamer Falkland has been sunk in the North Sea. Ten persons were killed.

The steamer Capella was also sunk. The crew was saved.

The Falkland was a vessel of 4,877 tons and was built at Glasgow in 1897. The vessel was owned by a Christiania company.

USED NORWEGIAN SHIP AS DECOY FOR 16 DAYS

Twelve members of the crew of the Norwegian steamship Benguela, who arrived yesterday on a Spanish liner at an Atlantic port, told how the German submarine commander used their vessel as a decoy for sixteen days before he finally sunk her off the Irish coast on July 14. According to the sailors, the Benguela was attacked early on the morning of June 28 by a U-boat of the latest type, which fired a shot across her bows. After the Captain had stopped the engines and told the chief officer to have the two lifeboats lowered away, he received orders from the submarine commander to stand by with his men while the Benguela was examined. This inspection occupied over an hour and the German sailors took away two boatloads of provisions.

The crew of the steamship, who had been lying off on their oars, waiting for permission to row away, then were told to return to their ship. They were accompanied by ten armed Germans under the command of two junior officers, also carrying rifles and revolvers. The captain of the Benguela was instructed to steam after the submarine, and if the latter craft was compelled to submerge, he was told the two officers would take command and instruct him what to do under the circumstances.

Day after day the steamship and the submarine, which was just awash on the starboard side, cruised about, waiting for merchantmen to appear, but none came. The German commander sent out frequent S O S calls for aid by wireless from the decoy ship, but did not receive a single response.

On July 14 the Benguela had worked down toward the Irish coast from the north of Scotland, and the submarine commander decided that he was wasting time and would do more work without the aid of the Norwegian steamship. Bombs were placed in the hold of the Benguela and the crew were told to jump into their boats and row away as fast as they could. They got clear just before the bombs exploded and the freighter went to the bottom. Three hours later the crew were rescued by a British destroyer.

The Norwegians said that the U-boat was about 1,700 tons gross and was built in 1915 at Stettin. She was about 275 feet long, had two three-inch guns on deck and carried a crew of seventy men. The commander told the Captain of the Benguela that he and his men had been away from their base for five months. During that time they had been operating around the British Isles and obtained provisions and fuel from the vessels before they sank them. New supplies of torpedoes and bombs were sent to them from Zeebrugge by old submarines of a smaller type.

The same Spanish steamship brought five members of the crew of the Norwegian bark Saraa, which was sunk off the Azores on June 29. The crew of the submarine saw a hog in a pen on the maindeck of the bark near the galley, and in their haste to seize him they let the porker go. He ran squealing around the decks and dashed through the galley followed by the hungry German sailors, who finally captured the pig in the foc'sle and took him on board the submarine, much to the relief of their commander, who had been signaling frantically for their return, as a warship was in sight on the horizon steaming very fast toward their craft. The Saraa blew up and was scattered over the surface of the sea and the U-boat was submerged. The crew were taken on a fishing steamship to a port in Spain.

CONFIRMS CAPTURE OF NAVAL GUNNERS

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—The Navy Department today received official dispatches confirming the capture by a German submarine on Aug. 6 of Captain Oliver and five members of the naval crew of the American steamer Campana, which was sunk by a German submarine on that date. An inquiry is being made by the State Department to ascertain the fate of these men and the character of the treatment accorded them by the German Government.

The five members of the armed guard of the steamship Campana who were taken prisoners by the German submarine when the Campana was sunk are:

Stephen Jacob, seaman second class, Pittsburgh; Ray Roop, boatswain's mate second class, Boyne City, Mich.; Charles Levan Kline, gunner's mate third class, Reading, Penn.

The other members of the naval armed guard, who were landed safely at a French port, are:

ASSERT EMBARGO WILL RUIN HOLLAND

Dutch Commissioners Predict Economic Disaster Unless We Supply Grain to the Nation.

MIGHT TURN TO GERMANY

No Other Alternative but to Trade Commodities with the Teutons, Members Assert.

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 15.—"If we fail to persuade the American Government to permit a continuance of the supply of grain it will mean misery and economic ruin for Holland," unanimously declared the members of the official Dutch Mission, who are expected to sail for the United States this week and who were interviewed today in a body by The Associated Press.

Whether such an eventuality would ultimately force Holland into the war, the members of the mission did not care to prophesy. This, they contended, depended on the capacity of the Dutch people to bear privations and on unforeseeable circumstances, but it would manifestly render Holland's position most serious, and would make her more than ever dependent upon the Central Powers, to whom she would presumably be obliged to turn to try to get grain, as well as the present essential, coal, necessarily in exchange for equivalent concessions, and in which case the American aim of stopping Dutch food exports toward Germany would still be defeated.

The principal spokesman of the mission was Joost van Vollenhoven, the former managing director and still a director of the Netherlands Overseas Trust, and managing director of the Netherlands Bank. He hinted at the conclusions Holland would reluctantly have to draw regarding the overseas trade for the future. and said that hitherto his country always reckoned that she could safely lean on that trade, no matter what happened to her eastern supplies. The members of the mission, however, in no wise anticipated such a failure of their efforts. On the contrary they were hopeful of success and said they would leave no stone unturned to achieve it.

Joost van Vollenhoven, who is an expert on Holland's commercial and economic affairs, was the man who successfully conducted negotiations in London when Dutch ships were held up at British ports, and he and his colleagues pin great faith on personal contact to clear up the misunderstanding between Holland and the United States, and to arrive at an arrangement.

Herr van Vollenhoven said he thought America, where the rights of small States had been so championed, would not do anything to deprive a small State of the possibility of maintaining a free existence.

Questioned regarding what Holland was prepared to concede for the privilege of receiving provisions the members of the mission spoke guardedly, but their remarks justify the deduction that the Netherlands would be agreeable to the chartering of part of her mercantile fleet. The one anxiety on this head was lest Holland should be asked to do anything calculated to mix her up with the war and embroil her with Germany, hence the wish was expressed that any such ships should be employed outside European waters.

Herr van Vollenhoven expressly stated that the Netherlands Government would welcome a scheme like that of taking over the Belgian relief shipping service.

The members of the mission emphatically declared that, while Holland's supplies of the products of her soil to both sides were automatically decreasing, it was impossible to alter the present fixed division arrangement, in the sense of a smaller percentage going to Germany and a larger amount to the Entente countries, as this would immediately be branded as unimpartial and unneutral by Germany and would expose the country to the greatest dangers. The only possible course in this direction would be to reduce or cease exports to both groups of belligerents, the commissioners said.

Herr van Vollenhoven expressed the opinion that in view of the supplies obtained in Rumania the Teuton countries would not be disabled if food imports from the western neutrals were cut off. He said that disablement could be achieved only by cutting off oil, copper, and similar vital supplies.

Asked why Holland could not make herself independent of Germany respecting coal by getting supplies from England, the members of the mission said that apart from British conditions the shipment of 350,000 tons monthly, which is the amount of the reduced ration recently allowed by Germany, it was quite impracticable.

Regarding the pending negotiations with Germany on the coal question The Associated Press was assured that Germany was not aiming at a departure from Holland's present export diversion agreement in her favor, but in view of German labor shortage the coal supply was likely to be further reduced.

Holland would like, the delegates said, the full ration of 75,000 tons of grain monthly from the United States. They declared there were practically no stocks in this country and that at the present rate of consumption the new crop would last only two months. The bread ration would soon be drastically reduced if the food situation did not improve, they said.

ALL DOUBTS DISSIPATED, SAYS JAPANESE ENVOY

A PACIFIC PORT, Aug. 15.—All doubts which may have existed between Japan and the United States have been cleared away in the three days that have elapsed since a Japanese mission landed here, said Viscount K. Ishii, Ambassador Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary, in an address here tonight at a dinner which he gave to officials of the State Department, army and navy officers, and others assigned to welcome the mission.

"You have convinced my Government and people that the heart of the great West is all right," he went on, "and that friendly co-operation from now on is to be the keynote of all relations between America and Japan."

"The unstinted honors which you have extended to this mission are a notice to all the world that America and Japan are standing side by side in the great issues of the day.

"You have spoken the word here which binds us in harmony of purpose. Your action clears away many a doubt and misunderstanding on the part of the people of both countries as to our mutual aims and aspirations. The hand of friendship, which you have extended to me personally, will be accepted by the people of Japan as a tender of sincere good-will toward the Sovereign and the people whom I have the honor to represent.

"You have made the work of this Misison easier, and I will proceed to the seat of Government in Washington, buoyed up with the assurance of America's friendly spirit. Your generous attitude makes it possible for every fair-minded man to believe that there are no pending questions between America and Japan which, approached in this spirit, are not susceptible of honorable and fair adjustment."

SWISS MISSION ARRIVES.

Will Discuss Embargo at Washington—New Minister Arrives Also.

Among the passengers who arrived yesterday at an Atlantic port, on a Spanish liner, were Dr. Hans Sulzer, the new Minister from Switzerland to succeed Dr. Paul Ritter, and a Swiss commission, composed of National Counselor John Suz, Colonel Staenpfi, and Professor William Rappard. Members of the commission said that they were on their way to Washington to discuss the economic conditions in Switzerland in connection with the Embargo Act, but declined to go into details.

Dr. Sulzer, the new Minister, said that Switzerland was dependent upon the United States and the Entente countries in Europe for all but 15 per cent. of the food supplies for her people. He went on to say that there was now a well-organized, efficient committee in Switzerland representing the Allies and that its chief object was to keep a strict watch on imports and exports so that no important foodstuffs should reach Germany. Certain rules had been made by the committee, the Minister continued, and these were being strictly observed.

Dr. Sulzer, the new Minister, said Louis Junod, the Swiss Consul; Dr. C. Escher, and Dr. Hubscher from the Legation at Washington, and thirteen prominent Swiss from Eastern cities.

LESS LIGHT FOR GERMANY.

Coal Shortage Forces a Reduction in Production of Electricity.

LONDON, Aug. 15.—Owing to the coal shortage in Germany a general reduction in the amount of electricity made in the empire has been decided upon.

A dispatch from Frankfort by way of Amsterdam to the Exchange Telegraph Company, says the reduction chiefly concerns lighting, but industries generally will only be able to obtain 40 to 60 per cent. of their normal requirements.

FALKLAND SURVIVOR HOME.

Lieutenant Scherik Rejoins German Navy After Eight Months' Trip.

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 15.—Naval Lieutenant Otto Scherik, one of the few remaining survivors of the German Pacific squadron which was defeated by the British off the Falkland Islands in December, 1914, has succeeded in returning to Germany, according to the Zeitung of Eisleben, Saxony.

The Lieutenant's journey from South America occupied eight months and was accomplished by great difficulties. On arriving in Germany, he immediately rejoined the navy.

REFUSE GERMAN CURRENCY.

Dutch Hold Up Several Million Eggs at Border, Demanding Gold.

LONDON, Aug. 15.—According to Dutch newspapers, several million eggs destined for Germany have been held up by the Dutch authorities on the German frontier, says a dispatch from Amsterdam to the Exchange Telegraph Company.

The Germans promised to pay for the eggs in gold, but at the last moment offered paper money, which the Dutch refused to accept.

Greek Treasury at Washington.

ATHENS, Aug. 15.—A bill has been introduced in the Greek Chamber abolishing honorary Consular posts in the United States, creating five Consulates General, and instituting a National Treasury at the Legation in Washington to support Greek philanthropic and patriotic associations. The Foreign Minister, who presented the measure, declared it showed the interest the Liberal Government felt in the Greek colonies in America, which had done and would do so much for Greece.

A two line advertisement, costing one dollar, will serve the purpose of a journey to New York and save time, trouble and the expense the journey entails. Country merchants needing goods should dispatch a short telegram to The New York Times stating requirements and next morning the manufacturing and wholesaling world will read the advertisement on the Business Page. FUSION FILLS SLATE AS IT WAS PLANNED

Cropsey Statement Still Predicted, with Threat of a Rival Ticket.

SOME DEMOCRATS PROTEST

Kings Members Denounce a Republican Leaders' "Deal," but Swasey and Rafferty Win.

Disregarding any threat that Supreme Court Justice James C. Cropsey might yet enter the Republican primary as a candidate for the mayoralty nomination against Mayor Mitchel, the Fusion Committee of 270 went ahead yesterday and accepted the Brooklyn slate that had been prepared two days before by the Fusion leaders and the faction headed by Jacob A. Livingston, chief Cropsey lieutenant.

Lewis M. Swasey, Republican leader of the Seventeenth Assembly District, and a Livingston follower, was selected as the Fusion candidate for Sheriff of Kings County, and John T. Rafferty was chosen as the candidate for Register. Rafferty is Republican leader of the Twelfth District, and is a Calder-Kracke man.

The arrangement was made upon the tacit understanding that Mr. Livingston was to use his influence to "call off" Justice Cropsey, and when it was hinted on Tuesday night that Mr. Cropsey might "take the bit in his teeth" and run anyway, it looked as if the Swasey-Rafferty agreement might be dropped. Under the direction of George W. Wickersham, Chairman of the Fusion Committee, however, the Nominating Committee went ahead yesterday and accepted Swasey and Rafferty, and decided to pay no attention to anything that Justice Cropsey might do. The Fusion leaders do not believe that Justice Cropsey has any intention of entering the race, and they are willing to let Mr. Livingston down as gracefully as possible. They insist that the Brooklyn jurist was eliminated as a possible candidate on Monday, when Controller Travis turned against him.

Cropsey Statement Predicted.

Despite the idea of Cropsey's intentions held by the Fusion chieftains, Republican leaders in Brooklyn said last night that they were convinced that Justice Cropsey would announce his candidacy today. There was considerable activity among the Cropsey men all day and last evening an important conference was held at the law office of Senator Burlingame, at 391 Fulton Street. Justice Cropsey, it is known, was at this conference, along with Mr. Livingston, Senator Burlingame, and John T. McGovern, who handled the Cropsey petitions.

It was said after the conference that a Cropsey borough ticket would be put in the field, with State Senator Charles C. Lockwood heading it as candidate for Borough President, Lewis M. Swasey for Sheriff, and Coroner Ernest C. Wagner for Register. It was said that Justice Cropsey would issue a statement at 5 o'clock this evening formally announcing his intention to make the race.

Brooklyn Slate Assailed.

The Brooklyn slate was not adopt yesterday by the Fusionists without an acrimonious debate in which several Democratic Brooklyn members of the Fusion Committee denounced the Livingston-Calder-Kracke "deal" and demanded that a Democrat should have a place on the ticket. A. W. Eastman, an independent Democrat and member of the City Democracy, led the opposition to Swasey and Rafferty.

"I am opposed to this ticket," said Mr. Eastman. "This is not a Fusion Committee so far as Kings County is concerned. It is a straight Republican ticket, and is the result of deals among factions of the Republican Party to settle their own differences. We left the Democratic Party because we opposed certain actions on the part of our leaders, and it makes it no sweeter to us that those leaders are now Republicans. Borough President Pounds is a factional Republican of the Calder-Kracke persuasion, and he has appointed Republicans only to office. His office is filled with Republican district leaders, and now you ask us to support two more of them.

"Why should you deny us place on your ticket when Kings County is Democratic according to the enrollment? You haven't given us men of any higher type than we got from the Democratic leaders. I am opposed to this ticket because the men are not of the Mitchel type. We are for Mayor Mitchel first, last, and always, but we don't propose to have a Republican ticket foisted on us in the name of Fusion."

Elmer Sammis, another Brooklyn Democrat, said that the Brooklyn Republicans would support the ticket because the one object was to keep the Board of Estimate out of the control of Tammany Hall. He was followed by Charles Jerome Edwards, an Independent Democrat, who said:

"We will vote for the ticket, but it will be with the mental reservation that when it comes to fixing up the Judiciary ticket in the Second Department we will demand another Democrat."

It was understood that the Brooklyn Democratic members of the committee will insist that a Democrat be selected for the Supreme Court Bench in place of Justice Fawcett, a Republican, who is already being considered for a renomination by the Fusionists. Mr. Wickersham tried to console the fractious Brooklyn Democrats by saying that the committee was merely trying to reconcile all elements, and hoped to get the dissatisfied Republicans back in the fold. Robert F. Craig, also a Brooklyn Independent Democrat, broke in heatedly as follows:

"If anybody wants to know anything about framing up a rank ticket he ought to come to this committee. If John F. Hylan is named by the Democrats he will sweep the city. I want to tell you that I am disgusted with the way you have pulled this thing off."

Bassett Warns Fusionists.

Mr. Craig was supported by Edward M. Bassett, former Public Service Commissioner, and Chairman of the Fusion Platform Committee, who said:

"We're not making a Fusion ticket in Kings. It's a straight Republican organization ticket. I wish to say to these men in Brooklyn that they are heading toward the defeat of Fusion this year, or four years hence. They are trying to cloak a Republican partisan Government under the name of Fusion. Maybe the damage has already been done. The practice of trading in offices tends to defeat non-partisanship in the city."

Charles E. Hughes, Jr., responding to Mr. Bassett, said that four years ago he had been exactly of the same mind for an entirely opposite reason. At that time, Mr. Hughes said, Republicans were forced to accept practically an all-Democratic ticket.

At this point William Hamlin Childs, Chairman of the Executive Committee, took a hand and said that the committee had had great difficulty at the outset in overcoming a strong sentiment among Republicans for a straight Republican ticket this year, and he thought the committee had succeeded. He said that a study of the ticket would show that there were more Democrats on it, in proportion to their power, than there were Republicans. All further discussion was then cut off by a vote being taken. The ticket as made up was adopted, and later the full Fusion Committee approved it.

Walter W. Price of Richmond then said that he had had trouble in getting the Richmond Borough Committee together, and therefore he was not ready to report on the ticket for that borough. Chairman Childs announced that the Executive Committee and the Judicary Committee would hold a meeting this morning, at which there would be a free discussion on candidates for the Judiciary in Kings and Queens. It was decided before the meeting adjourned to leave all the other vacancies on the Fusion ticket to the Executive Committee to fill.

With the Queens Fusion situation cleared up, Robert W. Higbie, who was chosen as the Fusion candidate for Borough President against Connolly, said he would accept the designation and would make a hard fight.

"Mr. Connolly is a part of the Tammany organization," said Mr. Higbie, "and we will attempt in this election to put Tammany out of Queens. Connolly has antagonized Mayor Mitchel and the other members of the Board of Estimate and for that reason Queens has not received what it is entitled to."

District Attorney Denis O'Leary of Queens, who was indorsed by the Fusionists for another term, said:

"I will accept the designation which is a recognition of the work done in my office in the past three years."

Borough President Connolly said:

"I have already been placed in nomination by a committee of leading citizens and I shall be a candidate against Mr. Higbie. I will leave it to the people to compare my record with Mr. Higbie's."

strength from the moment of his nomination and will grow to great proportions as election day approaches.

"There is no reason for any Democrat to vote against him. He is independent, forceful, able, and extremely popular. He knows the issues and will be an ideal advocate of them. It will be a clean-cut fight along party lines, with all factions of the Republican Party lining up with Mayor Mitchel and all factions of the Democratic Party lining up with Judge Hylan.

"His nomination will be looked upon with great favor by the democracy all over the nation, and we may congratulate ourselves that his nomination will wrest from the Republican Party the control of this, the greatest Democratic stronghold in America."

Representative Murray Hulbert sent a telegram of congratulation to Judge Hylan yesterday upon his selection, in which he said:

"Your election is a foregone conclusion. The selection of a man of your humble origin merely because of conspicuous public service in municipal affairs proves once again that the Democracy is truly the party of the people, honoring men of integrity and merit who can be trusted to carry out its principles to beneficial accomplishment. Your candidacy is one that will appeal to and deserves the loyal support of every real Democrat."

O'Loughlin Rebels in Kings.

The primary plans of Leader McCooey in Kings were upset yesterday by an eleventh hour move on the part of Register Edward T. O'Loughlin. Mr. O'Loughlin, who is the Independence League leader of Brooklyn, had been slated for a renomination for Register by the Democrats. Leader McCooey had picked Representative Daniel J. Griffin for Borough President and Municipal Court Justice Jacob S. Strahl for Sheriff.

The Democratic Executive Committee was to have met yesterday afternoon to ratify this ticket. As the members were assembling word came to Mr. McCooey that Mr. O'Loughlin had kicked over the traces. He came out with a flat refusal to run again for Register, which office he has held for two terms. He asserted that because of his record he was entitled to a "promotion," which, from his point of view, should take the form of a designation for Borough President.

"I'm tired of holding down the same old job," said the Register. "If I don't get the Democratic nomination for Borough President, I will go on the election day ballot by petition on my own ticket."

Mr. McCooey was greatly disturbed by Mr. O'Loughlin's action. The meeting of the Executive Committee was put over until today in the hope that the Register might be "persuaded" from his threatened course. The belief was that this would be a hard task, and it was thought not unlikely that because of his vote-getting ability O'Loughlin would get the place demanded on the ticket.

The selection of Charles L. Craig for Controller by the Democratic Fusion Committee was not made last night without a fight by a number of the Tammany members, who proposed Assistant District Attorney William Harman Black for the office. John H. Delaney, former State Commissioner of Efficiency and Economy, brought forward Mr. Black's name, but it was immediately opposed. Joseph J. O'Donohue accused Tammany of trying to control the Committee. He said that while every consideration should be shown to the Tammany organization because of its strength and influence, the Committee could not afford to have it said that the members were controlled by Charles F. Murphy. After this Mr. Craig's selection was made unanimous.

William F. Schneider, Chairman of the Committee, was authorized to appoint a committee on notification, with representatives from each borough. He was also authorized to appoint a law committee to arrange for the circulation of petitions to put the candidates' names on the primary ballot.

It was said last night that City Court Justice John V. McAvoy, whose term expires Dec. 31, may be the Tammany designation for Justice of the Supreme Court to oppose Justice Ordway, selected by the Fusionists. Mr. McAvoy has been on the City Court bench for several years, and is a relative of Thomas F. McAvoy, Tammany leader.

The Bronx Democrats selected their ticket last night, at a meeting of the Executive Committee of the County Democratic organization. Henry Bruckner, Representative from the Twenty second Congress District, was chosen for President of the Borough; Francis Martin, as District Attorney, to succeed himself; Assemblyman Joseph M. Callahan for County Clerk, and Edward Polak to succeed himself as Register

COLONEL PRAISES MITCHEL.

"The Best Mayor We Have Ever Had," He Asserts.

Colonel Theodore Roosevelt paid an unexpected compliment to Mayor Mitchel and Police Commissioner Woods at the private luncheon given to Elihu Root at the Chamber of Commerce yesterday. E. H. Outerbridge, President of the organization, introduced Mayor Mitchel as "the next Mayor." Colonel Roosevelt, who was sitting near the Mayor, added loud enough for everyone to hear: "And the best Mayor we have ever had." There was applause at the Colonel's remark, and the Mayor bowed his acknowledgments. Later the Colonel said to Mr. Mitchel:

"I have never been Mayor, but I have been a Police Commissioner—New York remembers it with horror to this day, because they voted unanimously to take me away—and I wish to say that from my knowledge of the Police Department the best Police Commissioner we have ever had has been your man Woods. If there is any error that you or Mr. Woods have made, it is because the administration of the City of New York comes second in difficulty only to the administration of the United States."

STOTESBURY TO RESIGN.

Adjutant General to Enter Campaign on Fusion Ticket.

ALBANY, Aug. 15.—Adjt. Gen. Louis W. Stotesbury today indicated his intention to resign his military office in order to accept the Fusion nomination for City Court Judge of New York.

"I have not had an opportunity," General Stotesbury said, "to discuss the matter with the Governor. The National Guard has been drafted into Federal service and no longer is under State control. The work of selection and the plans for mobilization of the State's quota of the National Army are about complete. A new State force has been organized and equipped to replace the Guard on the public works and utilities within the State, ready for any emergency. If, under these circumstances, the Governor feels that I can now be released, I certainly will accept the nomination and resign the office of Adjutant General."

City and Federal Authorities Move to Stamp Out Propaganda of Treason.

WORK TO BE COUNTRY-WIDE

Police in 100 Cities Besides New York Asked to Act with Vigor Against Disloyal Utterances.

With the aid of the city and national authorities, the American Defense Society set itself yesterday to stamp out the propaganda of treason, especially street corner speeches, such as that for the interruption of which Cleveland Moffett was arrested on Monday night.

Following a conference between the Executive Committee of the society and representatives of the Police Department and the United States District Attorney's office, it was announced that these steps would be taken at once:

First, President Wilson will be asked to define treason; second, Mayor Mitchel will be asked to obtain the passage of a city ordinance requiring all persons holding street meetings to get licenses; and third, patriotic citizens will be asked to volunteer at the society's headquarters, 303 Fifth Avenue, today for service in a Vigilantes committee to keep watch on all street corner meetings during the war and to cause the arrest of any person uttering seditious statements. The Police Department will supply uniformed men to do the actual arresting.

The conference yesterday showed that an agitator standing on a street corner and saying "To hell with the Stars and Stripes!" commits no legal offense, unless it be treason, and with treason punishable by death it was the opinion of the District Attorney's representatives that no conviction could be had unless there was an "overt act," something more than words.

There is no punishment fixed now for sedition. There was a provision affecting it in the Espionage bill, but it was stricken out. However, the President has the power to define treason, and it is the hope of the society that he will construe that seditious utterances come within that category. Then the enemies of seditious speech will have a definite plan to work upon.

Deputy Police Commissioner Dunham represented his department at the conference yesterday. The suggestions of the department were three: First, that any person hearing disloyal utterances arrest the speaker; second, that any person hearing a disloyal utterance request a policeman to arrest the speaker, and third, that stenographic reports of alleged disloyal speeches be made, submitted to a Magistrate and court action demanded.

Referring to the plan to organizing a committee of citizens to watch the street meetings, Mr. Moffett said:

"We know that we can get enough volunteers for this patriotic work. I have received a large number of letters from persons who have heard utterances similarly to those which stirred me and who are willing to help to stop this sort of thing. We will patrol the whole Broadway section as long as necessary, and watch any other part of the city where these traitorous speakers are trying to stir up trouble."

Colonel Roosevelt informed the society yesterday that he was writing a letter to Police Commissioner Woods urging that the police be more strict with the seditious oratory with which the city is beng flooded.

"Any man speaking against our allies should be arrested," said Colonel Roosevelt. "Any one who says treasonable things should be arrested by the police summarily."

The society yesterday sent a letter to Mayor Mitchel in which it told of the utterances of the street corner orators, and said:

"Under the circumstances the American Defense Society is constrained to believe that a license entirely too wide is accorded those persons who, for reasons they are under no obligation to disclose, may address the public.

Incidentally, W. J. Robinson, the man whom Mr. Moffett interrupted on Monday night at Thirty-seventh Street and Broadway, and who was arrested Tuesday night at the order of William H. Hines, was held in $1,000 bail yesterday by Magistrate Fuchs in Jefferson Market Court for further hearing today. Mr. Hines received so many threats against his life yesterday, he said, that last night he asked the Police Department for the right to carry a revolver. Mr. Moffett has also received a number of threats.

One means by which the society will take action was illustrated in an affidavit filed yesterday with the authorities by John L. Butterfield, 412 East Tenth Street. Mr. Butterfield had a stenographic report made of a speech delivered at Thirty-seventh Street and Broadway last Friday night. A part of Mr. Butterfield's affidavit follows:

"I asked if they did not believe in first whipping Germany, to which one man replied that they certainly did not; that Germany has always been our friend, and that they wanted to see England whipped first. He followed this by saying that America had never been a friend of Ireland anyway, that the country was full of traitors to the cause of freedom, and that 'what we soon will do will be to start a revolution in this country, and the first man we will get will be the greatest traitor of the land, Woodrow Wilson.'"

The society does not limit its campaign to New York. It sent yesterday a message to the heads of the Police Departments of 100 American cities, asking support in a campaign "to curb, permanently and finally, the activities of pacifists and traitors to the country generally who are spreading the doctrine of sedition and disloyalty to public audiences everywhere."

John D. Moore, National Secretary of the Friends of Irish Freedom, under whose auspices a good many of the alleged treasonable speeches are made, defied the American Defense Society yesterday to stop it. In a statement he issued to newspaper men Mr. Moore said:

"The arrest of Mr. Robinson, who never made a seditious utterance in his life, is merely the first gun in a campaign to suppress free speech in this city. There will be just as vigorous a campaign to preserve this Constitutional right of the American people. When Robinson stated that Washington and Franklin, had they failed in the Revolutionary days, would have been hanged and branded traitor as Sir Roger Casement was, he was stating what every candid American knows to be the truth. Casement's 'treason' was such that the United States unanimously petitioned the British Government for clemency and President Wilson personally cabled the plea to London.

Mr. Moore sent a letter to THE TIMES complaining of its editorial on "Sinn Fein and the Police." He asserted that Mr. Moffett did not hear the speaker say that Washington and Franklin were greater traitors than Casement. Mr. Moore's letter concluded:

"What the speaker did say, and what every candid American knows to be the truth, was 'that had Washington and Franklin failed in the Revolutionary days they would have been hanged and branded traitors as Sir Roger Casement was.'

"Moreover, the Sinn Fein Party is not 'now having its brief hour in Ireland.' The wave of democracy has overwhelmed Ireland just as it overwhelmed Russia, and the Irish people will not have to be content until they have driven out the English as Washington and Franklin drove them from here."

NEUTRAL CONFERENCE SOON

Dutch Learn Some Details "from a German Source."

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 15.—The Dutch Press Bureau announced today that it had learned from a German source that a conference of European neutrals would be held in September either at Stockholm or Christiania, despite the difficulties which would attend the voyages of delegates from Spain, Switzerland, and Holland.

Each of these countries, according to the report, will send two delegates. The Norwegian Government, it was said, had offered Christiania as the place for the conference, hoping that it would have an effect upon the resumption of American imports.

MOVES TO LIGHTEN PUBLISHERS' BURDEN

PAPERS HARD HIT BY WAR

No Other Business Has Suffered So Much, Massachusetts Senator Tells His Colleagues.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—Senator Weeks of Massachusetts introduced amendments to the War Revenue bill today to eliminate Section 1101, imposing an addition of one-fourth of a cent a pound to the existing rate for second-class postage, and also Section 1106, which imposes an additional tax upon publishers of newspapers and periodicals of 5 per cent. of net income in excess of $4,000.

These two taxes, Senator Weeks contends, are excessive. In explaining his motive for offering the amendments he said:

"I am opposed to raising the second-class postage rate at this time because of the peculiar conditions which exist. For the same reason I can see no necessity fo rimposing a special tax on the newspaper and periodical publishers. If the statements made by the publishers are dependable, the newspaper and periodical industry has been hit harder by the war than any other business. While I believe that, when we return to normal conditions, the second-class postal rates should be increased, I think it would be unfair to increase them now, or to impose other special taxes upon the publishers."

The postal increase and the tax of 5 per cent. on net incomes as carried in the bill are both extra levies, the publishers coming, besides, under the provisions of the normal income and other fixed taxes.

Senate consideration of the Tax bill lagged today, debate on committee amendments halting for set speeches and discussion of the settled Shipping Board row and other subjects. Tomorrow, it is expected, the Finance Committee's revision of the House bill will be taken up again and rapidly disposed of, the leaders still being confident of passing the bill late next week.

Senator Bankhead addressed the Senate at length today in favor of reducing and otherwise changing the war profits rates. Senator Gerry of the Finance Committee analyzed the bill in detail in commendation of changes proposed.

Indications were today that the new $4,000,000,000 bond issue for an allied loan, to be authorized at the present session of Congress, might bear 4 per cent. interest. N official announcement has come from Secretary McAdoo, but it is known that an advance of one-half of one per cent. over the interest rate of the first Liberty Loan has been discussed in the Cabinet ad in Congress.

United support of Republicans and Democrats of the House Ways and Means Committee in raising the $9,000,000,000 additional war funds Secretary McAdoo declares necessary, now is indicated.

SPECIAL COURT FOR B. R. T.

Judge Veeder Calls Three U. S. Judges to Hear Appeal from Order.

Judge Veeder in the Brooklyn Federal Court declined yesterday to issue on behalf of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company a temporary order restraining the Public Service Commission from taking steps to carry out its order directing the company to purchase 250 new cars for its lires. The Judge announced that he would order the case before a specially constituted court in Brooklyn, consisting of one United States Circuit Court Judge and two District Court Judges on Tuesday next, at which time the argument of the company for an injunction would be heard.

It will be the first court of the kind in New York State and it is to be organized under the Federal statute which provides for two District Judges and one Circuit Court Judge to hear any application for an injunction against a State commission or against the Interstate Commerce Commission. Since the case is to be heard at such an early date ex-Justice William L. Ransom, chief counsel of the Public Service Commission, agreed that the commission would take no action before next Tuesday. Judgo Veeder also announced that as he would be a member of the court he did not desire to indicate his view of the merits of the case.

BELL SYSTEM AND ASSOCIATED COMPANIES

Help Save 57 Years Every Day!

If one minute could be saved on each call by a more efficient use of the telephone, the saving in productive time would amount to 57 years every day!

In making this contribution to National Efficiency, not only would a large amount of time be saved every month for each telephone user, but also each subscriber would help to keep the lines open for the all-important messages dealing with the National Defense.

You can save time in the use of the telephone

By looking in the book to make sure you call the right number and thus save the time lost on wrong number calls;

By talking clearly and distinctly, directly into the telephone, so that repetition of parts of the conversation is not necessary;

By answering all telephone calls promptly with your name or the name of your company, so that time is not wasted in uncertain inquiries and introductions.

On most telephone calls a saving of one minute can be easily made without encroaching upon the subject matter of the message, simply by practising more diligently the best rules for the use of the telephone.

Will you help save a minute a call in the interest of all?

GIANTS SUCCUMB TO SUPERBAS IN FIRST GAME AND THEN WREAK VENGEANCE

GIANTS AND ROBINS AGAIN SPLIT SPOILS

Result of Riotless Afternoon Is Defeat for Locals First and Then Victory.

DODGERS SHOWING DASH

Champions Are Hitting Pennant Pace of Last Year—Robertson Provides Day's Homer.

The twin baseball menu at the Polo Grounds yesterday between the Giants and the Brooklyns went the way of the two previous double-headers—they divided the plunder of victory in a brotherly spirit, Brooklyn winning the first, 3 to 2, while the Giants took the second, 7 to 1. No one was spiked; there was no riot; there was nothing but a whole lot of baseball.

Art Fletcher was out of the Giants' lineup, being confined to the garage because of the injuries received from Casey Stengel's spikes. Stengel was in the game, and every time he came to bat he was greeted with hisses from the New York fans, but the hisses were quickly changed to cheers when the Brooklyn rooters started. Judging from the way the Brooklyn folks acted this week, they would rather see the Dodgers trim the Giants than beat all National League clubs put together.

It takes quite a stretch of imagination to realize that this Brooklyn team, which has been persistently breaking even with the Giants, is the same Brooklyn team which started out the season by losing everything except its bat bag. They have shown just as good baseball during the past few days as they did last season when they were at their best. Where they got all the pep and ginger, even Manager Robinson doesn't know.

The Giants hit the ball enough in the first game to win, but they couldn't make hits in the pinches, three Dodger boxmen, Pfeffer, Marquard and Cheney all doing good work when a rap would have changed the complexion of the score. Marquard brought the Giants to their knees in the eighth when they had the bases full with only one out. Two or three rallies were nipped in the bud. Al Demaree, the Mobile Stogie, started the first game, and the Dodgers bunched hits on him in the fourth and netted two runs.

Wheat Delivers in Pinch.

Zack Wheat limped from the bench in the ninth inning in the rôle of pinch hitter when Stengel was on second. Buck has been laid up for some time with a sprained ankle. The rest hasn't affected his batting eye, for he punched out the precious single which sent Stengel home with the jubilant run.

Home runs at the Polo Grounds these days are as plentiful as seeds in watermelon. In the second game Robertson walloped one into the right field stand in the eighth and sent Benny Kauff home ahead of him.

Rube Benton pitched one of his fanciest games in the second tilt. He held the Dodgers to four hits, two of these being clustered in the fourth, when Brooklyn got its lonesome run. Hi Myers walked in this inning and was forced by Stengel. After Johnston flied to Kauff, Cutshaw singled to centre, sending Stengel to second and Casey scored on O'Rourke's rap to right centre.

Brooklyn unveiled a new pitcher in John Armstrong Russell, a left hander from Vancouver. The youngster was a bit dismayed when he first faced the Giants and was used rather roughly. Burns and Herzog walked in the first and Kauff's single scored Burns. Zimmerman hit to left, scoring Herzog and Kauff went to third when Johnston fumbled the ball. Jimmy Smith hoisted a sacrifice fly to Myers, which scored Benny. In the second inning with one down, Benton singled to centre and was forced by Burns. Georgie stole second and took his time going home when Charley Herzog hammered a triple to the hollyhocks in centre field.

Life again became miserable for young Russell in the eighth. Kauff drew a pass and went to third on Zimmerman's single. While Smith was forcing Zim at second, Kauff counted. Robertson then slammed his homer into the stands and Russell will have good reason to remember the first game he pitched against the Giants.

Zim and Kauff Busy.

Benny Kauff and Heinie Zim have been poking the ball for further orders since the Giants came back home. Yesterday in the first wrangle Kauff got four hits, and in the second Zim got three. These little outbursts of betting frenzy make good practice for the world's series.

George Kelly, who was released to Pittsburgh a while ago, like the cat, came back. He edged into the first pastime as a pinch hitter for Perritt and he showed improvement, inasmuch as he got to first even if it was on Olson's error.

Brooklyn chalked up a couple of runs in the fourth inning of the first encounter. Daubert smacked a liner over Jimmy Smith's cap and Hi Myers sacrificed. After Stengel hoisted a fly to Burns, Johnston walked. George Cutshaw slammed a double off the right field wall just out of Robertson's reach, and Daubert and Johnston scampered over the plate. The first Giant count came in the sixth. With one out, Burns got a hit through Cutshaw, and he was forced by Herzog. Kauff's third hit sent Herzog to second, and the Giants' captain scored on Heinie Zim's double to left.

New York tied the score in the seventh. Robertson hit through second and went to second on Holke's safe slap to centre. Rariden's sacrifice sent the runners along a sack, and Wilhoit, batting for Demaree, singled to left, scoring Robertson. Then Pfeffer tightened up and squelched the rally.

The Giants had a great chance to win in the eight. Kauff got his fourth hit of the game and Zim sacrificed. Smith was safe on Pfeffer's error, and Rube Marquard was called in to relieve Jeff, who was evidently fielded, instead of batted, out of the box. Rube had pitched one strike to Robertson when Lobert was inserted as a pinch hitter. Lobert walked and filled the bases. Marquard did some high-class pitching and let the Giants down without a run.

Brooklyn bagged the game in the ninth. Stengel drew a pass and Johnston sacrificed. After Cutshaw's high fly was captured by Rariden, Manager Robinson called in Zack Wheat to pinch-hit for O'Rourke. Zack hit a single to centre, pushing Stengel home with the winning run.

LONGWOOD DOUBLES REACH SEMI-FINALS

Baggs and Voshell Defeated in Five-Set Match—Alexander and Throckmorton Advance.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Aug. 15.—Play in the national doubles tournament at the Longwood Cricket Club today advanced four teams into the semi-final round. Frederick B. Alexander and Harold Throckmorton took one of the advanced brackets when they scored an easy victory over the Chinese players, Wei and Yung, at 6—2, 6—1, 6—3. Nathaniel W. Niles and Theodore Roosevelt Pell met with sterner opposition from Bishop and Mahan, but nevertheless won in straight sets at 6—2, 9—7, 6—2. The other teams to advance were John R. Strachan and Fred C. Inman and Wright and Johnson.

The victory of Wright and Johnson came as something of a surprise, for they defeated Fred C. Baggs and S. Howard Voshell in a spirited five-set match. The latter team carried off the first two sets, but was outplayed in the last three, the score in favor of Johnson and Wright being 4—6, 7—9, 6—2, 6—2.

Miss Mary K. Browne, playing with Nat Niles, took two sets from Mrs. Cole and Inman in mixed doubles, the California player putting up a beautiful back court game, while Miss Browne's placement shots to the corners won repeated applause from the gallery. Niles was steady in this match, but Inman was inclined to be erratic.

Dick Williams, the national singles champion, arrived from Plattsburg today. He warmed up in singles and also took a turn at doubles with Miss Bjurstedt against Mr. and Mrs. George Wightman. Williams, who sails for France in about two weeks, will not play his special match with Strachan unless Strachan and Miss Sears are eliminated tomorrow from the mixed doubles.

The summaries:

Men's Doubles—Third Round.—Strachan and Inman defeated Currier and Taylor, 9—7, 6—2, 6—3; Niles and Pell defeated Bishop and Mahan, 6—2, 9—7, 6—2; Alexander and Throckmorton defeated Wei and Yung, 6—2, 6—1, 6—3; Johnson and Wright defeated Baggs and Voshell, 4—6, 7—9, 6—4, 6—2, 6—2.

Mixed Doubles—Second Round.—Miss Mary Browne and Niles defeated Mrs. E. B. Cole, 2d, and Inman, 6—1, 6—2.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Aug. 15.—Winning, 5 to 4, in ten innings today, Chicago took the series, three to one. Leibold scored the winning run on his single, McMullin's sacrifice, and Collins's single.

Klepfer was taken out in the eighth after he had passed the first two batsmen. Coumbe, who relieved him, pitched only to Collins and Jackson. The former singled and Jackson doubled, tying the score. Gould then entered the box and prevented further scoring until the tenth.

MEYERS AND MOWREY GO.

Brooklyn Unconditionally Releases Two Veteran Players.

Two familiar figures passed from major league baseball yesterday when Brooklyn dropped Chief Meyers and Mike Mowrey. The two old timers were released unconditionally and are free agents and may sign up with any club that wants them. Meyers for several seasons was the star backstop of the Giants and was released to Brooklyn in 1915.

Brooklyn has recalled several of the young players who were released to the minors early in the season. These include Malone, Kelleher, Appleton, Durning, and Catcher Jack Snyder.

HAUGHTON TO COACH AGAIN.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Aug. 15.—Harvard this Fall is expected to have the services of no less brilliant a pair of football coaches than Percy D. Haughton, President of the Braves, and Leo H. Leary, field coach. Both men are in favor of the continuation of intercollegiate athletics, and if sufficient interest is shown in football at Harvard and if their alma mater desires their services will undoubtedly serve without remuneration.

With military training at Harvard likely to call for only nine hours study each week, the interest in 'Varsity sport, especially football, is likely to be renewed. Candidates for the 'Varsity eleven will report to Pooch Donovan soon after college reopens. Candidates for the freshman football team will report during the week of Sept. 24.

RICHARDS WINS AT TENNIS.

Defeats Donaldson for Place in Boys' National Tournament.

Vincent Richards earned the right to represent the metropolitan section in the national boys' tennis tournament, which will be held in connection with the national singles tournament at Forest Hills next week, when he defeated Cecil Donaldson at 6—2, 3—6, 6—1, 6—3 in the final round of the local tennis centre tournament at Forest Hills yesterday. Only four players competed in the event so that the competition actually started with the playing of the semi-final round. Richards's first victim of the day was Uzal McCarter, who was vanquished at 6—3, 6—0.

There were six players in the junior tournament, in which Benjamin Letson, holder of the national boys' championship of last year, won his way to the final round with victories over J. T. Kemmerer and Harold Taylor. The latter had a first-round bye, but did not compete in the event as he had to play in a junior tennis tournament at Providence. The semi-final round match therefore went to Letson by default. The other final round bracket lies between F. T. Anderson and Francis Middleditch.

The boys' match between Richards and Donaldson was waged more closely than the score indicates. It was largely a back court duel, but now and again Richards advanced to the barrier to finish off a point. Donaldson, after seeing his game break before the persistent attack of his opponent, steadied and by the judicious use of the lob succeeded in disrupting Richards's game for a while. The change of tactics on the part of Donaldson, however, failed to turn aside the impending defeat.

Seiichiro Kashio, the Japanese tennis expert, who is entered for the national tournament, practised for nearly two hours yesterday at Forest Hills, while the boys and juniors were playing in their tournament. His work on the courts occasioned favorable comment but it was the opinion that he was hardly as strong a player as Kumagae, the Japanese sensation of last year's tennis season. Kashio explained that he had had little opportunity for tennis play recently, but that he expected to be in fine condition for the tournament next week. With Kumagae as his partner, Kashio won the doubles' championship of the Orient in 1915.

Boys' Tournament.—Semi-Final Round—Vincent Richards defeated Uzal McCarter, 6—3, 6—0; Cecil Donaldson defeated Joseph Tomasulo, 6—1, 6—2.

Final Round—Vincent Richards defeated Cecil Donaldson, 6—2, 3—6, 6—1, 6—3.

Junior Tournament.—First Round—F. T. Anderson defeated Donald Nichols, 6—3, 6—0, 6—3; Benjamin Letson, defeated J. T. Kemmerer, 6—3, 6—3, 6—1.

CHAJES TAKES LONG LEAD.

Special to The New York Times.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Aug. 15.—Having won four games straight in the championship tourney of the New York State Chess Association, now being played at the Hotel Seneca in this city, Oscar Chajes of New York assumed today a most dangerous lead in the contest. When the evening session began he had won two games from Howard and defeated Jennings and Phillips in one game each. Neither Jennings, Howard, nor Searle has so far placed a single point to his credit and only Phillips had succeeded in winning two points against Searle and Jennings, respectively.

In the first game today Howard played the white pieces, starting with a Scotch opening. Chajes soon became very aggressive, had the better position in the ending, and after forty-eight moves Howard resigned. In the second game Chajes played a Queens pawn opening, won a piece by a very clever combination, and the game after twenty-seven moves.

Phillips tried the Spanish attack against Jennings, who thought it advisable to give up a pawn in the middle stage of the game. Later on Phillips won another pawn, and after a protracted struggle, lasting fifty-seven moves, Jennings resigned.

In the evening session Chajes was pitted against Searle and Howard against Phillips. Chajes beat Searle in a French defense after twenty-four moves, making a brilliant ending and scoring game No. 5, while Howard relied upon a counter centre gambit, getting slightly the worst of the position, but holding his end up pretty well. This game had to be adjourned.

GOULDING SENDS ENTRY.

Canadian Walker Will Compete in Championships at St. Louis.

Entries for the national A. A. U. track and field championships, which will be held in St. Louis on Aug. 31 and Sept. 1 and 3, continue to arrive at the offices of the Metropolitan Association. Among the latest is that of George Goulding of Toronto, national walking champion and record holder. Eddie Renz of the New York A. C., holder of the metropolitan walking title, will not compete in either the metropolitan or national championships.

President Frederick W. Rubien of the local association has received word that the annual New England championships will be held as usual this year, the date selected being Aug. 25. This is the same date as that selected by the local body for its championships. Mr. Rubien has been assured of a large and representative entry from the Boston A. A. for the national title games.

PAPP CARRIES TOP WEIGHT TO FRONT

Special to The New York Times.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Aug. 15.—Former Congressman George W. Loft's two-year-old, Papp, is the equine hero tonight, for the son of Peter Quince ran a remarkable race when he won the Sanford Memorial for two-year-olds this afternoon, carrying top weight of 130 pounds and beating a field of six other stake horses to all of which he was conceding weight, except the Western crack, Free Cutter. W. C. Clancy's Kashmir, coming like a streak at the finish and carrying only 118 pounds, was second, a nose behind Papp and two lengths in front of Escoba, the foremost Western contender.

There were disagreeable conditions for the decision of one of the newest of the important stakes for youngsters, which in the four years of its running includes such winners as Little Nephew, Regret, Bulse, and last but not least, Campfire. A heavy rain starting early in the morning had rendered the track sloppy, and therefore made the task of the heavyweight carriers a more strenuous one.

The only thing that prevented Papp's latest victory from placing him alone at the head of the two-year-old division was that Sun Briar, his conqueror last week in the Saratoga Special, was not among the starters. The crowd which saw Mr. Loft's colt score so gallantly today will not believe, however, that Sun Briar can outfoot him when the pair meet on even terms and with a break fair for both.

Papp was a wonder in more ways than one this afternoon. In all his previous races he has been fractious going to the post and bad-mannered when there. However, there was a transformation visible in the parade before the big race this afternoon. It was the opinion that Trainer Max Hirsch had talked seriously to the unruly colt, for certainly he was a changed horse. Lazy and sleepy as he stepped on the track at the head of the parade, he walked so quietly and slowly all the way going to the post that he was a sixteenth of a mile behind when all the others were waiting for the lineup.

Then when the break came the big chestnut quickly woke from his lethargy, and springing away from the barrier like a flash, there was only the lightly weighted Nutcracker in front of him when they were fairly in their running. One of the greatest of Papp's obstacles was removed when, for once, Troxler was caught napping, and G. D. Widener's Lanius, the second choice, got away flat-footed and was eight lengths behind the leaders in the first 100 yards.

Papp followed the pace set by Nutcracker until the turn, with Escoba following closely. Troxler rushed up Lanius so quickly that he was in fourth position at the end of the back stretch, but the effort was too much for the imported colt and he never was able to get closer to the great chestnut striding out in front.

Turning into the stretch Nutcracker gave way, and Escoba was then in immediate pursuit of Papp. Little Allen was in little danger of the Westener, which had been doing his best all the way; but in the last quarter a real menace developed as Loftus began making one of his best efforts on W. C. Clancy's Kashmir. The crack rider had to pick up three pounds extra in order to take the mount, but it was worth while, for Kashmir swept by Lanius and Escoba and well on the outside of the track was bearing down like an avalanche on Papp. For a stride the horses were locked, then Papp's gameness told, and he held on to take the prize by a nose.

The conditions of the track caused many scratches, but as the weather cleared the attendance was not affected, and there was a big crowd to cheer the great two-year-old when he returned to the scales. The army was represented by several of its newly made officers, among them Captain Charles L. Appleton, well known as a gentleman rider; Major Boseman Bulger and Captain Henry Vaughan, all being on furlough, which allowed them to return to the realm of sport. Another notable candidate was Judge Hylan, who was a guest in the box of Julius Sondheim.

A notable feature of the sport was the first victory for James W. Corrigan, racing in his own name and colors. It was only yesterday that he took sole control of the Wyckliffe stable, and in the first race of the day Diversion ran in his name, and, carrying the red and blue sash made famous by the Dwyers, won by half a length from Beaver Kill.

There were two big upsets, the first coming in the third race, when W. J. Young's Valor, an outsider at 12 to 1 in a field of three, got home a length in front of the favorite, Chiclet, which beat August Belmont's Wood Trap by a nose. The other came in the fifth race, the Corinth Handicap, in which Dick Williams and Manager Waite were heavily played, only to have J. O. Keene's Moscowa score an easy victory for the West. W. M. Jefford's Red Sox came as a lifesaver for the talent by winning the last race for two-year-olds from a big field.

LU PRINCETON WINS FROM SPEEDY FIELD

Cox Drives Progeny of San Francisco to Victory in 2:17 Trot at Cleveland.

CLEVELAND, Aug. 15.—Walter Cox walked off with the feature event of today's card in the North Randall Grand Circuit meeting, winning first money in the $3,000 trotting feature with Lu Princeton. Royal Mac, the favorite in this race, gave Lu Princeton some hard competition, but failed to reward his backers.

Cox also won the 2:19 pace with Marjorie Kay, which found the going easy. In the 2:13 pace Butte Hale, driven by Murphy, proved the class of the field, and, although he did not win either of the three heats by a large margin, was not forced to extend himself.

The 2:15 trot, with eleven starters, was an exciting contest from start to finish. Royal Hal, the favorite, was not even a contender, Cora Davis walking off with first money handily. The summary:

Homicide Charge Against Pugilist.

George Brown, an eighteen-year-old local preliminary boxer, was arrested yesterday following the death of a mute lad known as Dummy Evans after a boxing bout held Tuesday night at the Pioneer S. C. on West Forty-fourth Street. Brown was arraigned before Coroner Healy on a charge of homicide after it had been determined that Evans died as a result of a fractured skull, and was held in $1,000 bail to await the outcome of the inquest. The dead boxer's real name was Paul Maichise.

"We Cannot Yield The Principle"

J. Q. Adams

IN business as in national affairs there are times when the struggle to maintain quality is hard and there is temptation to skimp values.

But, for commercial as well as personal reasons, Firestone Tire builders cannot yield. On quality their success was built; on continued quality depends the honor of the name

Firestone
CORD TIRES

And 11,000 Firestone employees own Firestone stock; logically they will continue to improve and broaden the service.

Firestone Super Size Cord Tires are your most economical purchase. They save gasoline and insure Most Miles per Dollar. And the Super Size is important; it affords greater air-column and accounts largely for the riding luxury of this most efficient tire.

ABE AND MAWRUSS IN THE MOVIES

Abe Potash	Barney Bernard
Mawruss Perlmutter	Alexander Carr
Rosie Potash	Mathilde Cottrelly
Ruth Perlmutter	Lottie Kendall
Keith Macdonald	George Leguere
Miss Cohen	Helen Sevilla
Robert Blanchard	Edwin Mordant
Sam Pemberton	Frank Ailworth
Lionel Brandon	Willis Claire
Victor Curzon	C. Hooper Trask
Ralph Nevill	Jules Ferrar
Rita Sismondi	Clara Joel
Mrs. Timson	Alice Endres
Vivian Haig	Jessie Dawe
Partington	Willis Claire
Harry	James F. Ayres
Casey	Joseph Stammers
J. J. Crabbe	Arthur Hurley
Samuel Fe Der	Stanley Jessup
Policeman	Edgar Hill

At the outset of the Potash and Perlmutter play, Mawruss deposes that every man has two businesses, his own and the movies. Before the play is over he discovers that the movies are not a business but a dissipation. For the people on the stage the world of the "fillum" seemed very far removed from either. All evening long, as proverbial English is rendered on the east side, it was, for them, out of the frying pan into the hot water.

But the audience enjoyed it all hugely. That is the measure of this sort of comedy. It is the kind in which the one laughs, not with the people on the stage, but at them.

The trouble began when Abe and Mawruss, true to the tradition of Yiddish home life, tried to feature Rosie and Ruth on the screen. The play opened with the moving result, run off amid the comments of both families seated between the pictures and the audience. What the estimable wives had to say about their new vocation, and what Abe and Mawruss had to say about the histrionic powers of their wives, afforded by far the funniest part of an evening by no means deficient in brisk verbal slapstick. That was a real comedy invention, and by far the best thing in "Business Before Pleasure."

For the rest the action had to do with the "wampire" (vide Kipling), with which they tried to offset the failure of their spouses as sentimental heroines. Somehow this supposedly torrid young gentlewoman from the white light district lacked the verisimilitude (itself somewhat strained) of the characters studied in the somberer region to the east of her. As regards her gowns, and the tantrums of jealousy into which she launched the feminine side partners, she was possibly the real thing. She even succeeded in snaring a young banker, heavy villain of the piece, into misapplied loans and extensions. But while her eye was dazzled by white lights her heart was true to the young and impecunious writer of scenarios, and to the dream of love in a cottage. If in her private capacity she is half as calculating as when bargaining for salary in the play, she will receive two pay envelopes from Presenter Woods, one as siren and one as ingenue.

When the annals of the American drama are written it will perhaps be found that these plays of Yiddish life are the historical descendants of the Hoyt farces. But the analogy ends when it comes to plot. At the Hoyt plays, as the program delighted to announce, the audience was requested to be seated punctually, "as the plot ceases immediately after the rise of the curtain." In "Business Before Pleasure" it is the vein of fresh comedy that comes to a thus timeless end. The plot begins thereafter and pursues its course inexorably.

It is, in fact, of the nature of a moving-picture plot, with brisk and varied action, sudden gaps, violent passions, and even more violent comedy business. At times—by no means its happiest—it takes refuge on the screen. No less than Abe and Mawruss, Messrs. Glass and Goodman have achieved the business besides their own.

In justice it must be said that they pursue it with far more intelligence, and especially with more shrewdness and concentration. For the public that has nourished a youth sublime upon the fillums the play has, it would seem, every element of success. Barney Bernard and Alexander Carr hold the stage incessantly, and with always something new afoot. They have a fuller share of telling lines than have fallen to their lot since the original "Potash and Perlmutter." And, vastly able comedians that they are, they extract every laugh to be found in the systems of their authors—and of their public. As the ingenue vampire Clara Joel was very pleasant to see, with no rag or bone or hank of hair to disturb the piping of love's young dream.

The best laughter of the evening, it must be repeated, greeted the more novel comedy of the opening scene; but the house was hilarious throughout; and when, as so frequently happened, the joke was pointed by a phrase of the original Yiddish, the uproar from the audience was unanimous.

GOV. FERGUSON THREATENED

Adjutant General Tells Why Executive Is Guarded.

AUSTIN, Aug. 15.—With the conclusion of testimony by Adjt. Gen. Henry Hutchings about the keeping of State Rangers at the Capitol to guard Governor Ferguson and the Executive Mansion, the taking of direct testimony against the Governor on charges preferred by Speaker Fuller, looking to impeachment of the Governor, was ended before noon today.

Adjt. Gen. Hutchings testified today that he maintained the Rangers at the Governor's mansion since May 15, because he feared for the Executive's safety. Three threatening letters received by the Governor, Mr. Hutchings said, had alarmed him. More recently he had kept six Rangers in Austin.

"I believe right now there should be two Rangers in the gallery of the House," he concluded, "because some crank might break loose at any time."

An adjournment was taken until tomorrow morning.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Following the two weeks' engagement of Adolf Bolm's Ballet Intime at the Booth, which will begin next Monday, Arthur Hammerstein will present there a play by Edward Clark called "De Luxe Annie." The play is based on a magazine story of that title by Seamon Lockwood. The cast will include Willette Kershaw, Vincent Serrano, Albert Bruning, Mary Hall, Minnie Milne, Thurlow Bergen, Walter Wilson, Percy Pollock, Edward Mackay, and Jack MacBryde.

The date for the revival of George Broadhurst's farce, "What Happened to Jones," at the Forty-eighth Street Theatre has been set for Thursday night, Aug. 30, the twentieth anniversary of the first performance of the piece at the old Manhattan Theatre. John Daly Murphy is the latest addition to the cast.

Jeanne Eagels has been engaged as George Arliss's leading woman in his new play, "Hamilton," in which he will come to the Knickerbocker next month. Miss Eagels appeared with Mr. Arliss last season in the revivals of "Disraeli" and "The Professor's Love Story."

The company engaged to appear in Alexandria Carlisle's support in "The Country Cousin," which is scheduled for the Gaiety beginning Sept. 3, includes Grace Elliston, Marion Coakley, Eleanor Gordon, Julia Stuart, Eugene O'Brien, Donald Gallaher, Arthur Forrest, Charles Mackay, Albert Tavernier, Donald Foster, and George Wright, Jr.

A private showing of the first annual motion picture review produced by the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry will be given this morning at the Strand. Thirty of the most popular mummers of the screen, including Mary Pickford and Charles Chaplin, posed for the various parts of the film, which comprises five reels, and was assembled from dozens of photoplays.

Anna Case, American prima donna of the Metropolitan Opera Company, has been engaged by Julius Steger to pose for a series of motion pictures. Work on the first film, which will have for its basis the story of Miss Case's career as an artiste, will be begun in February, at the conclusion of her concert tour.

The new playhouse the firm of Rush & Andrews is erecting in West Forty-eighth Street will be called the Vanderbilt, and not the Stuyvesant, as originally announced. Several producers are negotiating for its use.

PHILIPP AT THE YORKVILLE.

Adolph Philipp will be the principal comedian and the director of a company that will appear at the Yorkville Theatre the coming Winter. The season will open Wednesday night, Sept. 12, and during its course some of Mr. Philipp's former successes will be revived and new plays will be produced with the idea of determining their fitness for presentation on Broadway. The first offering will be the actor-manager's farce, "The Landlady." Among the other pieces that will be revived will be "Adele," "The Midnight Girl," "The Girl Who Smiles," and "My New York."

Mr. Philipp and Mr. Rachmann, who is associated with him in the management of the Yorkville, have acquired the production rights to the following pieces from which they will chose the remainder of the Winter's répertoire: "The Movie Star," by Haller and Werner; "It's Easy," a French farce by Jules Fabre; "Three Good Things," a comedy by Charles Renaud; "A Joy Ride," a musical comedy by Mr. Philipp; "That Night," a farce by Richard Hall; "A Kiss in the Dark," a comedy by James Watson, and "The Bank Cashier," a drama by François Picard.

'The Deluge' at the Hudson Monday

The date for the first local performance of "The Deluge" has been set for next Monday night at the Hudson. This is a drama adapted from the Scandinavian of Hennig Berger by Frank Allen and produced by Arthur Hopkins. The cast includes Henry E. Dixey, Pauline Lord, Robert McWade, William Riley Hatch, Frederick Perry, Edward G. Robinson, Clyde North, Guy Nichols, William J. Phinney, and William Dick. The decorations are by Robert Edmond Jones. "The Deluge" will be acted tomorrow and Saturday night in Stamford.

The première of "The Eyes of Youth," Charles Guerrion and Max Marvion's play, has been postponed until next Wednesday night. It had been announced for next Monday night at the Maxine Elliott.

GERMAN RETREAT IN NEW WAR FILM

SEEN AT A PRIVATE VIEW

Conditions Our Men Will Face in France Portrayed in the Latest Official Movie of Conflict's Progress.

A new reel of official British war pictures, soon to be released to the public, was shown privately yesterday morning at the Strand Theatre to newspaper men and a few persons interested in the preparations for our part in the war. The new pictures fulfill adequately the intention of the British authorities in making them, that is to have in perpetuity a picture history of the struggle in its various phases and the aroused intense interest, the more so because the conditions they showed are those soon to be faced by American troops.

This is the fourth installment of the British series. The first, "How Britain Prepared," showed the fleet mobilized and Kitchener's army in the making; the second, the new army in action in the battle of the Somme, and the third, that army, grown wise in warfare and provided with new devices and new methods brought into being by the necessity of trench fighting, at the turning of the tide in the battle of the Ancre. The new film is called "The Retreat of the Germans" and it portrays the battle of Arras.

Perhaps the most curious thing about it is that although so much is heard about the monotony of trench warfare, it is different from its predecessors. The pictures are also better and clearer—95 per cent. better than the war movie of a few months ago, in the opinion of one expert cinema man—for the art of taking battle pictures is one that improves by practice and, in this case, the lessons have been paid for in the blood of venturesome men who have taken all risks to procure for the great public at home good pictures of what modern war means and how it is waged today.

So there is plainly shown "the real thing," as our own troops will see and share it in the era now beginning. Ten million Americans are said to have seen the preceding pictures. With the new interest in what is going on in France awakened by our participation probably many more will throng to see this reel.

The first impression it conveys will probably be as to the amount of extremely hard work there is at "the front" in proportion to actual fighting. This war, as the pictures make plain, is a matter of supplies and digging, road-making, and railroad building, as much or more than it is of anything else. The second impression is likely to be how extraordinarily healthy and happy everybody pictured seems to be. The happiness extends even to the German prisoners as they wind in long lines back to the rear. Perhaps pictures taken on the other side of the battlefield at that particular time would not have portrayed the same state of cheeriness.

The picture leaves no doubt about the "retreat" part of the title. The British artillery is seen moving forward over the smashed German trenches, despite tremendous difficulties, with munitions and supplies following in a never-ending stream. Even the infantry advances without cover in "artillery formation," (platoon columns in the American equivalent,) and cavalry at a brisk trot pursues the retiring enemy, picking its way somehow among the shell holes. The mine craters made by German explosives at the cross roads, huge as they are, fail to delay the transport of supplies which find a new route around them. Heavy howitzers and broken tractors are shown stuck in the mud and being freed as quickly; the engineer corps building new roads and new light railways to carry the huge shells; houses that block the way blown up, streams bridged or made fordable, and the Poilu and the Tommy, in a haze of cigarette smoke and rifles carried at ease, moving steadily ahead. The tanks, of course, are much in evidence, and up aloft the airplanes wheel and dive among the shrapnel puffs.

Herein is seen the value of many cinema men co-operating. "I saw more fighting in this reel than I saw in six months on the front," was the comment of one correspondent recently returned from France, when the pictures had come to an end with a triumphant display of the flags of the Allies, the American flag in the centre, fluttering in the brisk breeze upon St. Paul's.

At an informal luncheon at Sherry's afterward, Lord Northcliffe, head of the British war missions to the United States, spoke of the value of such films in promoting a proper understanding of the war conditions which must be met by Germany's foes together. Goeffrey Butler of the British Foreign Office made a plea for co-operation in working toward the common end of "making the world safe for democracy," and Hamilton Fyffe touched lightly on some of his experiences as a war correspondent at various battle fronts.

The date on which the films will be released to the public has not yet been decided.

NEW EXPORT REGULATIONS.

The New York Export License Office in the Custom House announced yesterday that hereafter all applications for export licenses must be made on one of several new kinds of forms received from Washington. One form will be devoted exclusively to applications for proposed shipments of materials included in the embargoed list to countries not associated with the United States in the war, and to their colonies, possessions, and protectorates. For the present applications to ship coal or fuel oil or bunkers should be made out on the same form, known as A-1.

Form A-2 is to be used for proposed shipments of ordinary articles included in the embargoed list to those countries which are at present associated with the United States in the war, and to their colonies, possessions, &c.

Form A-3 is to be used for proposed shipments to countries associated with the United States in the war, or to their colonies and possessions, for shipments of other than ordinary articles on the embargoed list, which at present means that this form should be used for proposed shipments of pig iron, steel billets, iron, and steel plates, iron and steel scrap.

Rare Opportunity to Secure Used Hudson Super-Six At a Bargain

Never before have we offered used Hudson Super-Sixes at figures anything like those you see here. Lack of space forces them on the market at this time. Customers have contracted for the spaces in our new garage (which, by the way, is the finest in the world) now occupied by our used cars, and they must be made available by September 1st.

A Used Hudson Super-Six at Less Than $1,000

If you will stop for a moment to realize that you can buy a used Hudson Super-Six, repainted, thoroughly overhauled, tested, and practically as good as new, for less than $1,000, you will appreciate the wonderful bargains offered, and remember, these used Hudson Super-Sixes are not going to depreciate in value to any great extent. The unprecedented and continuous advance in the prices of all raw materials and the shortage of high-grade steels which makes the raising of prices on even the cheapest cars imperative is bound to have a stiffening effect on second-hand values.

Used Super-Six Phaetons and Runabouts - - $995
Used Cabriolets and Sedans - - $1,175 to $1,375

Don't Be a Slacker

Are you doing your bit to make your family happy? This old world is a pretty good place after all if you will only perk up and throw off the shackles that bind you and them to that 2x4 horizon. Look around you and see neighbors of yours perhaps not as well fixed financially as you are beaming with that good nature that comes from a broader view of people and places by reason of their investment in a motor car. Hoarding will never get you anywhere. The cost of an automobile kept in your pocket is a handicap to your daughter, to your son, to your wife, and, most of all, to yourself.

Why Be a Straphanger?

Why be rattled around like a pea in a box? Why stand for the indignity of having your wife and children crushed and jostled about in a crowded street car on those occasional trips to the seashore and country, when, with a few hundred dollars you can purchase a good used automobile? It's bad enough going on those street car and railroad trips when you are fresh, but think of the awful conditions ever present on the return trip when your family is tired and worn out. Aside from this, your street car and railroad excursions are monotonous, devoid of inspiration and barren as far as real pleasure is concerned. Get an automobile—you will find it will be the best investment you ever made. There is no necessity to go beyond your means. We have a good car to fit your pocketbook.

Big Assortment of Other Makes

In addition to the above sale of Hudson Super-Six used cars we offer below a partial list of cars of standard makes that we have taken in trade and which have been placed in good condition. Most of them have been repainted. Take at random any car in this list, then look through other advertisements and see how our prices compare with those of similar make, year and type. Cars will be demonstrated to your satisfaction and will be loaded free of charge for out-of-town customers. Come early, for this is the biggest bargain sale of the year.

THE SAFETY OF THE WORLD.

When the Allies come to make their reply to the Pope's proposal of peace terms, we know from the repeated declarations of their statesmen that they will put prominently forward the declaration that no peace negotiations can be entered into which do not have as their cornerstone the principle that the world must be protected from a repetition of this war. It is for that they are fighting. They are fighting to bring about such a state of affairs that the world cannot again be plunged into misery by the ambitions of Germany and Austria-Hungary. There is no other nation that has any such ambitions; it is from these two alone that the danger will come.

Therefore, the world is not only fighting Germany to obtain the restoration of Belgium, Serbia, and Rumania, which restoration would leave Germany free to begin the assault again at a more favorable time and profit by the mistakes which saved the world from conquest by her in this war. It is also fighting to make it impossible that she and her partner should be able to repeat the assault. No peace terms can be accepted that do not involve this, for it is the very heart of the whole issue.

The safety of the world cannot be secured by a treaty in which the Hohenzollerns and Hapsburgs pledge themselves to make no more attacks, for no nation will take their word. Each nation would have to begin to arm itself feverishly in preparation for a renewed attack by them, no matter what pledges they might make, and militarism and crushing taxation would sit on the neck of the world from that day forth until the inevitable next attack began.

The safety of the world cannot be secured by the restoration of Belgium, Serbia, and Rumania alone. They were sovereign and independent in 1914, but that did not prevent the German attack.

The safety of the world cannot be secured by a League of Nations alone. The whole world now is leagued against Germany, as in sentiment it was leagued against her from the moment of her assault on Belgium.

The safety of the world could be secured by disarmament if all nations were to carry out the agreement to disarm in good faith. But after the experience the world has had with the Hohenzollern-Hapsburg conception of good faith, it will not itself disarm on a mere promise that Germany and Austria will disarm.

The safety of the world, in short, cannot be secured by any promise the Hohenzollerns and Hapsburgs can make, whether made at a peace conference or elsewhere. It can be secured only when Germany and Austria are unable to violate the peace of the world. Germany and Austria must not be fettered in their growth, but the power of their present rulers to turn the world into a charnel house at pleasure must be fettered. No peace can be considered which does not make it impossible for them to inaugurate again a raid on the human race.

Germany's evacuation of Belgium will not make Belgium safe from another attack, but her evacuation of Alsace-Lorraine will. Austria's evacuation of Serbia will not make Serbia or Italy safe from attack, but her evacuation of Trent and Istria will. Their evacuation of Rumania will be no assurance of the safety of Europe, but their evacuation of Rumanian Transylvania will. A bogus Kingdom of Poland under a German Viceroy will not prevent a new attack on Russia, but a free Kingdom of Poland, such as Russia is willing to set up, will.

Such assurances as this would make the world safe for democracy, and would make peaceful peoples free from the constant Hohenzollern and Hapsburg menace. No menace from any other powers overhangs them. These assurances must be included in the peace, or all that the world has fought for will be in vain, and the fight must begin over again as soon as the insatiable war lords have arranged their new plan of attack. Germany must learn not only how to pronounce the word "restoration." The world will be safe only when Germany is either free or powerless. Freedom of Germany will safeguard democracy.

Therefore, the Allies, in whatever way they may discuss the Pope's proposals, will undoubtedly say to him that no peace is possible until the military caste in Germany and Austria is abolished. The time when they can sit down at a council table with the two Kaisers and begin to discuss the actual terms of peace will come when Germany and Austria admit that fact. At present Germany and Austria do not admit it, and propose that the terms shall be a matter of "give and take," to be discussed as between merchants. It is undoubtedly in that way that Germany and Austria understand the Pope's proposals; but the Allies will not so understand them. An indispensable preliminary of all negotiation is that the safety of the world against attack must be made secure, and not by promises.

TRULY REPRESENTATIVE.

The formation of a typical division of the National Guard Army, composed of regiments and detachments from twenty-six States and the District of Columbia, and fitly representing the patriotism and martial spirit of every section of this broad land, was a veritable master stroke. The claims of pacifists and traitors to support in certain parts of this country is sufficiently refuted in the organization of this host. These soldiers come from places where, we are told, and falsely told, the war is unpopular. There are cowards and traitors in small numbers everywhere, but disloyalty does not dominate in any township or village of the United States.

Prominent in the new National Guard Division, which it is said will be the first to go to France, is our own heroic "fighting Sixty-ninth," a regiment of which New York has been proud, and with good reason, for more than half a century. We call it the Irish regiment, and men of Irish birth and descent fill its ranks. They are our real Irish-Americans, if that distinction is necessary for American citizens. They are not to be confused with the so-called Irish patriots, who have never done anything for Ireland, but who, in the service of Germany, talk sedition in our public places. The Sixty-ninth is of Irish blood, but American to the core. The blood of the Sixty-ninth is the best of Irish blood. The patriotism of the Sixty-ninth is true American patriotism.

THE TAMMANY CANDIDATE.

The Sage of Good Ground, making Tammany fissiparous, produced the Democratic Fusion Committee. Why should the friends of honest, capable municipal government be allowed to monopolize the name of Fusion? Why not gather and coddle the elements opposed to it? The Democratic Fusion Committee, with sound old Tammany statesmen on it, went through the forms of solemn pondering of candidates, and, after rejection of the eminent, the decorative, and the faithful, beloved of "the boys," held up to the not too rejoicing eyes of the brethren in Manhattan and the Bronx a Brooklyn name, hitherto obscure in these parts.

If many of the Tammany district captains had never heard of Judge Hylan until he was nominated or about to be nominated, the rest of the community may be pardoned for its previous ignorance of this doubtless amiable vessel of "civic regeneration." Tammany dearly loves a Judge, though its experiences with judicial candidates, successful and unsuccessful, have not always been fortunate. Judge Hylan has been a City Magistrate and is now a County Judge. The enthusiasm of Tammany for the nomination of a Brooklyn candidate for Mayor is not yet fervid. There are murmurings and doubts of the wisdom of the Sage of Good Ground. For what recondite reason did he choose, if he did choose, an unknown Brooklynite and pass over the favorites of East Fourteenth Street? Some saddened souls refused to believe that the nomination is serious and permanent. Surely, the abysses of Mr. Murphy's sagacity hid some deeper purpose, and Judge Hylan will yet withdraw. In short, Tammany, well disciplined as it is, is more than a little rebellious at Mr. Murphy's choice. Why should Tammany become the handmaid of Brooklyn? Why should Mr. John McCooey of Brooklyn be "a biger man" than old Murphy?

These grumblings and velleities of revolt need not be taken too solemnly. Tammany is "outside the breastworks" and feverish to get in, and it has the habit, though the younger men are losing it, of doing as it is told. Yesterday afternoon broke the news, and virtually gave the order. Judge Hylan must be swallowed.

Meanwhile, Judge Hylan rejoices and is exceeding glad. He telephones from Saratoga to the Business Men's League, which approved him first, that he is "with you heart and "soul in this fight to return the City "Government to the hands of the "people," the Tammany people. He has learned his lesson well, for he calls, in legal phrase, the issue of the campaign "the moneyed interests versus the people." It is true, we believe, that "the moneyed interests" have seldom come into contact with Tammany, when it is in power, without having to part with some of their money. Judge Hylan accepts the nomination of the league "with "the greatest satisfaction because it "will enable" him "to help remove "the menace of 'foundation autoc"racy' which now threatens New "York." If elected, he will "strive "to give New York the best business "administration it ever had."

These phrases seem to give the measure of Judge Hylan as a candidate for Mayor. To say nothing of the mechanical repetition of the phantom issues raised by the Tammany hungerers and thirsters for the spoils, what shall we think of an unknown and untried man who asks a city that now has conspicuously and irrefragably the best business administration, the best administration, it ever had, to hand itself over to a novice? No doubt, Judge Hylan is an excellent County Judge; but a sense of humor is useful to a candidate.

Judge Hylan's political merit, from the Tammany point of view, is that he is a "Dark Horse." Tammany has passed a self-denying ordinance? It relies on the virtue of Brooklyn to hide the too well-known character of Tammany.

And speaking of Brooklyn Judges, is Judge Cropsey mystifying or mystified?

MR. ROOT'S MESSAGE FROM RUSSIA.

The speech of Elihu Root at the reception in the City Hall yesterday in honor of the American Mission to Russia was a message of faith in Russia and in democracy, of courage and hope to the United States. That great crystalline intellect, lighted, in years that would be old age to most men, with the flame of a passionate patriotism, has never spoken words of deeper import to his countrymen. He let us see the Russian people, 180,000,000 souls, without a government, forced, without knowledge or habit, to command themselves, instead of obeying docilely the orders of the autocracy.

He showed them bewildered, discussing things at random. He showed the violent Socialists and anarchists, the German tools who told the soldiers "This is not your war; it is the Czar's"; the returned Russians from America who slandered it and deceived their trusting brethren; he showed the brood of propagandists, spies and bribers, all the new "dark forces" working for the undoing of free government and Russia and the triumph of Germany. He showed us the real and true representatives of America, his mission, telling the Russians not to despair, encouraging and helping the few strong faithful men, Kerensky and his best associates in their gigantic task of creating a free Russian world out of chaos, of refounding discipline, order, government.

Those of us who have been impatient with, or unjust to, that mighty, struggling, confused, well meaning multitude, misled, betrayed, but never for long, are confuted by Mr. Root's just praise of contemporary Russia:

> I know of no greater instance of competency for self-government than has been given in Russia in the last few months. The Russian people know they can't build up a civilization upon the elements of their character if German influence is allowed to remain in their country.

To the disloyal in this country Mr. Root gave a warning in words whose dignity and solemnity of thought find an equal solemnity and dignity of expression:

> I said that we took a message of faith in democracy. We return to repeat it. Here, as in Russia, a German propaganda is seeking to sap the strength of democracy. Here, as in Russia, German money is seeping through the country, seeking to undermine the press and public men and to establish a structure of treason. Here, as there, there are weak sentimentalists who lend themselves to the most terrible enemy of peace and justice and humanity since the fall of Ghengis Khan. Here, as there, there are men who proclaim their patriotism and sell their country. But here, as there, the long-suffering forces of democracy are gathering to take the power into their own hands. And when they act, let these men beware.

Mr. Root has seen the work of the traitors in Russia. His warning against their imitators in America has a stern significance. "Let these men beware!"

BONDS OR TAXES?

Washington telegrams express surprise that a few more billions are needed for war uses. It might have been thought that the capacity for that sort of surprise had been exhausted on the part of those so well informed as those who lay and those who spend the taxes. Certainly there can be no excuse for surprise at the fact that the need is greater for assistance to our allies than for our own particular purposes. The Chancellor of the British Exchequer, when asking for his latest and largest credit, said:

> It is an open secret that we have spent so freely of our resources that those available for payments in America had become nearly exhausted when our great ally entered into this struggle.

That was as fair notice to us as to Parliament. Germany would be nearer victory now if England had not financed the Allies up to our entrance into the war. It was an unspeakably greater burden for England than for us. England made her advances in form to the Allies, but in effect to finance our banks and our factories. While England was carrying a burden so incomparably greater for her than ours now, we were piling up war profits. Now there should be no reluctance to make the advances necessary, first, because Germany may win the war if we do not, and, secondly, because we shall starve our industries if we do not. We have experienced the beneficial results of the expenditure of foreign funds here, and in a merely selfish sense we should lend the Allies money to spend here. Moreover, we must, whether we would or no.

There is more room for difference of opinion about methods of raising the funds, but it will grow less as the sums grow greater. It needs no argument that it is easier to borrow billions than to pay billions in cash. In fact, the ease of borrowing is one of the arguments against borrowing. Many who regard borrowing as the better as well as the easier way of finding funds on the scale of billions regret the fever of trade through spending the easy money. On this point, too, British experience reassures us. They have traveled the road upon which we are but just entering. They have both borrowed and taxed upon a scale greater proportionately than any likely to be asked of us. And they regret their taxes more than their bond issues. In Mr. Bonar Law's words, so applicable to our present position:

> The cause of the rise in prices is not in the main profiteering. It is the inflation due to the high expenditure. The remedy is to be found in the control of that expenditure.

That is the method adopted by us in advance of the requisition for more funds, and without knowledge of the conclusion to which experience had brought British lawmakers and tax layers. England taxed itself £36,000,000 to cheapen wool and food. If those popular necessities had been cheapened by trade control, equivalent taxes on many articles of popular consumption could have been removed. But the taxes were collected from all, and disbursed for the relief of some. We have started on the theory of controlling trade within reasonable limits, rather than allowing it to run at large. It is a difficult thing to manage. Trade can be checked as well by control as by taxes, and wise control is as perplexing as economic taxation. But at least it may be said that we have chosen the middle course between excesses of either borrowing or taxation. If our trade control fulfills its promise we can borrow more liberally than otherwise, and we need not tax so heavily as would be necessary without prudence in spending money so easily secured. Bonds should not be used, nor taxes avoided, through any tenderness for wealth. The only thing to be considered is the best way of winning the war. After the war the contentions over social reform, the liquor evil, the class conflict, and other minor topics may be resumed without prejudice.

TO MAKE OUR ARMIES.

The appointments of 37 Major Generals and 147 Brigadier Generals will receive general approval. Some of the new Generals, especially in the higher rank, are elderly men, but they deserve the distinction conferred upon them, and the recognition of the seniority rule will please all the officers of the regular army. The promotion of such officers as Generals Mann, George Bell, Jr., Parker, Hodges, Glenn, Kuhn, and many of the others is merely a just reward for valiant service. It is particularly gratifying that so large a proportion of the new appointments fall to West Point graduates. These promotions will entail a general advancement of Lieutenant Colonels, Majors, Captains, and junior officers in that branch of the service. The rumor that in officering the new army the Administration was inclined to ignore the claims of the experienced regular army officers is thus set at rest.

The advancement to a Major Generalship of Clarence Edwards was inevitable, of course, and some wonder has been expressed that it was so long delayed, as he has been in command of the Department of the Northeast since May. New Yorkers generally will applaud the bestowal of the rank of Major General in the Federal service upon John F. O'Ryan. His zeal and energy in organizing the New York National Guard are highly appreciated here, and he has spared no pains to fit himself for a high command.

The duty of most of these new Generals will be to organize our forces, to train soldiers, to teach discipline. This is hard work, but it is work to which they are all fitted by knowledge and experience. If the war lasts, as many believe it will, two or three years longer and large American forces are actively engaged on the battle fronts, the honors of American leadership are likely to fall upon men as yet comparatively unknown. The Lieutenants of this hour may be the Generals and Major Generals of the victorious Americans. But the work now to be done is that of shaping a huge army which shall be able to fight our battles for us. Upon the men named Tuesday by the President that high honor and that severe labor will be imposed. They are our military leaders of the present hour. Who the Grants, Shermans, and Sheridans of next year may be nobody can guess now. But we are confident that they are here and already in the service of their country.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

A Pacifist and Yet a Patriot. Probably the Secretary of the so-called — and miscalled—People's Council is receiving in response to his recent appeals for encouragement in his efforts to advance the Kaiser's policies and ambitions not a few letters indicative of warm sympathy with the aims of his organization. But though the communications of these persons must be pleasant reading for the council's officials, and its untitled members, if it has any, there is so much difficulty in getting them printed where they will accomplish their designed end of paining and enraging the patriotic that they might almost as well have remained unwritten.

On the other hand, the council's mailing list seems to contain what is for it a dangerous number of Americans who either are not pacifists at all or are pacifists who can hate war much without hating disloyalty and treason less. And whenever anybody in either of these categories gets a big envelope filled with the council's "literature," instantly he sits down and writes a more or less savage denunciation and repudiation of the sentiments and ambitions ascribed to him. If that were all he did no harm would follow, from the council's point of view, but he also sends his reply to the loyal newspapers and at once it attains a wide publicity.

Many letters of this kind, naturally, have been printed in The Times, and not the least effective of them was the one from George Foster Peabody, which appeared on this page yesterday. Mr. Peabody is indeed a pacifist, and with many of his opinions, as such, The Times does not agree, but he is not a pacifist who wants peace at any price that the Germans choose to charge for it, and he has a realizing sense of what a good citizen's duty is when his Government, through its chosen spokesmen, has determined on a course of action.

That duty, as Mr. Peabody explained to the Secretary of the People's Council—and to all others whom the subject concerned—is now to forget personal preferences for the time being, to submit to the national will, and carefully to refrain from word or action adverse to the interests set before us all by the nation as paramount.

In other words, Mr. Peabody combines patriotism with his pacifism, so of course the People's Council is no place for him.

This Wrong Not Quite Intolerable. On general principles, of course, it counts as another atrocity that American citizens long resident in Germany are now forced to serve in the German Army. The probabilities are, however, that any of our "nationals" who have remained in that country till this late day are not American enough to justify us in getting wildly excited over their wrongs and woes.

It would not be very rash to assume that most of them belong to one or two classes—either they are persons who, though once naturalized here, went back to Germany long ago because they liked it better than the United States, or they are Germans who never intended to remain in America, but "took out papers" before they went back simply to avoid the responsibilities and dangers of citizenship in the land of their residence. In neither case do they deserve any great amount of sympathy if the Kaiser sends them to the front to pay as other Germans do for the privileges and protections they have enjoyed.

These are times for the good citizens of any country to be at home unless they go abroad for reasons distinctly patriotic, and while it is not exactly desirable, from our point of view, that the German armies should be enlarged from any source, there is consolation in the thought that these particular additions are not likely to increase in measurable degree the fighting efficiency of those or any other armies.

If there are any really-and-truly Americans in Germany, we must, indeed, stand by them, though how to do it, at the moment, is a somewhat difficult problem. Fortunately, it seems to be more difficult than important.

GOOD MARCHES WANTED.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Many persons and organizations are anxious to help the fighting forces of the nation, but in some cases they don't know what to do or their offers, for one reason or another, cannot be accepted.

There is one case, however, where the help of certain societies or individuals will be most welcome, and that is the case of march music for military bands.

Every army band should have a répertoire of marches that can lift men's feet off the ground in cadence. Such marches are not often found. Sousa composed several of them, which are known all over the country, but they are now obsolete, so to speak. "Onward Christian Soldiers" is such a march, and it is possible that others could be found among the grand old hymns that have been handed down from past centuries. It is also possible and probable that English and French bands are playing new and inspiring marches that are not yet generally known on this side of the water.

If those who know what a march is that will cause men to forget fatigue, that will lift their feet in cadence without effort and automatically, that will make them so glad they are in the army that they can't understand why other eligibles should hesitate to enlist, I would appreciate a copy of such a march, or better, the complete parts for a military band. It would be of little benefit, however, to receive compositions that have not already been thoroughly tried out and found not only good but excellent.

I have a large number of military bands here, either complete or in the making, and will appreciate the assistance of those individuals or organizations who have special knowledge of the subject of military marches.

Epictetus for Drafted Men.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It is very depressing now and then to see a young drafted American, apparently without physical blemish, squirming every which way to obtain exemption. Listen to old Epictetus: "In what manner should I die?" asks he. And he replies, with a startling simplicity, "Like a man who gives up what belongs to another." Let any young American ponder this till it has been wrought into the fibre of his soul, and it will be revealed to him that he is no longer of common clay, but has been born into the ranks of the heroes. Or, as Epictetus again says, if we must be threads in the tunic of life, let us be the purple ones.

FRANK THILLY,

[Inclosure.]

Organizing Committee, People's Council of America for Democracy and Peace, 2 West Thirteenth Street, New York City:

You have sent me by mail two cards on which you request me to declare my sympathy with your aims and to pledge money in monthly payments for the support of your propaganda. What are your aims?

The viciousness of your propaganda consists in its combination of aims which are clearly in the interest of democracy and peace, and which I have always gladly supported, with others, stated more or less hidden in between, which are in the interest of autocracy, of a caste system of social organization, and of militarism.

How can you ask a citizen of the United States, in the present crisis, to pledge his moral support and his money in order to enable you "to work for the repeal of the conscription laws"? Such a request is but little short of an insult. It is an insult when addressed to a naturalized citizen. You, being citizens of this country merely by the accident of birth, may not understand this.

I am thoroughly familiar with the present organization of the German social body and with its culmination, the present German Government. I am much more familiar with it than any of the members of your committee. I have lived in Germany twenty-five years. I was born there. I was educated there. Not in the sense in which some of the members of your committee were educated there, who visited a German university for a year or two. I spent nineteen years of my life in German educational institutions, from the kindergarten to the research laboratory.

I confess that at the beginning of this war my sympathies were divided. The German nation had many justifiable complaints against its neighbors. But whatever wrongs the German nation may have suffered in the past from other nations, the German Government during this war has had more than one opportunity to have them set right and to terminate the war. Its actions show that world domination, not justice, is its aim. I sympathize with the German people, but not with their Government. You, however, act as voluntary agents for the German Government. Perhaps you would appreciate your American citizenship better if, like me, you had been born and brought up in Germany.

If Germany wins this war, fifty years hence its Government will rule the American people. I do not want my American children to be put under this yoke which I escaped by coming to America. My hope is that the German Government will be overthrown and that the German nation, my relatives and friends, will enter an international organization for peace and justice. But the German Government, this fearful danger to our future, can be overthrown only by raising armies, not by sitting around the council table of the "People's Council of America" and "working for the repeal of the conscription laws."

It is pitiful to see such a propaganda as yours led by an American university President, a distinguished scientist, who evidently cares nothing for the freedom of our children. It is pitiful to see even whole universities in trouble through the shortsighted activities of their professors in favor of the enemy. Please do not count on me for bringing this disrepute upon the University of Missouri, the institution to which I belong.

Yours sincerely,
MAX F. MEYER.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Every word of Mr. Root, General Scott, and other named members of the commission that has just returned from Russia deserves, of course, a respectful consideration. But there is startling news ascribed to some unnamed member of that commission which needs a thorough verification. It is said, for instance, that there were "thousands of Russians returned from the United States who turned against the land of their adoption and abused America and everything American." That these men "were quite as abusive of England and France, and called upon the Russians to abandon the cause of their allies and quit fighting Germany," and that "it is estimated that there were 10,000 of these returned Russians doing that sort of thing." It is estimated by whom? By the Russian Government? But the Government does not need to estimate, for it knows exactly the number of the Russians who were granted free passage from this country to Russia. So far as I know, the Russian Consuls in this country had given about $75 to each Russian political exile or refugee willing to return home, and the funds for that purpose had been exhausted long ago. As to the character of the Russian refugees here, I may say that some of them were too sincere republicans to abuse America in any sense whatsoever; the others were madly fighting against all capitalists in the world, Russian and German included; and, as exceptions, there were some who held that Russia would immensely profit by being conquered by Germany. The latter, the pobejdentzi, were encouraged in their delusion by some miserable sheets published in Russian in New York and elsewhere. But never can I believe that the number of such maniacs would amount to 10,000.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Has our Government informed Germany that the judicial murder of an American Captain of an American armed merchantman, captured by a German submarine, will be followed by instant reprisals upon German naval reserves now interned in America? If not, where will lie the moral responsibility for such murder, now that we know from the Fryatt murder that Germany understands only one argument?

THE RECRUIT'S MOTHER.

As children on the sunlit seashore play,
In the intense achievement of the hand
Seeing their happiest dreams win transient sway,
Then watch the heedless waters sweep away
So I, bereft yet uncomplaining, stand
Before my leveled towers of yesterday.
For he is gone, my eldest-born, the pride
Of oh! so many fortune-planning years;
Yet should his life, adventured on war's tide,
Sink in his country's service—hush, my fears!—
Let me be strong to say his dying dried

III.—Conditions of Bond Issues and Tax Levies to Give the Nation Its Highest Efficiency in the Struggle.

By L. F. LOREE,
President, the Delaware and Hudson Company.

The question of the relative proportions in which the United States should resort to loans and to taxation, respectively, should be considered in the light solely of those conditions which will give to the nation the highest degree of efficiency as a participant in the war. By what determination, in this respect, will its resources of men and materials be most efficiently marshaled to the end that the war shall be speedily and successfully brought to an end?

Considered in this aspect, it must be recognized that there exist no valid reasons for greater reliance than that indicated by the example of Great Britain upon taxation, and that the imposition of extraordinary taxation should be gradual in order that there shall remain as long as possible a safe margin of capacity to support still more taxation if the war should continue far beyond its expected duration and new revenue should thus be necessary as the basis for enlarged bond issues.

It is difficult, with the slight information as to governmental purposes now vouchsafed to the citizen, to form an opinion as to the precise amount which ought, at the outset, to be raised by taxation. Great Britain has so far, as has been seen, raised by taxes 18.74 per cent. of the amount, other than loans to allies and dependencies but including growing interest charges on war debt, of her war expenditures. The $15,000,000,000 which it is understood that the United States is to be required to produce must include enormous loans to Great Britain, France, Italy, and other creditors, who will undoubtedly pay both principal and interest. Such loans ought not to be considered in calculating the share of the $15,000,000,000 that ought to be immediately covered by taxation. Neither should any part of any sum that is to be expended for our own coast defenses or for naval expansion or for other permanent means of defense. The first thing required is, therefore, a reliable statement of the purposes to which the funds raised are to be devoted. When such a statement is available and the amount actually to be used for immediate war purposes, exclusive of the deductions indicated and all items that stand upon a similar footing, has been stated, it is suggested that the 18.74 per cent. of Great Britain fixes an absolute maximum which sound financial methods will not seek to greatly overstep. It was, therefore, a wise suggestion of the New York Chamber of Commerce in adopting the report of its Committee on Taxation, of which Mr. Isaac N. Seligman is Chairman, that the amount so raised by taxation during the first year of the war should not exceed 20 per cent.

The conditions of bond issues ought to be adapted to attract the savings of those whose accumulations are necessarily small and to make the incentive to saving as widespread and as effective as practicable. To that end the rate of interest should compare satisfactorily, all other factors being considered, with the rates currently paid by savings banks and trust companies. Especially, no good reason is recognized for discriminating against small purchasers and favoring the very wealthy by the exemption of the interest payments from liability to taxes upon incomes. In effect, this exemption amounts to the payment of higher rates of interest to those having large incomes than to those having small incomes, a most indefensible practice. If the Government foregoes an income tax of 20 per cent. in connection with a 3½ per cent. bond, it is equivalent to paying interest at the rate of 4.375 per cent. to the holder, and the wealthy owner who would pay income tax at that rate is thus given an advantage over the non-income taxpayer of seven-eighths of 1 per cent. interest, a high, unnecessary, and unjust premium. One may assume that the reason for this exemption is the belief, on the part of the financial managers of the Government, that it aids the marketability of the bonds and enables their sale at a higher price or, what is the same thing, at a substantially lower rate of interest. England tried the experiment in connection with its most recent loan, of offering the choice between a 4 per cent. bond free from income tax and a 5 per cent. bond taxable as to income. The result does not support the theory that such a discrimination is desirable or that it very materially affects the sales. Out of an aggregate issue, including conversions of earlier bonds sold at lower rates of interest, of $10,606,145,000 (£2,121,229,000) the purchasers of only $256,920,000, (£51,384,000,) or 2.42 per cent., chose the tax-free bonds.

The desirability of giving especial consideration to the predilections and demands of small investors is further indicated by British experience, which is that but $790,895,000, (£158,179,000,) or 8.05 per cent. of the total of $9,830,000,000 raised by loans, has come from their small investors. The United States should make every effort to establish a better record. The stimulation of such investments means much toward meeting the cost of the war by saving and frugality rather than by diminishing the store of labor-saving tools and machinery which the present generation ought to leave to its successors.

Passing to the realm of taxation, a wise system of taxation would include all those elements which could be expected to stimulate frugality and eliminate waste. This principle points directly toward taxes upon consumption and upon occupations, particularly of males, which could be dispensed with to the enhancement of the aggregate efficiency of the nation.

Coffee supplies an excellent example of an article of general consumption which ought to bear a tax for war purposes. During the twelve months which ended with June 30, 1915, the United States imported 1,126,041,691 pounds of coffee, which had an import value of $107,794,377. These data show an average value, at time of importation, of 9.6 cents per pound, and an average consumption, per capita of population, of 10.52 pounds. The difference between this average price of 9.6 cents per pound and the retail prices generally paid indicates that a tax of, say, 5 cents per pound would probably but little affect the prices paid by ultimate consumers.

Stamp taxes should be a principal means of revenue. Receipts should be required to be given for all purchases in excess of a very small minimum and each receipt should have a stamp. The former tax on checks should be restored and so should all, or nearly all, of the stamp taxes used during the civil war and the Spanish war.

Taxes upon incomes and upon profits directly resulting from the war will be an essential part of any system, but it is not to be overlooked that the former tend to retard the accumulation of capital, being therefore especially injurious when the retardation due to war is itself very great, while the latter will always be in a very large degree added to current prices, and hence to the profits themselves—usually with a safe margin in addition to the sum absorbed by the tax.

The following table, showing income tax collections of the United States Government in 1916, shows in what a large extent this sort of taxation is subtracted from funds which would otherwise be devoted to industrial uses; that is to say, would become capital:

	—Collected.—
Income Tax.	Amount.	P. C.
Normal	$23,995,777	35.32
Surtax on incomes of:
$20,000 to $50,000.....	6,091,776	8.97
50,000 to 75,000.....	4,071,362	5.99
75,000 to 100,000.....	3,623,473	5.33
250,000 to 500,000.....	6,393,859	9.41
Over $500,000..........	12,647,863	18.61
Total................	*$67,943,595	*100.00

*Includes $183,159.38, or 0.27 per cent., accepted in compromises and not classified.

The foregoing does not show the amount of the tax paid by persons having incomes in the higher classes, but, rather, the amounts collected under such different class. Of course, the larger part of the $23,995,777 normal tax was paid by persons who also paid heavy surtaxes. The records of 1916 show that out of 336,652 returns only 10,671, or 3.17 per cent., represented incomes of as much as $50,000 per year. The whole income tax collected in 1916 was paid by less than 350,000 individuals out of a population of 100,000,000 and at least two-thirds of it was paid by 10,671 of these individuals, or about one one-hundredth of 1 per cent. of the country's population. The suggestion vigorously advanced at the beginning of the war, but now happily abandoned in all responsible quarters, that the whole of all income in excess of $50,000 should be taken for war purposes would, if carried into effect, absorb all these potential savings until such time as the dearth of capital should be realized and the workers should find themselves deprived of the labor-saving advantages which capital supplies.

While income taxation must, under war conditions, constitute a principal source of national revenue, and the rates will, of necessity, be progressive, they should not absorb all the savings of any class and the exemptions should be so small as to make the tax felt by substantially every individual from whom enough could be collected, at the minimum rate of taxation, to pay barely more than the cost of collection.

The most novel fiscal expedient of the present war is the tax on profits which are assumed, often somewhat crudely, to result from the war. This tax would be better comprehended if it were denominated a tax on war profits instead of one on "excess" profits. The basic idea seems to be that there are certain industries which are abnormally stimulated by war and that, to the extent that they are so caused, the gains may rightfully be absorbed to pay for the struggle by which they are brought about. There can be no quarrel with this theory; the difficulties lie in its application. It is obvious, of course, that the absorption must not go so far as to make such industries relatively less profitable than other industries, for, if that happened, the production of greatly needed commodities might become insufficient.

England adopted such a tax, beginning with a rate of 50 per cent., which was subsequently increased to 60 per cent., and has finally been increased to 80 per cent. The most significant features of the English statute are the safeguards by which it is sought to secure the taxpayer against being required to pay on profits not of the kind intended to be taxed; that is to say, not war profits. The evident purpose of Parliament was, in every case, to give the benefit of any existing doubt to the recipient of profits, and in no case to tax as "excess profits" any profits, however great, not actually caused by the war. The taxpayer is, first, authorized to choose the standard of comparison between the current profits and those of the pre-war period, being allowed to select either:

1. The average of any two of the three years last before the war, or,
2. The "statutory percentage" standard, which is a rate varying from 6 to over 20 per cent. upon the capital employed.

Broad powers are granted to the assessing officers to modify the application of the tax and the "statutory percentage" for different classes of industries, and these powers have been exercised so as to provide, for example, that no "excess profits" tax shall be exacted from any individual operating coal mines anywhere in Great Britain unless the return is equal to 10 per cent. upon the capital employed. In the case of a corporation operating such coal mines, the minimum is placed at 9 per cent. on the capital.

In this connection it should be borne in mind that normal interest rates have always been much lower in England than in this country, and that, to be equally attractive, investments here have always had to produce from 2 to 5 per cent. more upon the capital.

The following table will further show what Great Britain has done in the way of new taxation, the comparison being between the last pre-war year and the fiscal year that ended with March 31, 1917:

	—Year Ended March 31.—
Customs	$177,250,000	$352,805,000
Excise	197,950,000	281,900,000
Stamps	49,830,000	39,390,000
Land tax..........	3,500,000	3,200,000
House duty........	10,000,000	9,700,000
Property and income tax, incl. surtax..	236,245,000	1,025,165,000
Land value duties..	3,575,000	2,605,000

	—Increase.—
Source of Revenue.	Amount.	P.C.
Customs	$175,555,000	99.04
Stamps	Decrease	....
House duty............	Decrease	....
Property and income tax, including surtax.......	788,920,000	333.94
Land value duties......	Decrease	....
Excess profits and munitions	699,600,000	Infinite
Total................	$1,755,380,000	215.35

It will be seen that 44.94 per cent. of the total increase in taxation has fallen upon incomes and 39.85 per cent. upon the so-called excess profits, these two items thus supplying 84.79 per cent., or all except about one-sixth, of the additional revenue that has been raised. It should be remembered that the British customs duties are really consumption taxes, as they are not levied to prevent importations or at all largely upon manufactured articles.

It is incontestable that when the public is required to bear the heavy burdens incident to making financial provision for such a war as that in which the United States is now engaged, it is entitled to a frugally administered Government and to the elimination of all waste and all excessive expenditures. Extravagance naturally attends sudden transition from expenditures on a small scale to those on a vastly larger scale, and officers of Government suddenly intrusted with powers not contemplated before are exceedingly loath to give up any fraction of their authority. They acquiesce only under pressure in the application of the ordinary safeguards and object to the institution of new ones commensurate with the matters to be looked after. Natural as this condition is, it should not be allowed to control lest the inevitable financial burdens of warfare be vastly increased, as they have been increased in all previous human experience, by unnecessary burdens due to extravagance and unwise management, if not to actual corruption. Moreover, there are sundry activities of government which require employment of many men and large expenditures that, when all that is possible has been said in their defense, must be acknowledged to be of smaller importance than private activities which must be sacrificed in order that money may be available for the struggle. These activities of government, superfluous at such a period as this, should be abandoned, or at least suspended until the return of normal conditions.

69TH IS ASSIGNED TO CAMP AT MINEOLA

Gen. Mann's New Forty-second Division to Mobilize There Preparatory to Sailing.

DRAFT DIVISIONS NAMED

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—The composite National Guard division, to be known as the Forty-second, to be formed immediately out of troops from twenty-six States and the District of Columbia, will be mobilized immediately at Mineola, L. I. The Sixty-ninth New York is to be a part of the division. The camp where this division will be temporarily stationed will be known as Camp Mills, named for the late Major Gen. Albert L. Mills, who was Major Gen. William A. Mann's predecessor as Chief of the Division of Militia Affairs.

General Mann is to command the new division, and within a week he will relinquish his duties as Chief of the Division of Militia Affairs. Beyond stating that this division will be sent to France immediately and will be the first National Guard contingent sent to the front, particulars regarding the plans for the use of this force cannot now be stated for military reasons.

General orders were issued today assigning the rest of the National Guard and the projected national army forces to camps and cantonments, and indicating the divisions into which they are to be formed. There will be sixteen national army divisions, composed of men now being drafted, the first third of which are to be mobilized on Sept. 5, and seventeen National Guard divisions, including the new Forty-second.

General Orders No. 101, providing for the reorganization of the regular army into divisions of 19,000 men, numerically stronger in artillery in ratio to infantry, and materially strengthened in machine gun units, was promulgated late this afternoon by Adjt. Gen. McCain. This order provides likewise for the concentration of the National Guard and for the formation of the sixteen divisions of the national army.

Orders are in preparation and soon will be issued providing for the assignment of Major Generals and Brigadiers nominated for promotion. These general officers all hold commissions in the National Army, and they are war commissions only. A tentative list of the assignments is before Secretary Baker for approval.

There are 138 regular army officers in the list of general officers promoted. The average age of the 35 new Major Generals and 103 new Brigadier Generals is a fraction over 56 years. The combined age of the 35 new Major Generals is 2,148 years, making their average age 61 years.

The combined age of the 103 new Brigadier Generals is 5,672 years, making their average age 55 years. The showing for the new Major Generals is: Four are 63, three are 62, three are 61, two are 60, one is 59, eleven are 58, two are 57, six are 56, one is 54, and two are 53 years old. For the new Brigadier Generals the showing is: Two are 62, eight are 61, seven are 60, five are 59, eight are 58, ten are 57, five are 56, twelve are 55, eleven are 54, seven are 53; six are 52, nine are 51, seven are 49, one is 48, and two are 47.

Distribution of New Army.

General Orders No. 95, as issued today, provide for the formation of the national army into divisions, and assigns them to cantonments for training as follows:

All these divisions of the national army will be composed of the men now being drafted under the selective service law.

General Order 95, promulgated today, also designates the camps at which the National Guard forces will be mobilized and trained and the divisions of the new army into which they will be formed.

The troops from New York that are to go to Spartanburg, S. C., will constitute the Twenty-seventh Division.

The Pennsylvania troops are assigned to Camp Hancock, at Augusta, Ga., and will constitute the Twenty-eighth Division.

The Twenty-sixth Division, at Camp Greene, Charlotte, N. C., will be made up of troops from Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, and Connecticut.

69TH IS READY FOR ORDER TO MARCH

7TH DETAIL JOINS TODAY

With France and the trenches on their minds, the men of the 165th United States Infantry, formerly the Sixty-ninth of New York, were busy all yesterday in polishing their equipment. In the armory there was great activity, extensive preparations being made in every direction for an early departure for the training camp at Mineola, where the 165th will be joined by the other contingents of the "Rainbow Division."

Although Lieut. Col. Latham Reed, commander of the regiment, has not received any definite instructions as to when his command will leave for Mineola, there was an impression at the armory and at National Guard division headquarters that the regiment might receive its marching orders tomorrow. If so, the regiment will be prepared, every precaution being taken by Colonel Reed yesterday to have his men in condition to move the moment that the order came.

Many of the transport wagons were loaded with supplies yesterday and field kitchens were prepared for service. It was stated at the armory that every man in the regiment was completely equipped, a condition, it was said, that does not exist in any other guard regiment of the State. The plan of the War Department is to complete the equipment wherever it is inadequate after the National Guard regiments arrive at the division cantonments.

The 360 men of the Seventh Regiment who have been transferred to the 165th United States Infantry in order to bring it up to war strength will march to the armory of the Sixty-ninth today, and will be promptly enrolled there. The men from the Seventy-first and the Twelfth who have been transferred will join the 165th at Mineola.

It is generally believed by the officers of the Sixty-ninth that the training at Mineola will not last long. The fact that Winter underwear has already been distributed to the men to take the place of the light garments issued several weeks ago seems to support the prediction that departure for Europe will be prompt.

The First Battalion of the Twenty-third Regiment of Brooklyn arrived shortly before noon yesterday at Van Cortlandt Park and pitched tents. The battalion is under the command of Major B. Blanton, and consists of Companies A B C and D and numbers 317 men. For the past five months they have been guarding railroads, bridges, and viaducts in the upper part of the State. The troops were greeted at the park by a large number of friends, relatives, and spectators. The Twenty-third, like the Seventy-first, now has its entire organization at the park. The Third Infantry of Rochester will encamp at Pelham Bay Park in the latter part of this week, while the First Regiment of Utica will arrive at Van Cortlandt Park early next week. The First Cavalry is encamped at Owl's Head, Bay Ridge.

It was learned at National Guard Headquarters yesterday that Corporal Nels Peterson, Company L, Seventy-fourth Infantry, was acquitted by a general court-martial of any guilt in connection with the killing of George A. Miller at Buffalo on July 9. The evidence before the court-martial showed that Miller had tried to enter the Curtiss airplane plant in Buffalo and had knocked Corporal Peterson down when ordered to halt.

Thomas L. Chadbourne, Chairman of the Mayor's Committee on National Defense, last night appointed the following committee to arrange the details of the big sendoff celebration which is to take place on the day before the New York division of the National Guard leaves for Spartanburg; Stephen L. Bond, Chairman; Ancell H. Ball, Colonel Franklin C. Brown, Herbert F. Gunnison, Alexander J. Hemphill, William W. Hoppin, Captain Elisha H. Janes, Major Francis G. Landon, General Anson G. McCook, S. Stanwood Menken, Dr. William M. Polk, William G. Willcox, and Walter I. Willis.

The committee includes Union and Confederate veterans of the civil war and representative citizens from each of the five boroughs. Since the date of the parade has not yet been fixed no further details were given out.

At the office of the Mayor's Committee on National Defense it was said that the promotion of Colonel Robert D. Walsh to the rank of Brigadier General would probably deprive New York of one of its most active and efficient recruiting officers. Colonel Walsh has been in charge of the regular army recruiting for the New York district for the last year. Ever since the war began he has given all his energy to the task of raising New York's quota for the regular army, which he succeeded in doing several weeks ago. He received congratulations from many friends yesterday. Brig. Gen. Walsh, during most of his army career, has been identified with the cavalry branch of the service. He participated in the Philippine campaign and also spent several years at the Mexican border, with General Pershing.

Until he is transferred to a command he will remain at the recruiting headquarters at 280 Broadway. Yesterday he enlisted more than 100 men in the regular army and a score or more for the National Guard.

A considerable number of young men made applications yesterday for commissions in the new aviation section of the Signal Corps. Twenty-thousand between the ages of 19 and 30 are wanted as fliers and observers. Such as seemed to meet the requirements were given application blanks to fill out. These applications will be sent to Washington.

Under the joint auspices of the British Recruiting Committee and the Mayor's Committee on National Defense a big war benefit and British American recruiting rally will be held next Thursday night at Keith's Orpheum Theatre in Brooklyn. The proceeds of the benefit will be given to the American Red Cross and the British Patriotic Fund, maintained for the benefit of British soldiers from the United States.

Among those who have volunteered to appear are Anna Held, Alice Brady, Sam Bernard, Lew Field, Montagu Love, Truly Shattuck, Billy Reeves, Mme. Aldini, and Adolfo Jimenez of the Madrid Opera. The United States Marine Band will play, and Judge William H. Wadhams of General Sessions will deliver a patriotic address. Tickets may be had at the box office of the Orpheum beginning next Monday at from 25 cents to $1.

Thirty speakers and singers stimulated interest in recruiting and the war from four platforms in Crotona Park, near Tremont and Arthur Avenues, the Bronx, last night. About 3,000 persons were present. The meeting was held by the Mayor's Committee on National Defense as one of a series intended to educate the public in the aims of the Allies in the war.

Colonel William Stewart of the Canadian forces spoke of the need of American armies on the western front, and urged men not taken in the draft to offer their services to the regular army. Other speakers were District Attorney Francis Martin and Franz Sigel, a relative of General Franz Sigel.

Cooks Volunteer for Yaphank.

More than fifty cooks were accepted yesterday by the board of which Auguste Gay is the Chairman, for the Yaphank cantonment. The examinations are being held in the clubrooms of the Hotel Men's Association, Fifth Avenue and Thirty-third Street. The interest of the men in the work has increased since the majority of the hotel and restaurant men have signed an agreement with their cooks whereby they will hold their jobs open for the men who accept service now as army civilian cooks.

trict Board upheld the decision and ordered Heledson certified for service. Robert M. Valverde also appealed from the decision of Board 124, on the ground that he was physically unfit for service. His appeal to the District Board was denied.

Max Goldenberg appealed from the decision of Board 34, in Brooklyn, which had found him fit for service. He declared that he was a victim of hernia. The examining physicians found no evidence of this, and the district board ruled that Goldenberg is fit for service. Peter Kravitz, another appellant from Board 34, appealed for exemption on the ground that he was the sole support of a father and a stepmother. The local board had ruled that conclusive evidence of dependency was lacking and refused to exempt. The district board affirmed the decision.

Jesse R. Pike was refused exemption by Board 124. He claimed exemption as the sole support of a wife whom he had married on May 12, last. The local board held that it had not been shown that Mrs. Pike could not support herself. The appeal was denied. Andrew Paoli sought exemption from Board 124 as the sole support of a wife. The evidence before the local board showed that Mrs. Paoli is a strong healthy woman who had been employed by a slot machine company at $18 a week, and later by a grocery concern at $8 a week. There was some argument on this case, but in the end the appeal was denied.

Nathan Green, appealing from Board 164, gave as his ground the support of dependent relatives. The appeal was denied. Leo B. Kreutzer was certified for service by Board 169. He appealed, stating that he was a victim of chronic appendicitis. The physicians reported there was no evidence of such affliction and the District Board denied the appeal. Harold M. Wall, was passed as physically fit for service by Board 124. He was married on June 1 last and filed a claim for exemption as the sole support of his wife. The local board denied the appeal and the District Board affirmed the decision.

Samuel Stein, passed for service by Board 124, filed a claim for a ninety-day's exemption in which to put his business affairs in shape. The application was denied. Donald G. Davis, certified for service by Board 134, filed a claim with the District Board for exemption because he was employed by the Sperry Gyroscope Company, which manufactures compasses and other scientific instruments for the United States Navy. Davis insisted that his services are indispensable, but the board took a different view and ruled that evidence needed to justify the exemption was lacking. His application was denied.

Wesley T. Smith, passed for service by Board 12, in the Bronx, said in his appeal to the District Board, that his knowledge of the secret processes used in the manufacture of certain products rendered his services indispensable. The board ruled that the evidence to support the claim was lacking and denied the application. Edward Aaronsohn, certified for service by Board 63 in Brooklyn, filed a claim for exemption with the District Board on the ground that he was employed by a company which manufactures delicate instruments used in submarines. He declared that his service, at the present time, was indispensable to the Government. Again the board ruled that evidence was lacking and denied his application.

One Gets Temporary Exemption.

Arthur I. Forst, passed by Board 124, told the District Board that his services as Vice President and General Manager of the Metropolitan Paper Bottle Company are of such nature as to be indispensable to that company. The application was denied on the same ground as the others of similar nature. William C. Corbin, who was certified by Board 32, in Brooklyn, asked the District Board to exempt him on the ground that he was the manager of a factory manufacturing airplane ribs. This application was the subject of some discussion. Mr. Delehanty, one of the board members, thought the application should be granted because of the vital importance of the airplane in the war. Former Supreme Court Justice George L. Ingraham and Louis Marshall recommended the denial of the application. The application was denied. Mr. Hughes announced after the disposal of this case that arrangements were being made to have Government experts pass on such cases as the above.

A. O. Crocker, passed for service by Board 150, applied for exemption on the ground that his services in the employ of the Western Electric Company were indispensable. His application was denied. Louis W. Dunham, certified for service by Board 32, in Brooklyn, was granted a six months' exemption, which, however, is revocable at the pleasure of Provost Marshal General Crowder. Mr Dunham is the supervisor of the shrapnel shells being manufactured for the United States Government by the American Can Company.

Reports on several other direct applications to the District Board were laid aside under the ruling of Chairman Hughes that reports on such applications should not be made until the expiration of the five-day period allowed for the filing of affidavits in support of these applications. Former Chief Judge Edgar H. Cullen of the Court of Appeals resigned yesterday as Vice Chairman of the District Board. Judge Cullen said that because of his advanced age and poor voice he believed that a younger man should be selected for that position.

"I sincerely hope," said Judge Cullen, "that it will never be necessary for a Vice Chairman to preside over this board."

Judge Ingraham was elected Vice Chairman. Judge Cullen will continue as a member of the board. Hundreds of appeals from local boards were filed with the District Board yesterday. The certified lists from the local boards are now being furnished to the District Board and are filed away for ready reference. Representatives of the nine New York State District Boards will meet in New York for a conference this afternoon. The meeting will be held in the rooms of the Bar Association, and will begin at 2 o'clock this afternoon. Chairman Hughes will preside.

At a meeting called by the Mayor's Committee on Hospital and Medical Facilities, representatives of hospitals yesterday adopted a resolution of protest against the drafting of medical students and internes. Dr. S. S. Goldwater presided at the meeting and was deputized to carry the protest to the proper authorities. It was pointed out that an unwise depletion of the supply of medical assistants would work harm to the public in addition to embarrassing the hospitals.

Charles E. Hughes, head of the District Board, is in favor of conserving the supply of medical students and internes and has promised to bring the matter up for discussion at a meeting this afternoon at the Bar Association. The deans of medical colleges probably will address the meeting. The committee sent the following telegram to Senator Calder:

"Meeting of hospital representatives in New York today point out the danger that hospitals will be without resident staffs next year and the army cut off from a supply of medical men in succeeding years if medical students are not granted temporary exemption from military service. Can an executive order be obtained authorizing temporary exemption?"

Practically all of the hospitals were represented at the meeting which was held in City Hall.

YONKERS QUOTA IS RAISED.

By order of Governor Whitman, the quota of 116 previously apportioned to Yonkers was raised yesterday morning to 487 and in the official notices the three local exemption boards were asked to select their new quotas as speedily as possible. The first board will now have to furnish 181 men instead of 43, the second 144 instead of 35, and the third 162 instead of 38. Exemption officials were taken completely by surprise by the change after they had practically completely their work and announced the names of the men drafted. In a few days, however, they expect to issue notices for the next 700 men in their districts to appear for examination.

City officials will be urged to protest and demand an investigation. Yonkers citizens want to know how the mistake was first made and how the new quota was arrived at as not a single city of its size has been asked to raise anywhere as near the new figure. With the announcement of the change came the news that White Plains's quota of 117 had been reduced to 80 following its protest to the Governor.

THREE ARE INDICTED IN DRAFT BOARD CASE

The Federal Grand Jury handed down two indictments in the draft board scandal yesterday, one charging Louis I. Cherey, the Grand Street druggist, who was Chairman of Board 99, and Dr. Samuel J. R. Bernfeld, who was a member of that board, with accepting a bribe of $200 from Jacob Skwirsky, the money being paid to procure Skwirsky's exemption from military service. The second indictment names Cherey and Bernfeld, and also Kalman Gruher, the alleged "go-between" in the case, and charges a conspiracy to aid other persons to evade the selective draft law, and to make false and incorrect physical examinations of certain men of draft age brought before them for examination. Abraham Leicher is named in the conspiracy indictment as a person from whom Cherey and Bernfeld demanded $300 as the price of his exemption from military service.

The indictments were handed down to Judge Augustus N. Hand in the criminal branch of the United States District Court, and Assistant United States District Attorney John C. Knox, who will prosecute the cases, announced that the accused men will be brought to trial next week. If convicted, Cherey, Bernfeld and Gruher can be sentenced to two years in the penitentiary and fined $10,000 each on the conspiracy charge, and Cherey and Bernfeld can be sentenced to three years and fined three times the amount of money taken on the bribery charge.

The accused men were not in court when the indictments were filed, and Judge Hand continued bail in each case at $5,000. The defendants will be arraigned for pleading before Judge Hand this morning.

The conspiracy indictment charges that between Aug. 8 and Aug. 11, Cherey, Bernfeld, and Gruher entered into an agreement to violate the selective draft law, and that as members of Board 99, Cherey and Bernfeld agreed to make the false examinations necessary in order to exempt those persons whose exemptions from duty in the national army were desired. On Aug. 8, it is charged, Gruher called on Dr. Bernfeld at 273 Rivington Street, Cherey also being present. It was at this meeting that the $300 is said to have been demanded from Leicher.

One other board, the district of which is located south of Fourteenth Street and east of the Bowery, is being rigidly investigated by the Secret Service. Many letters referring to the alleged illegal activities of members of this board are in the possession of the authorities. At least two other boards are reported to be the subject of inquiry.

The newly reorganized Board 99 yesterday began its work of re-examining every man called before the Cherey Board, and in the course of the day examined about 100 men, most of them the young fellows who had waived exemption before the old board. In some cases the man examined, who had been certified as fit for service by the Cherey Board, proved to be physically unfit. Three instances of the acceptance for service of unfit men developed before the new board had been in session three hours. Deputy Attorney General Roscoe Conkling visited the board yesterday afternoon. He found everything in good working order, and stated that he had no doubt of the efficiency of the new board.

While Mr. Conkling was in the examining rooms of Board 90 a man who had passed the physical test and who had been certified for service appealed to him.

"I want to be exempted as an alien," the man said.

"Have you taken out citizenship papers?" Mr. Conkling asked him. The man admitted he had.

"Well, then, you are not an alien and you cannot file such a claim," Mr. Conkling ruled.

"But I am an alien," the man persisted, "for if I had known the United States was going to war I would not have become a citizen."

The man was ordered certified for service. Another man in a neighboring district said he wanted to be exempted on the ground that he has a widowed mother to support.

"Have you anybody else to support," he was asked.

"Yes, a stepfather who won't work," he replied.

The board refused to exempt him, and when the man started to argue he was told to appeal his case, if he wanted to, to the District Board.

"Not on your life," he replied; "that board don't exempt unless you prove everything you say and then prove some more."

Board 91, with headquarters in Public School 1, Henry and Oliver Streets, announced that it would examine men who have claimed exemption in that district at a public meeting to be held in the school auditorium today. Sixty-six out of the many hundreds who have claimed exemption in this district have been ordered to appear. The board has posted a second call for 1,000 men, the first examinations to begin next Monday.

The lawyers appointed by Adjt. Gen. Stotesbury to represent the Federal Government in cases appealed from the local exemption boards met in the assembly hall of the Bar Association, 42 West Forty-fourth Street, yesterday afternoon to receive their instructions. Of the 122 who have been designated 112 were present. Sixty-seven others are to be appointed. Deputy Attorney General Conkling said:

"You are engaging upon important and delicate work. You will be called upon to use quick, loyal judgment and action. Remember, you represent the Government, and in case of doubt always give the benefit to the army. The first thing is to forget that you are a lawyer. What is needed in dealing with the questions which will confront you is just ordinary common sense."

Roger B. Wood, ex-Assistant United States District Attorney, who is assisting Mr. Conkling, then told the lawyers that they are to appeal every case of dependency to the district board, but are not to go before that board. They have the right to examine all records and should make independent examinations if they suspect fraud. Mr. Wood suggested that the lawyers be present at local boards while they are in session so far as possible. He told them they are expected to enter upon their duties this morning.

GEO. BLICKENSDERFER DIES.

Special to The New York Times.

STAMFORD, Conn., Aug. 15.—The war is blamed indirectly for the death of George C. Blickensderfer, inventor and President of the Blickensderfer Typewriter Company, who died this forenoon at his home in Sound Beach. Mr. Blickensderfer was 67 years old. Born in Erie, Penn., he began life as a dry goods salesman after a public school education.

Mr. Blickensderfer adapted the typewriter he invented to the Chinese alphabet, an accomplishment which so interested the Japanese Government that it revised its written language to adapt it to a typewriter keyboard.

Since the war began Mr. Blickensderfer has been devoting himself to inventions of belt loading devices by which cartridges are automatically loaded into machine guns, and to a machine gun mount which facilitates the use of these engines of war. Hard work on these inventions caused a breakdown of Mr. Blickensderfer's health.

NEED KNITTED GARMENTS.

Navy Department Asks Comforts Committee to Push Its Work.

An urgent call for 4,500 knitted garments, to be delivered at the Navy Department in Washington at the earliest possible moment, was received yesterday by Mrs. Herbert F. Satterlee, Chairman of the New York branch of the Comforts Committee of the Navy League at 500 Fifth Avenue. The Navy Department call stated that 2,000 mufflers, preferably gray, although blue would be accepted, and 2,500 khaki colored sweaters for the marines were especially needed.

"We expect to get them all off in less than two weeks," said Mrs. William H. Hamilton, Chairman of the committee in charge of the Comfort Committee's activities. "Our work for the sailors was started four months ago, and during that time we have sent to Washington 40,480 garments, averaging over 10,000 a month. Last Monday we sent a box of 470 mufflers."

Some idea of the widespread interest in knitting for the sailors may be seen from the fact that during four months the Comforts Committee has sold at its Fifth Avenue rooms nearly 27,000 pounds of wool and 17,000 pairs of needles. The contributions to supply free wool to those unable to buy it have been $14,673. Mrs. Hamilton said that beginning Aug. 1 it had been necessary to raise the price of knittnig wool to $2.40 a pound. It was formerly sold for $2. About two pounds will make the complete set of five garments now being provided, including a sleeveless sweater, helmet, socks, wristlets and muffler.

He entered the ministry at Norwich, but resigned soon afterwood to study law at the Boston Law School. Mr. Kellogg went to Yonkers in 1880, and practiced law until he was elected City Judge in 1895. He was re-elected City Judge, and resigned in 1905 to run against John H. Coyne for Mayor and was defeated.

ASKS MR. DANIELS TO QUIT WITH HIM

FOR JOINT RESIGNATION

Daniels Leaving the Navy Department and Thompson the League Called "a Sporting Proposition."

Colonel Robert M. Thompson, President of the Navy League of the United States, made public yesterday a letter he had written to Secretary of the Navy Daniels in the controversy growing out of the charge made by the League that the Navy Department had failed to make an adequate investigation of the recent explosion at the Mare Island (Cal.) Navy Yard. In this letter Colonel Thompson offered to resign as head of the organization if the Secretary would quit his place in the Navy Department.

The letter was given to the press before it could reach the Secretary of the Navy. It was an answer to a letter sent by Secretary Daniels to Colonel Thompson remonstrating against the statement made by officers of the League that they had been credibly informed that the explosion at Mare Island, in which five persons were killed, was caused by a time fuse attached to the black powder magazine, and that the inquiry into the incident had been blocked by labor influences. Secretary Daniels wrote that the chief service Colonel Thompson and the other officials of the Navy League could give to the navy would be to "resign at once and permit the League to be directed by those who in a crisis like the present could not permit a statement to be given out which attempts to discredit the entire Navy Department, and which will be read with contempt and disgust by every honest citizen in America."

My Dear Mr. Daniels: I have received through the columns of the daily press your letter dated Aug. 14.

It is true that Mr. Staton (the Secretary of the Navy League) and I, in order to insure cordial co-operation between the Navy Department and the Navy League, offered to give way to persons who might be selected by you for the purpose. We knew that we had committed the grave offense of being right when you were wrong, and that, to some minds, this is an unforgivable offense.

So, in the interests of the service that we love and the country we are working for, we were ready to sacrifice ourselves. If it were necessary for you to remain as Secretary of the Navy, it would probably be better to have some one other than myself as head of the Navy League, for I find it difficult to respect the Navy Department when that department is represented by you.

In your interview you substantially admit the important fact in our statement, namely, that the explosion was the result of a conspiracy, but do not explain to the public why you have failed to take action.

There is a reason. What is it? You were very angry with us for telling the American people this important fact. Why? Quoting from your letter to me, the chief service which you can render the navy is to resign at once.

I make you a sporting proposition—if you do, I shall. Faithfully yours,

ROBERT M. THOMPSON,

The Mare Island explosion occurred on July 9 last, and in addition to killing five persons, injured thirty-five others. The Navy League contended that it had received its information that it was the result of a conspiracy "from an official source," but never disclosed what this source was.

AWAITS THOMPSON'S EXIT.

Daniels Says He Will Ignore Present Heads of Navy League.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—Secretary Daniels today renewed his attack on the Navy League for circulating a report that the recent fatal explosion at the Mare Island Navy Yard was caused by a time fuse, and that the department's inquiry into the explosion had been blocked by labor interests. He declared that he would have nothing to do with the Navy League as at present officered. He added that he expected the resignation of Colonel Robert M. Thompson, President of the league, to be forthcoming, in accordance with the Secretary's written suggestion.

Mr. Daniels declared that the charge made by the Navy League that the inquiry into the explosion at Mare Island had been hampered through powerful labor influence was "vile and vicious."

"If what they say was true," said Mr. Daniels, "I ought to be indicted and impeached. If any officer of the navy blocked the investigation he would be courtmartialed. The only statement I should accept would be resignations, a housecleaning. Otherwise, I will have to take other steps."

Mr. Daniels said he would not indicate what the other steps might be. He said that, after its publication of a statement attacking the navy, without first informing the Navy Department of the charge made, the league ought to call itself an "anti-navy" league. He expressed the conviction that the officers of the league alone were responsible for the charge, and that the membership of the league, "composed of so many excellent people," would be so outraged by it as to require a housecleaning. He reiterated that he had no doubt Colonel Thompson would resign.

PLEA FOR LEGAL AID.

Society Needs $5,000 to Meet Deficit in Expenses.

The Legal Aid Society, of which Charles E. Hughes is President and which looks out for the legal interests of the poor, issued an appeal yesterday for $5,000 to meet a deficit in current expenses. In a statement issued on behalf of the society, John T. Pratt, the acting Treasurer, said:

"There is so little spectacular about the work of this society that it often becomes difficult to interest the public generally in its activities. That it has many good and generous friends is evidenced from the fact that it receives over $30,000 yearly. But even this is inadequate, as the calls upon us number about 40,000 a year. The protection of these 40,000 poor of the city and obtaining for them their just earnings and the rightings of their wrongs may seem small and insignificant to some, but the relief and satisfaction which it brings to the client is like the healing of a wound.

"Many believe that in our courts the poor working man or woman has no right. The Legal Aid Society proves the contrary is the fact. Our society judges the merits of their claims before becoming their advocates and always aims to be a peacemaker, discouraging litigation whenever it can be fairly avoided. This society believes it is doing its part in fighting the battles of the poor against fraud, chicanery and oppression."

Returns Wounded from France.

J. J. O'Reardon, who went away in the Fall of 1915 as a stoker on the steamship Andrew, which was torpedoed on the way over to England, and afterward enlisted in the Royal Welsh Fusiliers, returned yesterday to his home at Greenpoint suffering from a wound. He was shot near the heart, he said, while working as a stretcher bearer in France.

LA FOLLETTE AT HEAD OF PRO-PEACE PARTY

I. W. W.'s, Socialists and Pacifists Will Greet Him in Convention at Minneapolis.

Special to The New York Times.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Aug. 15.—The "Party of Discontent," typified by the People's Council, is trying to get up enough steam to make itself a factor in the next election, at least in Minnesota.

Pro-German, ultra-pacifist, Socialist, I. W. W., Nonpartisan League, and peace-at-any-price elements are being drawn upon for recruits to the party.

Plans are already under way in Minnesota for bringing out candidates for the United States Senate, Governor, and for Congress in those districts now represented by so-called "war Congressmen." Senator La Follette for President, James A. Peterson for United States Senator, Mayor A. L. Fritsche of New Ulm for Governor, Albert Pfaender for Congress in the Second District—so the slate is said to run now. Congressman Lundeen, who now contributes to Viereck's Weekly, and the others who voted against the war will be supported, it is said.

Preliminary steps in the organization of the Minneapolis branch of the People's Council were taken at a meeting attended by many members of the old American Neutrality League, men of pronounced German sentiment and extreme pacifists, and addressed by Mayor A. L. Fritsche.

La Follette, who is at the head of the movement to found a national party, will be the chief speaker at a People's Council mass meeting to be held at the St. Paul Auditorium on Sept. 2. He advised Minneapolis friends that he would be here unless matters of grave importance demanded his presence in Washington. The La Follette meeting will be the headliner of the assembly of the People's Council to be held here the first week in September.

Louis P. Lochner of Chicago, Secretary, will arrive in Minneapolis Friday to open headquarters of the council. Lochner was the leader of the Ford peace expedition after Mr. Ford left it. Ex-Senator John D. Works of California, Morris Hillquit, Victor Berger, David Starr Jordan and other advocates, who have been assailing the Government ever since the war started, will come here for the People's Council.

Those who are leading the movement in Minneapolis deny that they are backed by Germans. Despite their denials, it is an undisputed fact that many of the leaders, some of those who are loudest in their protestations of strict neutrality, are men, not only of German parentage, but men of known pro-Kaiser sentiment.

FOOD-SAVING PLAN FAILS.

Majestic Patrons Demand the More Expensive Dishes.

Copeland Townsend of the Hotel Majestic, has devoted two weeks to experiments in food conservation at his hotel. He declared yesterday that the work had been fruitless. The public did not take to food conservation, and Mr. Townsend believes it will take a long campaign of education by Mr. Hoover to put a gastronomic saving streak into the nation.

Mr. Townsend's first experiment was with a substitute for butter. Bread and butter sell for 10 cents at his hotel. He placed in large type over the bread and butter an announcement of peanut butter and bread for 5 cents. In three days the auditing department found one order for peanut butter, and tracing it further, discovered that Mr. Townsend had ordered it.

Then, complying with the suggestion of the Washington food savers, Mr. Townsend arranged to have each Tuesday meatless, and his steward arranged an elaborate meatless menu. On the first Tuesday more meat was ordered than on the Tuesday before.

White Leghorn eggs are 11 cents a dozen higher than Rhode Island Reds. The Rhode Island eggs, it is said, are the more nutritious. Mr. Townsend so announced on his bill of fare, and pointed to the lower price.

"The result," said Mr. Townsend wearily, "was a rush to buy White Leghorn eggs. They are more in demand than ever."

USE ARTILLERY ON SPANISH STRIKERS

ARREST SOCIALIST LEADERS

PARIS, Aug. 15.—Six persons were killed and nine others were wounded when strikers clashed yesterday with soldiers at Barcelona, according to a statement issued by the Spanish Captain General, and received here by the Petit Parisien.

The Captain General in his statement summing up the strike situation said that several street cars driven by soldiers in Barcelona were attacked by strikers, and in the fighting that followed the six persons were killed. He asserted that the People's House and the Republican Union Office at Gracia had been closed. The statement concluded by announcing that the Spanish Government was determined to act with the utmost rigor against the revolutionaries.

In a later dispatch filed at Cerbere, on the French frontier, the Petit Parisien correspondent says that the situation at Barcelona has become more serious. The strikes have spread, and there now is practically a general strike.

Martial law has been proclaimed, all the stores are closed, and the factories in Barcelona and the Gracia suburb are deserted. The street cars have stopped running altogether.

MADRID, Aug. 15.—Premier Dato at noon today announced that artillery had been used in Barcelona against a house in the Paseo de Gracia, from which hidden revolutionaries had fired upon and killed Captain Justo Fernandez and wounded three soldiers. The house was demolished and a number of its inmates were killed or wounded.

Artillery also was used at Sabadell, in Catalonia, ten miles northwest of Barcelona, where two civil guards were killed and three wounded and a large number of strikers were killed or wounded in the fighting. Reinforcements have been sent to Sabadell.

Premier Dato said the general strike had been a failure, since the revolutionaries had been unable to bring about the paralysis of any public service. The Government was confident, he said, of the support of public opinion and he believed order would be rapidly restored.

The Premier added that the police had captured secret codes used by the revolutionaries to communicate with the different provinces and other papers, which gave the key to the entire movement.

The city was more calm today than yesterday.

Interior Minister Guerra said yesterday that the strike agitation had increased in several quarters of the capital, but that the troops acted vigorously and quelled the disturbances. The Government has taken steps to restore order. The Captain General at first charged his orders in a moderate spirit and then replaced them by others more severe.

The Government and press are without news from the provinces. A few newspapers hope to appear tonight. The rest have suspended publication on account of the military censorship.

Madrid is without cabs. Most of the stores are closed. Groups of workmen parade the streets while soldiers patrol the principal points of the city. The Minister of the Interior has received letters from a number of persons offering their services as special constables. The Minister has drawn up a list of them. Premier Dato said:

"We are confronted with an anarchist movement inspired by no definite object, not even of effecting a change in the Ministry."

The capital is like an armed camp. The bakers having struck, bread for the inhabitants is being baked by the soldiers.

Reports from San Sebastian, Santander, Corunna, and Granada say that the situation in those places is quiet. No newspapers have been published, however, and the street cars running have been manned by soldiers. Trains, although delayed, are running normally.

The Minister of the Interior in a statement to the press said that while the police were searching a house in the Rue de Sengano yesterday they found City Councilor Largo Caballero, a Socialist leader, concealed under a mattress, while behind some curtains were four other members of the Socialist Committee—Señors Saborich, Anguino, and Bersgiro, and Mme. Virginia Alvarez. The Minister of the Interior averred that the movement had been stifled.

The searching of houses resulted, according to the police, in the discovery of compromising documents. The Socialists arrested were locked up in a military prison after a hearing before a military court.

The newspapers publish details of the events in the Cuatro Caminos quarter on Monday, giving also the list of dead and injured. The dead included one child and two old men. The majority of the strikers remained at home after the troops had fired in the air to intimidate the crowds.

The military authorities of Catalonia report that the strikers' aggressions have been energetically checked since the proclamation of a state of siege. In the disorders in Catalonia five strikers and one civil guard were killed and nine strikers were injured.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—The regular army has now enlisted 5,039 more men than its war strength and the young men of the country are continuing to enlist. These men can be used in filling the reservoir upon which the army will draw to fill vacancies caused by death or other losses. The fact that the army has reached war strength has not cut down recruiting. Tuesday, when 1,305 men were taken in, was the best day the recruiting officers had experienced in several days. New York led with 160 men. The daily statement issued by Adjutant General McCain follows:

HOOVER LAUNCHES WHEAT CORPORATION

buying for the American Government. If found advisable it also will serve as broker for the milling interests, purchasing wheat for the flour mills, to keep the market steady. The Allies will be required to purchase flour instead of wheat on the theory that manufacturing costs will be reduced and American industry encouraged.

Sacrifices by Grain Men.

All of the grain men who are taken into the Food Administration's grain division will dissociate themselves from business interests and will give their entire time to the Government without remuneration.

"These men," said Mr. Hoover, "are making a magnificent sacrifice, and many of them are giving up large incomes."

Authority to license grain elevators and milling concerns was given formally to the Food Administration today in a proclamation by President Wilson. Mr. Hoover hopes that operation of the licensing system will make unnecessary any extensive Government purchases of wheat, except for the Government itself and for the Allies. He believes a stable export price and proper supervision of exchange dealings will do more than anything else to keep prices on a constant level.

More than one hundred representatives of boards of exchanges and elevator systems came to Washington today for a conference with officials on the Government's plans. At the end of an all-day meeting they issued a statement approving the Food Administration's proposals. A resolution adopted by the conference reads:

"Realizing that the operation of Government control in wheats and rye is essential under present war influences in order to adequately protect our home supply and furnish our allies with the aid we owe, and realizing that the establishment of an efficient Government plan of operation means to all of us curtailment of our business and to some of us actual retirement from active business during such period, we do express our pride in the character of service tendered by the grain trade in the sacrifice by these men of ability who are placing their experience and energy at the service of the Government, and we approve the general plan of operation as explained to us as sound, workable and necessary, and in its general lines it appears to us as being the most efficient and just plan of operation which we can conceive."

Millers Name Committee.

Representatives of the millers also met here today and named a committee to serve with the Food Administration in drawing up and enforcing the regulations governing flour manufacture. It is headed by James F. Bell of Minneapolis, and has as its members eight other leading millers representing various sections. The personnel follows:

James F. Bell, Minneapolis, Chairman.
A. P. Husband, Chicago, Secretary.
Albert C. Loring, Minneapolis, representing the Northwest.
Andrew J. Hunt, Arkansas City, Kan., representing the Southwest.
E. M. Kelly, Nashville, Tenn., representing the Southeast.

No plans have been made for grain purchases by neutral countries, although it is likely all will be required to buy through the Food Administration. This will give the Government a close check on purchases and will aid the Exports Council, to which applications for grain exports must be submitted. Just now no food of any character is leaving the United States for the European neutral countries, but some will be permitted to go as soon as the countries concerned have supplied full data as to their needs.

Whereas under and by virtue of an act of Congress entitled "An act to provide further for the national security and defense by encouraging the production, conserving the supply, and controlling the distribution of fuel," approved by the President on the 10th day of August, 1917, it is provided among other things as follows:

That, by reason of the existence of a state of war, it is essential to the national security and defense, for the successful prosecution of the war, and for the support and maintenance of the army and navy to assure an adequate supply and equitable distribution and to facilitate the movement of foods, feeds, fuel, (including fuel oil and natural gas,) fertilizer and fertilizer ingredients, tools, utensils, implements, machinery and equipment required for the actual production of foods, feeds, and fuel, herafter in this act called necessaries; to prevent, locally or generally, scarcity, monopolization, hoarding, injurious speculation, manipulations, and private controls, affecting such supply, distribution, and movement; and to establish and maintain Governmental control of such necessaries during the war. For such purposes the instrumentalities, means, methods, powers, authorities, duties, obligations, and prohibitions hereinafter set forth are created, established, conferred, and prescribed. The President is authorized to make such regulations and to issue such orders as are essential effectively to carry out the provisions of this act.

"That, from time to time, whenever the President shall find it essential to license thei mportation, manufacture, storage, mining, or distribution of any necessaries, in order to carry into effect any of the purposes of this act, and shall publicly so announce, no person shall, after a date fixed in the announcement, engage in or carry on any such business specified in the announcement of importation, manufacture, storage, mining, or distribution of any necessaries as set forth in such announcement, unless he shall secure and hold a license issued pursuant to this section. The President is authorized to issue such licenses and to prescribe regulations for systems of accounts and auditing of accounts to be kept by licensees, submission of reports by them, with or without oath or affirmation, and the entry and inspection by the resident's duly authorized agents of the places of business of licensees."

And, Whereas, It is essential in order to carry into effect the provisions of the said act, and in order to secure an adequate supply and equitable distribution, and to facilitate the movement of certain necessaries hereafter in this proclamation specified that the license powers conferred upon the President by said act be at this time exercised to the extent hereinafter set forth.

Now, therefore, I, Woodrow Wilson, President of the United States of America, by virtue of the powers conferred upon me by said act of Congress, hereby find and determine and by this proclamation do announce that it is essential in order to carry into effect the purposes of said act, to license the storage and distribution of wheat and rye and the manufacture, storage, and distribution of all products derived therefrom to the extent hereinafter specified.

All persons, firms, corporations and associations engaged in the business of either storing or distributing wheat or rye, as owners, lessees or operators of warehouses or elevators, and all persons, firms, corporations and associations engaged in the business of manufacturing any products derived from wheat or rye, (except those operating mills and manufacturing plants of a daily capacity of one hundred barrels or less, and farmers and co-operative associations of farmers,) are hereby required to secure on or before Sept. 1, 1917, a license, which license will be issued under such rules and regulations governing the conduct of the business as may be prescribed.

Applications for licenses must be made to the United States Food Administrator, Washington, D. C., upon forms prepared by him for that purpose.

Any person, firm, corporation or association, other than those hereinbefore excepted, who shall engage in, or carry on the business of either storing or distributing wheat or rye as owners, lessees or operators of warehouses or elevators, or manufacturing any products derived from wheat or rye after Sept. 1, 1917, without first securing such license, will be liable to the penalties prescribed by said act of Congress.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done in the District of Columbia, this 14th day of August, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and seventeen, and of the Independence of the United States of America, the one hundred and forty-second.

WOODROW WILSON.

By the President:

ROBERT LANSING,
Secretary of State.

Form "United States Millers."

CHICAGO, Aug. 15.—The United States Millers, a voluntary organization projected to enroll every miller in the United States, will form the big machine through which it is expected to carry out the details of Herbert Hoover's control of the flour business. This was determined here today at a meeting of the Advisory Council appointed by Mr. Hoover to represent the milling industry. The country has been divided into eight districts by Mr. Hoover, who appointed an executive head for each district. These men, with J. F. Bell of Minneapolis, as Chairman, were present at the meeting here today.

A statement issued after the meeting appeals to the patriotism of all millers to join the United States Millers and points out that they will scarcely be able to do business under comprehensive Federal control unless they do so. The statement remarked that the important subject of flour prices must await the fixing of wheat prices, which is to be done by the Federal Price-Fixing Committee.

The statement goes on to explain that wheat will be apportioned to the millers by the Grain Corporation at prices to be fixed by the Garfield committee, and that "this wheat will be ground into flour for both domestic and export distribution, the latter being closely regulated so as to secure the maximum of flour exports to our allies without risking any shortage at home.

"In support of the Government's express purpose of doing away with all forms of speculation, the millers' organization proposes to put all sales of flour and mill feed on the basis of prompt shipment, thirty days being the maximum time allowed under the terms of the uniform sales contract now being prepared."

WARNS FRENCH BANKERS.

Finance Minister Cautions Them Against Unpatriotic Speculation.

PARIS, Aug. 15.—Joseph Thierry, Minister of Finance, yesterday addressed a letter to all bankers in France calling attention to the fact that the war is not being conducted exclusively along military, but also along financial and economical lines. He urges, therefore, the subordination of all financial operations to national interests. He tells the bankers that all speculation in foreign money or values is contrary to the interests of France if unaccompanied by genuine early payments, and says the banks must abstain from such operations and warn their clients against them.

Likewise, says the Minister of Finance, it is contrary to the interests of France to export capital except for the purpose of paying for imports, merchandise, and for civil and commercial debts under lawful conditions, or in payment of the existing needs of people living outside of France but having property in it.

SPLIT OVER PERKINS IMPERILS FOOD BILL

FINAL VOTE IS DELAYED

ALBANY, Aug. 15.—With Republican lawmakers from rural districts in open revolt, the proposed food control legislation is tonight in distinct danger. After the Republican Senators and Assemblymen had caucused without getting anywhere, the legislative leaders who at recent conferences with Governor Whitman were active in arranging a "harmony program" abandoned their plan of putting the compromise bill, agreed upon at their meetings with the Governor, to a final vote this week.

It was announced this evening that final action on food control had been postponed by agreement until a week from today. The legislative leaders, after sounding the sentiment among their colleagues, refused to venture any prediction as to the fate of the pending bill.

Governor Whitman said tonight that he was not by any means through fighting for real food control, which he believes can be obtained through the compromise measure agreed upon at the conferences between him and the legislative leaders. He insisted that everything he had contended for was embodied in that bill, adding: "I am of the opinion that the bill will be enacted."

Split Over Perkins.

From all appearances, George W. Perkins is the rock on which food control may go to smash. Only six Republican Senators, out of twenty-eight who attended a secret conference today, voted in favor of the confirmation of Mr. Perkins, in the event of his nomination as Food Control Commissioner. Eleven voted against Mr. Perkins and eleven are recorded as undecided. Every Republican Senator from New York City who attended the conference, with the exception of Albert Ottinger, was placed in the doubtful column. Senator Ottinger said he would oppose Mr. Perkins's confirmation.

Seventy-four of the ninety-nine Republican Assemblymen attended the Assembly caucus. Of these, forty-five declared their willingness to accept the bill if assurances were forthcoming that Mr. Perkins would not be named on the Food Control Commission. On the last rollcall, however, thirty-two were recorded as opposed to food control legislation, Perkins or no Perkins.

In the Assembly seventy-six votes are required for the passage of a bill. The attitude of the Republican Assemblymen who were absent from the caucus today is not known at the Capitol. But even though they should vote for the bill in a body it would not be enough to make up the required majority. The Governor, it was definitely stated today, will not receive any support from the Democrats in the Senate and Assembly.

The Republican insurgents against food control were astir early. Before the Legislature met, Assemblyman Louis M. Martin of Oneida presided at a conference of thirty-five Republican Assemblymen from up-State, who pledged themselves to oppose to the end any food legislation whatsoever. After this conference it was stated that the conferees were acting under mandates from their rural constituents, who threatened to "butcher" them in the primaries, where most of them will be candidates for renomination, should they vote for the pending Food Control bill.

Tries to Eliminate Perkins.

The feature of the Assembly caucus was opposition to George W. Perkins, which culminated in a proposal from Assemblyman Martin of Oneida for an amendment to the Food Control bill to prevent any person ever identified with the manufacture or sale of harvesting machinery or agricultural implements from becoming a member of the Food Control Commission. Action on this motion, obviously made to eliminate Mr. Perkins, because of his connection with the Harvester Trust, was postponed.

"An informal expression showed that a large number of Senators were opposed to the appointment and confirmation of Mr. Perkins. Another subject of discussion was the markets provision in the bill, to which exception has been taken by the Mayor and Controller of the City of New York. This matter is also held in abeyance, the New York Senators being at present opposed, while the conference of the Assembly is strongly in favor of the retention of the provision. It is hoped that the authorities of the City of New York will withdraw opposition to such a desirable provision."

Senator Brown told the New York City Senators, however, that if objection was made on the floor by any Senator representing a New York City district he would assent to eliminating the entire provision for terminal markets in the Food Control bill.

Prendergast Wires Lawmakers.

Controller Prendergast sent telegrams to all the lawmakers from New York City urging them to oppose the terminal market plan, which provides for the State paying half and the cities half the cost of their terminal markets, on the ground that it would involve the payment by taxpayers in New York City, of half of the cost of markets for all the cities of the State, in addition to half the cost of the city's own markets. A vote taken in the Assembly caucus on a motion to eliminate this provision from the bill was beaten, 50 to 18, up-State Assemblymen contending for leaving it in.

A statement from the Dairymen's League which appeared on the desks of the lawmakers this morning attacked Mr. Perkins.

"The bill as a whole," the statement read, "is obviously designed to result in the appointment as food dictator in this State of one who is hostile to farmers' co-operative associations and who, by reason of his monopolistic associations, is temperamentally unable to view the problems involved from the standpoint of either the producer or the consumer, but only from that of the middleman."

Representatives of the Dairymen's League and other organizations of farmers who have been haunting the legislative halls during the extraordinary session said tonight that they would carry their fight on Perkins further and try to block the bill that would enable him to become Market Commissioner for New York City without giving up his place at the head of the Palisades Park Commission.

COLBY TO CONTROL RATES.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—The initial step toward fixing an arbitrary transatlantic freight rate upon American vessels was taken today by the Shipping Board, when Bainbridge Colby, the new member, was placed in control of the rate-fixing program. Mr. Colby left for New York to confer with shipping interests, and, in conjunction with them, work out a basis for rates to be put into effect later by the Shipping Board.

Control of all ocean freight rates in trade between the United States and the Allies is embraced in the program. Up to this time, efforts of the Shipping Board to reach a general international agreement for control of these freight rates and of the world's available tonnage have failed. The Shipping Board now intends to handle its own tonnage problem and fix its own rates, hoping that the Allies will follow the rates decided upon.

A survey of available American tonnage is being made by the Shipping Board and will be completed within a few days. Chairman Hurley will use this survey as a basis to fix the distribution of tonnage to the various ocean trades which must be maintained in addition to the transatlantic war commerce. The tonnage will be divided to provide accommodations for import shipments which are vitally necessary to the conduct of the war, such as ntrates from Chile, and to provide for American shipping representation in the trades where after-the-war commerce must be considered.

I. W. W. THREATENS STRIKE.

Will Call Out Men in Four States if Demands Are Refused.

SPOKANE, Wash., Aug. 15.—Unless five specific demands are granted by Aug. 20, the Industrial Workers of the World will call a general strike in Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Montana, according to a statement today by James Rowan, District Secretary of the organization.

Rowan said the Governors of the States mentioned had been notified of the determination to strike. The strike is addressed to agricultural and construction workers and enumerates the following demands:

Release of all I. W. W. members now in custody; a ten-hour day in the harvest fields; better sanitary conditions; no discrimination against the organization, and various locals to be allowed to conduct business without interference.

The call recites "that for the last few weeks a systematic persecution has been carried on against our members. Halls have been closed. Our members arrested by hundreds and thrown into jail and held there without trial and without any charges being preferred against them. The treatment accorded our fellow workers in these places is nothing short of barbarous."

Elevated Trains Collide.

Two men were injured slightly when a northbound train on the Third Avenue elevated road at Sixty-second Street crashed into the rear car of another northbound train. The damage to the platforms of the cars was slight. The injured were Nathan Kleiner of 5 Willett Street and Harry Greenwald of 684 East 137th Street, the Bronx. Both went home after being attended by Dr. Williams of Flower Hospital. Michael Costello, motorman of the colliding train, said the forward train, in charge of Michael McDonald, stopped short, and he was unable to apply his brakes in time to avoid the crash. Both trains were able to proceed after the collision.

PLAN NEW FORD BUILDING.

Hotel Project Abandoned for a Business Structure.

Plans filed in the Building Bureau yesterday revealed the fact that the Ford Motor Company will erect a six-story building for its offices and showrooms on the plot at the northeast corner of Broadway and Fifty-fourth Street, instead of the sixteen-story hotel projected a year ago as an addition to the Hotel Woodward on the Fifty-fifth Street corner of Broadway. The old buildings on the Fifty-fourth Street corner were torn down several months ago.

The Ford Motor Company purchased the property in June, 1916, for about $500,000, the assessed value being $423,000. Albert Kahn of Detroit, the Ford architect, drew plans for a sixteen-story hotel, the upper thirteen stories of which were to connect with the Hotel Woodward, and it was said that a long lease of the new hotel had been taken by the Hotel Woodward. The projected building would have cost about $1,000,000.

Owing to the upset condition of the labor and building market the hotel project has been temporarily abandoned. The new Ford building is estimated to cost $300,000 by the architects, A. Kahn and E. Wilby. It was said that work would begin at an early date.

CITY BREVITIES.

The Railway Mail Service, Second Division, has issued a new edition of the publishers' list of mail separations for dispatching daily newspapers to early morning railway Post Office trains. The list embraces all the States and Territories and Canada. For convenience it has been arranged in alphabetical form by States, with special instructions given opposite each. A special feature is the "Sunday Service" table. The guide is prepared under the supervision of E. N. Norris, Superintendent of the Second Division.

Leslie J. Cannon, 22 years old, living at the Y. M. C. A. at 229 West Twenty-third Street, was arrested last night by Detectives Beers and Miller of the A. Schulte Cigar Stores Company and locked up in the West Forty-seventh Street station on a charge of petty larceny.

Wool from Australia.

The Textile Alliance, Inc., announced yesterday that Melbourne proposes to ship 58,910 bales of good style greasy combing fleeces and some broken fleeces, mostly 64s and some 70 to 80s. The information came to the Textile Alliance from its London office on the authority of an official statement from the British War Office. It is also proposed to send to this country 4,014 bales of lamb and 2,308 bales of scoured locks.

Dyeing Costs to Advance.

The dyeing houses in the silk trade, it is rumored, will put another advance into effect some time this month. The chief factor in the situation is the higher cost of labor and the scarcity of skilled help. While it is understood that the dye houses expect to get lower prices as a result of combinations in the color industry, it is still too soon for the immediate effect of this evolution in the trade to benefit dye consumers.

Separate Skirts for Fall.

Separate skirts for Fall wear are in brisk demand. The manufacturers feel that the originality of designs has proved quite a factor in yielding them the present satisfactory trade. Among the models that deserve special mention among the lines being shown are those that are carried out in dark shades with attractive draping and finished with self material crushed belts. Semi-made models are meeting more than their usual call, helped on, the manufacturers feel, by the desire of women to economize.

Seal Dye Nutria.

What is described as something new in the way of a seal dyed fur has just been put on the market by a leading raw fur house of the city. This is seal dye nutria. Owing to the comparatively low price of fur from this animal it is expected that quite a large demand of a popular character will be made for the seal dyed variety. Through the success of the experiment, it is said, the way will be opened up for women of small means to purchase an attractive fur that will stand a fair amount of wear. The vogue has been Hudson seal or dyed muskrat.

Drug Prices Change Radically.

Drug and Chemical Markets will say today that there have been some notable price changes in these commodities in the last week, but that the general situation remains the same. Conditions are aggravated by the scarcity of crude drugs used in manufacturing important products and by the uncertainty of arrivals. High freight and insurance also contribute to the difficulties of doing business, and there is no relief in sight. The principal decline of the week was in acetphenetidin. Among the leading advances were saccharine, antipyrine, and grain alcohol.

Heads Retail Association.

Franklin Simon of Franklin Simon & Co. has been elected President of the National Garment Retailers' Association. S. M. Goldberg was chosen First Vice President. The association held its organization meeting recently and is composed of resident buyers and specialty shop owners. It is a party to the agreement entered into by the retailers and the women's ready-to-wear manufacturers, and has pledged its membership with the other retail organizations to correct abuses in the trade.

Wall Paper Men Did Well.

The closing of the annual exhibition of new offerings in wall paper to the jobbing trade here found that these buyers had made even larger selections than usual. Tapestry papers did very well, both in all-over effects in verdure tapestries, and in vista effects, combined with verdure patterns. Noval patterns in cut-out border effects sold largely, and there was quite a run on damask effects in engraved papers. Stipple effects also sold well. A variation of the silhouette idea in cut-out borders made use of cameo medallions in the Beidermeier style, these borders being shown in series and in dainty pastel colorings.

Much Handwork Is Seen.

One of the features of the better lines of the new women's neckwear that is being shown here is the amount of handwork they contain. If they are not entirely hand-made, they bear garnitures embroidered by hand, or else they are trimmed with hand-made laces. Failing this, they show edges that are hemstitched by hand or that are hand-piped. Among the laces used for trimming these collars, Irish is showing up very strongly. As yet, however, it has not superseded filets or French "Vals" as leader. Brocade collars are among the other things that are selling. They are especially good in collar and cuff sets.

Dress Goods Buyers Studying.

House buying of dress goods in the secondary end of the local dry goods market appears to be beginning later than usual this season. One reason advanced for this is that buyers are taking time to study the various offerings more carefully than has been the case heretofore, because of the higher prices asked. French serges have shown up well in the house trading that has been done to date, as have plaid effects on French serge grounds that can be jobbed at 82½ cents. One of the local jobbers is offering for Fall and Spring delivery a double warp, half-worsted, 35-inch storm serge at 52½ cents that is said to be similar to one recently priced at 55 cents for Spring delivery by one of the big mills. It is offered in all of the staple shades.

Retailers Are a Bit Worried.

While a fair amount of business is being placed on Fall goods by retail buyers of underwear now in this market, reports from various sources indicate that few of them attempt to conceal their concern when they talk about merchandise for Spring. The sharp advances made on these goods at the recent openings, it is felt, are going to require considerable explanation before the public will pay the over-the-counter increases made necessary by them. As for the seasonable goods, prices are again the bugbear, though in most cases buyers have had a chance to digest them and see that there is little hope of bettering them. There is not much to tell about the primary end of the market, beyond the fact that the great bulk of the goods for next Spring has been disposed of and that the recent break in cotton caused jobbers who have not yet covered to ponder a little more.

Gray Goods Sales Fair.

There was a fair movement of gray goods in the local market yesterday in which both wide and narrow printcloths figured to some extent. Sales of nearby 38½-inch 60-48s were made from first hands at 8¾ cents, while business on 27-inch 64-60s was told of both at 7⅛ and 7¼ cents for delivery in the next few months. Good-sized bids of 11⅛ cents were reported in the market for 39-inch 68-72s, with apparently no takers among first hands, who wanted at least 11⅝ cents. Some second-hand goods were floating around a little under mill prices, but these offerings did not cut much of a figure in the general market. Sheetings were rock-firm, with all attempts to get out four-yard 56-60s at less than 12¾ cents promptly squelched. Printcloths closed this way:

39-inch, 68-72s	11⅝c	38½-inch, 60-52s	9¼c
39-inch, 56-44s	8¾c	38½-inch, 60-48s	8¾c

BOSTON, Aug. 15.—Appointment of committees to collaborate with the Government Buying Committee was the most important event in the wool market last week. These committees will determine which lots of wools offered the Government shall buy. A letter was delivered yesterday from the Committee on Wool Supplies of the Council of National Defense, stating that samples for inspection may be sent to the committee rooms, at 273 Summer Street, together with a form of agreement between the different members of the trade and the Government for the wool dealers to sign and return.

With conditions as they are and the crop progressing favorably, there is bound to be a bearish influence on the cotton market. There are some who fear that cotton may be hard to ship North from the South on account of the freight congestion. It may be six months on the road, which will mean a higher price for spots. In the event of congestion we shall probably see New York markets at a very high premium over the Southern market.

Woolens have been much more active than worsteds. There is a tendency to avoid moderate-priced goods of a mixture character because high-paid goods contain greater values than those available at lower prices. This is a usual development when prices are exceptionally high. Ever since the quotations upon serges and other staple fabrics have been made there has been somewhat better buying upon Summer fabrics.

The retailer is doing only a moderate business at prices from 50 to 100 per cent. lower than those which will actually be necessary in the comparatively near future or on the basis of manufacturing quotations today. Undoubtedly, the retailers in the large centres are not so well supplied with merchandise as retailers in smaller centres, but so far as can be learned the supply is entirely sufficient, even in the larger centres for some time to come.

CORRECTING TRADE EVILS.

Agreement of Garment Makers and Retailers Will Do This.

The discount controversy in the women's wear trade has reached final settlement in an agreement signed by representatives of the various organizations of retailers and wholesalers. Upon the manufacturers' decision to permit dual discounts, the retail store owners and buyers have put their names to a set of resolutions that will mean, if they are carried out, the elimination of many of the irregular methods that have been practiced in the trade. While the questions of discounts was the paramount issue with the retailers, the wholesale interests have obtained some important concessions in other directions.

To help carry out the terms of the agreement reached between the wholesalers and their customers, a body to be known as the Tribunal of Commerce will shortly be organized at a meeting early next week. This board will take up grievances submitted to it by members of the wholesale and retail organizations. It will consist of sixteen members, eight from the manufacturers' associations and eight from the retail organizations.

This order is subject to labor conditions and unforeseen circumstances preventing completion. If any garments are not delivered by us within the time specified such garments shall remain on order until canceled, such cancellations to be in writing, and shall give three days' extension of time from its receipt to complete delivery.

To file with the manufacturers' associations an authorization of the employment of resident buyers by the firms that they represent.

Eliminating E. O. M. payment.

Resolved, That the communication of the retailers' associations, accepting the regulation of trade abuses and terms of sale and agreeing to co-operate in maintaining standards so established be accepted; and be it further

Resolved, That, in accordance with their suggestions, the uniform terms to be maintained shall be 2 per cent. ten days, 1 per cent. thirty days, net sixty days, with option to the manufacturer on request of the retailer of selling 8 per cent. ten days, 7 per cent. thirty days, 6 per cent. sixty days, by advancing the prices to meet the difference in discount.

One of the most important features to the regulations that have been adopted, in the opinion of the manufacturers, is the part dealing with commissions to the resident buyers. It was customary with some buying firms of questionable standing to depend upon commissions extracted from manufacturers for their income, at the same time furnishing their services free to retail accounts. This practice was the source of much dissatisfaction on the part of the manufacturers, who felt, not unnaturally, that that form of commission taking should be reversed, so as to have the retailer pay for service rendered to him. More often than not, the manufacturer was forced to pay these commissions from his legitimate profits.

The organizations whose representatives signed the agreement are the following: National Retail Dry Goods Association, Retail Dry Goods Association, National Garment Retailers' Association, the Cloak, Suit & Skirt Manufacturers' Protective Association, the Dress and Waist Manufacturers' Association, the Merchants' Ladies' Garment Association, and the New York Separate Skirt Manufacturers' Association.

APPLE SHIPPERS MEET.

Association to Co-operate with Government Food Administrator.

Nearly 1,000 members of the International Apple Shippers' Association, representing all parts of the United States and Canada, gathered yesterday at the Hotel Astor for the twenty-third annual convention and massed their forces for a big drive to add to the popularity of the American apple. Besides conducting an educational campaign to increase the domestic consumption of the "King of Fruits," as the apple was designated by its enthusiastic distributers, the convention will formulate a plan for close co-operation of the apple men with Herbert Hoover, the Government Food Administrator.

Controller Prendergast greeted the delegates. E. W. J. Hearty of Boston, President of the association, read an address in which he traced the problems of the apple men the last year and spoke of prospects for the coming season. R. G. Phillips of Rochester, N. Y., Secretary of the association, made a plea for a publicity campaign to push the sale of the apple. He urged the use of the newspaper as a powerful adjunct to the general educational campaign.

Information placed before the convention was to the effect that there was no likelihood that England would lift the embargo on the importation of apples placed on this fruit last February, this action shutting off the American growers' best foreign market. No very serious results, it was predicted, would follow the Government's action in restricting exports to Scandinavia, the Netherlands and Switzerland under the export license plan, as only about 5 per cent. of the domestic apple crop went to those countries in the fiscal year 1917.

While no definite action was taken, it was reported that the association would name Secretary Phillips to represent the organization on Food Administrator Hoover's staff.

To Operate Sheffield Plants.

The Sheffield Iron Corporation, chartered in Albany on Tuesday, was formed to operate the plants of the Sheffield Iron and Steel Corporation. James Gayley, formerly Vice President of the United States Steel Corporation, is President of the new concern. The stock of the company has been underwritten by Luke, Banks & Weeks, and will be on the curb, it is reported, some time in September.

MONARCH VENTILATOR CO.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against the Monarch Ventilator Co., manufacturer of a ventilating system, 30 Church Street, by these creditors: Merchant & Evans, Inc., $710; Mersfeld & White, $692, and Eck Dynamo and Motor Co., $4,750. Liabilities are stated to be $59,000 and assets $12,000. Judge A. N. Hand appointed Jesse Knight and Arthur H. Bissell receivers at the request of creditors. The company has built up a large business in installing a system of ventilation in schools throughout the country, and has taken many contracts to complete, for which they expect to raise the money. The trouble is ascribed to inability to get raw materials.

Among the creditors are James B. Cheney, $21,126; Lillian B. Hyde, $3,641; Allen Wardell, $3,700, and the Battery Park National Bank, $3,300. Prices of good bonds have depreciated in many cases to the lowest point in their history due to market conditions of supply and demand and not to shrinkage of real security value.

There is nothing to indicate that the future will detrimentally affect the real value of good bonds.

Therefore the investor who hesitates to buy now and prefers to wait until "conditions are more settled" will find that the settling of these conditions will quickly make prices return to their former levels.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Marine Shares Lead in Activity and Strength in an Irregular Market.

Although there was a slight increase in activity on the New York Stock Exchange yesterday, the market is still looking on at the important war developments at Washington without attempting to discount their ultimate results. Most of the dealings yesterday were based on conditions created by the traders themselves and had to do with expectations of corporation happenings that are independent of price fixing or Government control of industries. Thus, in General Motors the professionals turned bearish, following the unofficial action taken by the Exchange authorities to defeat the purposes of a pool which had sought to corner enough of the floating supply to embarass the short interest. With the prospect of being able to borrow the stock freely again, traders resumed their selling, with the result that the price broke from 115¼ at the opening to 110⅝, from which figure it recovered to 112⅝, or within 3⅛ of the previous closing price. There was greater activity yesterday in the Marine shares than in United States Steel, with transactions totaling nearly 70,000 shares in Marine common alone. This issue advanced a full point to 33¼, while the preferred moved up ½ on reports that interests close to the company have been accumulating the stock. Marine is one of the comparatively few issues regarding whose future under peace conditions the Street entertains no doubt. It has advantages as a peace stock that account for the large interest being built up in it by traders who are fearful that something may come, after all, out of the sporadic peace suggestions.

The Street is beyond being thrown into panicky conditions with each new outcropping of the peace stories. The Pope's proposals were taken as possibly the forerunner of the beginning of a serious exchange of views looking to the end of the war. The impression in banking cirles seems to be that while the proposition put out from Rome may serve to bring more practical offers from the Teutonic nations, there is not likely to result any immediate counter suggestions from the Allies, who have everything to gain by continuing the struggle which had begun to yield important gains. The advance on Lens, begun months ago, is apparently near enough to accomplishment to promise an early victory of far-reaching significance. The market is governed by the expectation that with every day showing an increase in the advantage of the Allies, the successive steps toward peace will be so plainly indicated that security holders will have ample warning before that happy event materializes.

Yesterday's market was again highly irregular, but with the list displaying on the whole a fair degree of strength. Steel common got down to 122⅞, but closed with an advance of 1⅛, and numerous other issues, notably Bethlehem, Smelters, Corn Products, Great Northern Ore certificates, and Industrial Alcohol, made satisfactory gains.

The successive steps which the Government is taking to control necessities and prevent their dissipation through waste and to check excessive price advances due to competitive buying are regarded complacently by traders. It is recognized that the crisis justifies all of the measures that are being taken to keep prices within bounds.

LONDON MARKET IS DULL.

Threatened Labor Trouble Affects Home Rail Issues.

LONDON, Aug. 15.—The stock market had a satisfactory tendency today. Home rails were dull owing to threatened labor trouble, but the offerings were unimportant. The demand for Mexican securities exceeded the supply and Scandinavian issues were strong. South American railways receded on unfavorable traffic returns. Oil and shipping shares rallied.

Money was in better demand and discount rates were steady. The national receipts were smaller last week and the falling off is attributed to the holidays. The Treasury bills issued amounted to £46,441,000.

TO EXPAND TRUCK OUTPUT.

Maxwell Motors Plans to Use Part of Chalmers Plant.

The Maxwell Motor Company is negotiating for the lease of the Chalmers Motors Corporation's plant at Detroit for the purpose of expanding its output of motor trucks. In banking quarters familiar with the affairs of the two companies it was said yesterday that the proposal had not yet developed beyond a tentative stage, and it is understood that its consummation will depend largely on truck orders the Maxwell company gets from the Government.

The arrangement, if carried out, will not interfere with the production of Chalmers automobiles. The plant is larger than the Chalmers management can utilize under its present manufacturing schedule, and would supply room enough for the Maxwell enterprise as well. Presumably, a working agreement between the companies would result in the lowering of costs for both trucks and passenger cars, as overhead charges could be reduced substantially.

An official statement by the Maxwell company relative to the passing of the common and second preferred stock dividends, indicated plans for increased production in the current fiscal year. It was thought best to conserve cash resources, the statement said, partly to provide a larger inventory of raw materials. The company's motor truck business is said to be expanding rapidly, and, according to the statement, sales contracts for automobiles for the current year have been closed to a greater total than last year. Profits in the year ended July 31 were in the neighborhood of $5,400,000, without reservation being made for the excess profits tax.

PITTSBURGH TICKER BACK.

Stock Exchange Decides Carelessness Penalty Has Been Paid.

Secretary Ely of the New York Stock Exchange announced yesterday that the Governors of the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange, having petitioned for the restoration of their ticker service, of which they were deprived by order of the New York Stock Exchange Committee on Quotations, the petition had been granted, and the ticker, which, as announced on Tuesday, had been removed from the Pittsburgh Exchange, would be restored.

"The ticker was removed from the Pittsburgh Exchange because of evidence that through carelessness, quotations had been permitted to leak out to bucket shops," said Mr. Ely. "There was no evidence of anything worse than carelessness on the part of the Pittsburgh Exchange itself, but with the thousands of tickers on the New York Exchange service, great care has to be exercised. They have promised to be more careful in the future, and it was decided that the temporary removal of the ticker would be sufficient warning to them. In the past we have found that the removal of the ticker, even when it is put back again immediately, has always been sufficient to cause offenders against the rules to mend their ways."

A New Poor's Manual.

A new Poor's Manual of Industrials for 1917 has been issued, with statistics of the industrial companies revised to Aug. 1. The book is the largest of its kind and contains the latest income accounts and balance sheets of all of the important companies. The information is particularly timely in view of the many changes worked in the finances of the corporations by the forced development of the last year.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Indifferent to Peace Proposal.

Information from all quarters of the globe is weighed on the floor of the Stock Exchange in relation to effects on security prices. There have been times in the last two years when peace talk has worked violent changes in the price front, but quite different results have so far come from the proposal from the Vatican. Floor brokers said yesterday after the close of business that the latest flutter of the dove's wings was noted with almost complete indifference. The course of quotations bore out this point of view. The stock market wants peace just as soon as it can be arrived at under the proper terms, for, strange as it may seem, there is now much confident discussion of the bull market to come with peace. Not so long ago there was nothing but apprehension of a severe drop of quotations upon definite signs of an end to hostilities.

The gigantic plans being worked out for this country's participation in the war have brought about a gradual alteration of speculative ideas. It is rather generally realized that the exceptional profits from European war orders last year and the year before are not to be repeated on United States Government orders. Beside this factor, the speculative fraternity is convinced that the burden of war, as reflected in heavy taxation, and the absorption of capital on a great scale in destructive materials, are not elements likely to impart a stimulus to commercial activities. So a war weariness has appeared in the Street which is additional to the humanitarian aspect of the struggle. Traders would grasp at a peace movement which seemed possible of success, but they found nothing satisfactory in the news from Rome.

A View on Peace Terms.

From the social and economic viewpoint, in the opinion of a prominent banker, it is to Germany's interest that the terms of peace shall be such as to give the Allies complete satisfaction. This banker argues that in the event that the peace terms are absolutely satisfactory—that is, if Germany agrees to make restitution, gives evidence of genuine feelings of regret for crimes committed, &c.—the people composing the allied nations are not likely to feel any resentment after the war, and in fact, may, to a degree, have pity for the German people who had been deceived by their Kaiser and military party. Under these conditions, the banker believes, all of the allied nations would be willing to resume their commercial relations with Germany after the war; while, should the terms of peace fail to give the Allies complete satisfaction, this feeling of resentment is likely to run high and hurt Germany considerably in her efforts to regain her social, commercial, and financial position. "If the Germans only realized," said the banker, "that peace terms acceptable to the Allies are in the best interest of Germany herself, it would be very much easier to get to the point of negotiation."

Bank Burglary Insurance.

A committee of the American Bankers' Association is conducting a referendum vote as to the advisability of forming a bankers' insurance company, (either stock or mutual,) for carrying burglary and bonding risks. Members of the association are asked not only to express their views on the general proposition, but also to supply the committee with statistical data indicating the amount of money annually paid in premiums, and the money recovered from insurance companies during the calendar years 1915 and 1916. A report of the committee will be submitted at the annual convention to be held in Atlantic City next month.

Crude Oil Advances.

The Prairie Oil and Gas Company yesterday increased the price of Mid Continent crude petroleum 20 cents a barrel to $1.90. This was an advance of unusual size, as oil ordinarily rises no more than half as much on a single movement, and an upturn of 5 cents a barrel in normal times is satisfactory to producers. A few days ago Pennsylvania crude rose 15 cents a barrel to $3.25, a record advance. Crude oil is being consumed at the rate of 335,000,000 barrels a year, while production is running at a rate of no more than 300,000,000 barrels. The sharp advances indicate the growing shortage, and a collateral effect should be an increase of effort to develop new production. Wyoming and Kentucky are experiencing an oil boom in new fields, and higher prices are expected to expand drilling operations in these States, besides stimulating work in Oklahoma, Kansas, Texas, and other old established fields.

$13,500,000 BOND PAYMENT.

Reserve Bank Receives 30 Per Cent. Installment on Liberty Loan.

The Federal Reserve Bank in New York, acting as fiscal agent for the Government, received $13,500,000 yesterday in payment of the 30 per cent. installment on the Liberty Loan bonds. It had been figured by bank officials that the receipts would approximate $24,000,000, and it was said last night that in all probability another $10,000,000 was in the mail and would be received today.

Subscribers to the Liberty Loan in the New York District were allotted a total of $617,000,000, and about 85 per cent. of that amount was fully paid when adjustments were made following the payment of the second installment of 18 per cent. on June 28. A 20 per cent. installment was paid on July 30, and according to the bank's records, the total payments on the loan account up to yesterday were $563,500,000. Including yesterday's receipts, the total is $577,000,000, which leaves a balance of $40,000,000. The fifth and last installment, amounting to 30 per cent., is payable Aug. 30.

The New York Reserve Bank has not yet completed the work of issuing interim receipts for the Liberty bonds, but it was said yesterday that the bank had filled 900 of the 1,500 requisitions for fully-paid bonds. The total issued is $496,000,000.

B. & O. BOND AGREEMENT.

After protracted negotiation a settlement has been reached between the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company and the minority owners of Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton general mortgage bonds of 1939, which will complete the reorganization begun when the B. & O. took over the operation and control of the C., H. & D. in 1909. Negotiations were principally carried on through Iselin & Co., and it is reported the minority bondholders will be allowed either $1,000 in B. & O. Toledo Division 4 per cent. bonds, plus $140 in cash, for each $1,000 C., H. & D. bond, or $800 in Toledo Division bonds, plus $280 in cash, the B. & O. reserving an option to purchase the bonds for $840 apiece in cash.

The minority interest involved represents somewhat less than $2,000,000 in face value of the bonds, out of $17,529,000 issued, the bulk having been purchased by the B. & O. at 70 and interest. The minority owners held out for the B. & O. original offer of 85 with interest or an exchange bond guaranteed by the B. & O.

TO BUILD A SHIP A MONTH.

Steel Corporation's Subsidiary to be Biggest Plant of Its Kind.

Some further details regarding the plans of the Federal Shipbuilding Company, the United States Steel Corporation's subsidiary, which is constructing the largest shipbuilding plant in the world on the Hackensack Meadows, became known in Wall Street yesterday. Of the ten ways under construction, all of which will be 450 to 500 feet in length, several will be constructed so that later, when more slips are provided, they can be lengthened to construct the largest liners.

The steel buildings will cover ten acres, including a huge plate mill, machine, structural, fabricating and assembling shops, and power plant. Marine boilers and engines and electric fittings, and wood fittings also, will be manufactured on the premises. The basin is to be 220 feet wide, so that five or six ships can be completed and fitted out simultaneously after launching. The first keels of cargo boats of 9,000 tons deadweight, will be laid in November, and the first launchings are expected about April 1, 1918, of ships which will make their maiden voyages about June 1, after which the plant will put one ship a month in commission regularly.

COTTON GOES LOWER AFTER BRISK RALLY

CROP NEWS FAVORABLE

Bad Prospects in Texas, Dealers Believe, Are More Than Offset by Conditions Elsewhere.

The cotton market yesterday showed considerable irregularity, and on the whole was lower, closing 14 to 22 points under the final figures of Tuesday. At one time the market represented a loss of 45 to 48 points, compared with the previous day's closing quotations, but from this low level, reached during the afternoon, there was an active rally which carried prices in some instances a shade above the previous close, followed by weakening conditions again in the last few minutes.

Regarding crop conditions sentiment was mainly bearish, on the idea that whatever unfavorable prospects existed in Texas, south of Waco, were more than made up in a promising outlook over the remainder of the belt. Further peace comment, based on a resolution offered in the Senate, confused sentiment and caused a very erratic market. As to the peace proposals in circulation on Tuesday, there was an almost unanimous impression that they would not amount to much. At the same time many who have closely followed the trend of foreign peace news in the last few months felt that they at least pointed toward a definite peace program on the part of Germany that would develop progressively until it reached a basis acceptable to the Allies.

The most important feature of crop news was the weekly weather and crop report of the Government which was considered as generally very favorable. It noted an almost entire absence of rain in the cotton-growing districts of Texas during the week just ended, except in the Red River Valley counties and the rainfall was heavy to excessive in Oklahoma. Cotton made good growth in the latter State, however, and was fruiting well.

The report noted marked improvement in South Carolina and continued improvement in North Carolina; in fact, was especially favorable in all States east of the Mississippi. It said the weevil damage had been kept down and was serious only in limited districts.

Private advices regarding crop prospects were somewhat mixed, one dispatch asserting that in the entire Memphis territory the crop was so late that it had matured very little and that deterioration was expected soon. On the other hand, advices from Alabama were to the effect that the crop was opening rapidly and that the yield promised to be highly satisfactory as the season had been propitious and the weevil damage was insignificent. The situation in Texas gave rise to a number of unfavorable reports, one of which, from Waco, said that the best informed men there were asserting that under favorable conditions the State would not make over 3,000,000 bales. Some hope was held out by the Government forecast which indicated cloudy conditions over Texas and possibly showers in the western part of the State.

The census report had little effect on the market. It showed that in July, 341,496 bales had been consumed in this country, against 489,528 last year and in the twelve months ended July 31, a total of 6,801,188 bales, against 6,397,613 last year. The quantity on hand on July 31 in consuming establishments was 1,498,939 bales, against 1,632,245 last year, and in public storage and at compresses, 888,117, against 1,107,467 last year. Linters not included above were 84,387 bales consumed during July.

Exports for the day were 39,412 bales making 144,030 so far this season.

WHEAT.

The effects of the Food Commission are already being felt in the wheat market, and apparently the trade believes that a much lower level of values than has prevailed recently is to be established. At any rate, holders were more desirous of selling, and cash prices both in the Northwest and in the Southwest experienced a sharp break, losing 15 to 20 cents from Tuesday's quotation. Crop accounts continue favorable, but have no bearing on values. The local cash market was easier; No. 2 red quoted at $2.32 and No. 2 hard at $2.52, cost, insurance and freight export. Exporters were said to have taken about 50,000 bushels.

CORN.

Sentiment in the corn market is still divided, but during yesterday's session the price for the new crop positions was easier, closing with net losses of ⅛c to ⅞c. The record price for hogs is looked upon as a strong bull feature in corn, as farmers are not expected to sell their cash corn at lower prices than they can turn it into hogs. The local cash market was firm, with No. 2 yellow quoted at $2.04½, and No. 2 mixed at $2.02½, cost, insurance, and freight, New York.

OATS.

Price changes in the oats market were not important, but the undertone was easier in sympathy with corn. Receipts at primary points were again liberal, and the increasing movement has disturbed those who have been taking a bullish stand on the belief that transportation facilities were against heavy receipts. The local cash market was weak, standard quoted at 79½@80c; No. 2 white, 80c; No. 3 white, 79c; No. 4 white, 77@78c; fancy clipped white, 81c; ordinary clipped white, 78@79c, nominal, in elevator.

PROVISIONS.

An advance to the 18-cent level for live hogs, a new high record, and the peace talk had a further stimulating influence on the provision list, and prices advanced with a fairly active demand. Receipts of hogs at Chicago were 17,000; estimated for Thursday, 17,000. Kansas City received 5,000 and Omaha 5,600.

COTTONSEED OIL.

COFFEE.

The coffee market was higher yesterday on scattered buying promoted by the renewed talk of peace prospects and reports of some improvement in trade demand. Closing prices showed a net advance of 6 to 8 points. Sales were reported of 39,250 bags.

The market was irregular at the opening with prices 2 points lower to 4 points higher. Near months were relatively easy under further liquidation, but this was mostly in the way of exchanges, and September rallied to 7.70, or 4 points above Tuesday's closing figures. Later active months sold 11 to 12 points net higher, with May touching 8.28. The close was a little off from the best under realizing. A little improvement was reported in spot demand, but prices were unchanged on the basis of 9⅓ for Rio 7s and 10½c for Santos 4s.

SUGAR.

The sugar futures market ruled sensitive, and, after opening at advances of 6 to 14 points, there were wide fluctuations, with trading very unsettled. Recent sellers became active buyers, and short covering sent values at the close 9 to 20 points net higher, with sales for the day 9,000 tons.

The local market for refined sugar was unchanged at 8.40 to 9.15 for fine granulated, although two Philadelphia refiners reduced prices 25 points, to the basis of 8.75 for fine granulated. Business was again light, but this was due more to the inability of refiners to handle the business than to any lack of demand. Raw sugar ruled very quiet but steady, with buyers and sellers more or less apart. There was a sale, however, of 10,000 bags August shipment Cubas at 6.25 free on board, equal to about 6⅝, cost and freight, New York. This sugar went to Galveston. There was a rumor that Cubas, August, and September shipment, had sold at 6½, cost and freight, but there was no full confirmation of such sales having been made. September shipment Cubas were available at 6½, cost and freight, and August could be had at 6⅝, cost and freight, with the possibility that 6½, cost and freight, could be obtained for August shipment. Spot quotations follow: Centrifugal, 7.52c; molasses, 6.64c; cost and freight, 6½c.

COTTON FLUCTUATION LIMIT

The Board of Managers of the New York Cotton Exchange yesterday approved an amendment to the rules providing for a restriction in price fluctuations. The new rule, which is to be known as "No. 30," reads:

"To avoid abnormal fluctuations of price caused by conditions created by the European war and injurious speculation incident thereto trades for future delivery in any one month shall during any one day not be made at prices varying more than 3 cents per pound above or below the closing bid price of such month of the preceding business session of the exchange. Nor shall trades in any month be made in any one day at an advance of more than 3 cents a pound above the lowest previous price for such month on that date, nor at a decline of more than 3 cents per pound below the highest previous price for such month on that day. For the purposes of this rule the closing price shall be not less than the minimum price prescribed herein. This rule shall be in effect during the period of the war and for such period after the declaraton of peace as the Board of Managers may hereafter determine."

THE IRON AND STEEL TRADE.

The feature of the week in the steel trade is the increase of orders from Government sources, which the manufacturers are accepting without a definite understanding in regard to prices. Much of this steel is for the Allies abroad. In domestic lines dullness continues chiefly because of uncertainty over the price-fixing schedule. The draft is reported to be making heavy inroads upon workers in the steel and iron trades, causing considerable concern among employers who are already short of labor. The Iron Age says:

> Without taking a final position on the question of selling to the Allies at the same prices as to the Government, steel manufacturers have accepted orders from officials at Washington this week applying on 10,000 tons of annealed wire and 20,000 tons of wire rods for Italy, prices to be fixed after the Trade Commission's findings are made up. When these Italian inquiries first appeared some weeks ago 4.50 was quoted on the wire and $85 on the rods.
> While the general question is in abeyance, it is understood that some steel interests have expressed a willingness to take business from the Government at prices to be determined later, even though the material is for an ally.
>
> For the American Army in France a 20,000-ton inquiry for 25-pound rails has come out for use in portable tracks. Unlike the recent contracts for 150,000 tons of 80-pound sections, no price is fixed, but bids are asked. Contrary to reports, none of the 80-pound rails were refused by the mills, but on two of the lots, concerning which a question was raised as to price, orders to go ahead with the rolling have not yet been given, though all these rails are wanted in six weeks.
>
> What is generally known as to the effect of present high prices on construction is definitely indicated in the report of July bookings, representing 41.5 per cent. of the country's fabricated steel capacity. This is the smallest total reported since February, 1915.
>
> The outcome of efforts to secure exemptions for workers in iron and steel and metal-working plants has been disappointing to employers. It is of vastly more consequence to the Government than cost finding that there be adequate working forces at coke ovens, blast furnaces, and steel works. One Eastern steel company has been seriously affected by the large drafts made upon its working forces. Only special intervention from Washington, even to the extent of new legislation, seems likely to avert an acute situation.

The Iron Trade Review says:

> While the iron and steel industry is carrying along in its own way a readjustment to the new and unprecedented conditions which recently have developed, proposals for even more extraordinary Government interference are looming before it. Through the Pomerene bill introduced in the Senate last week the industry faces the most radical form of Federal control yet concretely put forth. Enactment of this measure as originally drawn would place the production, sales, and distribution of products of the industry completely in the hands of the Government. The purpose of the bill apparently is to delegate to the Government greater authority in connection with the approaching determination of production cost by the Federal Trade Commission.

CURTISS AIRPLANE CONTROL

It appears that in addition to securing two out of the three voting Trustees—the Curtiss stock is all in a voting trust—the Willys-Overland Company, by selling $3,475,000 of its 7 per cent. preferred stock, authorized for issue two years ago, but since remaining in the treasury, and by giving Curtiss interests $1,600,000 worth of 6 per cent. notes maturing Aug. 1, 1918, obtained in return 24,000 shares of 7 per cent. Curtiss Aeroplane preferred at $75 a share, 60,000 shares of Curtiss Aeroplane common at $25 a share, and $1,600,000 of Curtiss ten-year 6 per cent. notes, convertible into common stock at $50 a share.

Most of this stock was deposited in the Willys-Overland Company treasury, but about 20 per cent., it is understood, has been sold to interests friendly to the present management of both companies. The purchasers of the Willys-Overland notes and stock did so under agreement not to sell inside one year from Aug. 1.

To Safeguard Bondholders.

A committee has been formed to safeguard the interests of the holders of first general mortgage 4 per cent. bonds of the United Railways Company of St. Louis in the controversy between the company and the city over taxes, extensions of franchise, and other questions, which is expected to result in a readjustment of the company's capitalization. The committee asks holders to notify either the St. Louis Union Trust Company or the Union Trust Company of New York of their addresses and amount of holdings. N. A. McMillen, President of the St. Louis Union Bank, is Chairman of the committee.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

Gold coin to the amount of $500,000 was withdrawn from the Sub-Treasury yesterday for shipment to Canada and $300,000 for shipment to Spain. Gold bars to the amount of $1,000,000 were withdrawn from the Assay Office for shipment to Peru.

Engraved certificates representing new stock of the Liberty National Bank of New York will be exchanged for interim certificates on application.

H. Mercer Walker has been appointed a Vice President of the Equitable Trust Company and Herman J. Cook Treasurer. Mr. Walker has been Treasurer of the company for several years, and Mr. Cook has been advanced from the Assistant Treasurership.

Authority has been obtained from the Missouri Public Service Commission by the St. Louis-San Francisco Railway Company to issue $6,440,000 of 5 per cent. prior lien bonds. The application states that $4,578,000 will be used to reimburse the company for moneys expended in acquisition of property and betterments of system and $1,862,000 for refunding obligations secured by lien.

Worcester, Mass., has sold $250,000 temporary notes, dated today, and maturing Nov. 7, 1917, to Bond & Goodwin at 4.04 per cent. discount plus $1.75.

The Committee on Securities of the New York Stock Exchange has ruled that transactions in the preferred and common stocks of the Liggett & Myers Company on Sept. 10, unless made specifically for cash, shall be ex rights; that rights may be dealt in on and after Aug. 15, and that transactions in rights must be settled on Sept. 20, after which date dealings shall be as in securities. The right to subscribe expires Tuesday, Sept. 25, 1917.

The Western Grocer Company has paid a common stock dividend of 10 per cent. from surplus, adding $304,000 to the outstanding common stock, making it now $2,204,000.

The Pittsburgh Brewing Company has declared the regular quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent. on the preferred stock and one-quarter of 1 per cent. on account of back dividends on that issue.

The Union Trust Company of Chicago Directors have authorized an immediate application for membership in the Federal Reserve system. This is the fifth large Chicago State institution to join.

Potomska Mills of New Bedford, Mass., has declared an extra dividend of $6 per share in addition to regular quarterly dividend of $1.50 per share.

Permanence of the Partial Payment Plan

Seven years ago the Partial Payment Plan of purchasing New York Stock Exchange securities was first put before the American investment public. Year by year it grew in favor and increased in scope until a score of responsible firms and institutions were using it to interest an ever-growing army of investors.

The War Loan campaign of education has brought to the attention of a new army of investors the advantages of "investing while you save."

Our investment department has made up a diversified selection of Partial Payment purchases to suit any monthly savings capacity from $5 to $1,000.

TO HOLDERS OF

UNITED RAILWAYS COMPANY OF ST. LOUIS

First General Mortgage 4% Gold Bonds due 1934

A number of conferences have been held recently for the purpose of adjusting a long standing controversy between the City of St. Louis and the United Railways Company over the mill tax, extension of franchise, etc.

The result will probably mean a readjustment of the Company's capitalization, and it has been suggested that a protective committee be formed to look after the "FIRST GENERAL MORTGAGE 4% GOLD BONDS, DUE 1934."

The undersigned, having no interest in any of the other securities of the Company, have consented, upon request of a large number of holders of these bonds, to act as such committee.

AS NO DEFINITE PLAN HAS BEEN AGREED UPON BETWEEN THE CITY AND THE UNITED RAILWAYS COMPANY, THIS COMMITTEE DOES NOT CONSIDER IT NECESSARY TO HAVE BONDS DEPOSITED AT THIS TIME.

Holders of the above bonds are requested to notify either the ST. LOUIS UNION TRUST COMPANY, OF ST. LOUIS or the UNION TRUST COMPANY OF NEW YORK, DEPOSITARIES, of their address and number of bonds owned so that the committee may keep them informed of the situation as it may develop.

African Coal That Yields Crude Oil

Unique Deposit Found in Angola Gives 31 Per Cent. of Refinable Oil and 56 Per Cent. of Coke Under Distillation—Matrix a Sandstone Mastic Suitable for Street Paving

WHILE the price of gasoline is steadily advancing throughout the world because of a diminishing supply to meet the demand greatly increased by the European war, news comes from South Africa, in a report of United States Consul General . . . . volatile hydrocarbons that produce the oil, and the crude product, by refinement, may be put to a variety of uses.

Thus Consul General Murphy's report states that the chemist to whom the Angola coal was submitted for analysis found that it resolved, under destructive distillation, into 31 per cent. crude oil, 56 per cent. coke, "which, he says, is excellent fuel for boilers in engines, and the rest waste. He has submitted the oil to various refining processes, with the result that he now shows samples of it in the form of good benzine suited for cleaning delicate materials, petrol (gasoline) for fuel for motor engines, paraffin suitable for illumination or for fuel, lubricating oil suitable for delicate machinery, a thicker lubricating oil for use on engines worked by steam, and vaseline."

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

Firmness marked the closing on the Consolidated Stock Exchange. Final prices for the leading steel stocks were generally at or near their best. There had been early hesitation in the market, followed by gradual improvement after midday. United States Steel common was dealt in to the amount of about 20,000 shares. The International Mercantile Marine shares displayed exceptional firmness early in the day. More than 12,000 shares of the two classes of stock were dealt in.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

The realty market showed evidences of real activity yesterday. The upper west side furnished two good apartment house deals, both being involved in trade; an important corner at Pearl and Cedar Streets was sold, and out-of-town property was in good demand, including two important industrial transactions.

The eight-story apartment house at 615 West 113th Street, known as the Huntingfield, was purchased by the estate of Edith Bryce from the Sophdor Realty Company. It covers a plot 50 by 100 between Broadway and Riverside Drive. In part payment the Bryce estate gave the five-story loft at 327 Bowery, 25.10 by 79, adjoining the northeast corner of Second Street. The properties represented a value of about $250,000. Nassoit & Lanning were the brokers and have been appointed agents of the Huntingfield apartment house.

In the Washington Heights section the seven-story Rocklyffe apartment at the southeast corner of Broadway and 141st Street, 99.11 by 70, and the adjoining six-story apartment at 572-574 West 141st Street, 50 by 99.11, were sold by the Broadedge Corporation, Albert M. Blackburne, President. The buyer gave in part payment the Hudson River estate known as the Kruger Homestead, with buildings and about 250 acres, thirty-six miles from the city. The aggregate value of the properties represented about $500,000.

Deal on Pearl Street.

George Peabody Wetmore, former United States Senator from Rhode Island, has increased his Pearl Street holdings near Cedar Street by purchasing the two four-story buildings at 187 and 189 Pearl Street, being the northeast corner of Cedar Street. The plot is 35 by 72 and irregular. It was bought from Samuel P. Tull. Cammann, Voorhees & Floyd were the brokers in the sale.

Harlem Flat in Bronx Trade.

The five-story flat at 1,449 Fifth Avenue, 25 by 86, between 117th and 118th Streets, has been sold by the Sidom Building Company, Robert E. Simon, President. The buyer gave in part payment the two-family house at 111 Forest Avenue, the Bronx, on lot 20 by 87.6, between 166th and Home Streets. The Sidom Building Company recently acquired the Fifth Avenue property in trade.

West Ninetieth Street Sale.

The three-story dwelling at 38 West Ninetieth Street, 20 by 100, has been purchased by Annis & Sinnott from Anna L. Martin. Robert T. McGusty was the broker.

Church Buys East Side Plot.

The vacant lot, 25.1 by 100.11, at 313 East Ninty-seventh Street, has been purchased by St. Mark's Protestant Episcopal Church from Annie Berkinson.

Invester Buys Old Bedford Street Dwellings.

The two old frame dwellings, 64 and 66 Bedford Street, occupying a plot 37.6 by 69, just west of the junction of Morton Street and the new Seventh Avenue Extension, have been sold by Katherine Foley of Elmhurst, L. I., to an investor.

Recent Buyers.

The Lowerre Improvement Company is the buyer of the twelve-story loft building at 132 and 134 West Twenty-second Street, sold last week by Harris & Vaughan.

R. A. McEntee is the buyer of the dwelling 554 West 113th Street.

M. Rubin and S. Vogel are the buyers of the buildings at 3,391 and 3,393 Third Avenue.

Bronx Sales.

Elizabeth M. Mueller sold to Mildred Roseman, 2,389 Hoffman Street, a dwelling on a lot 25 by 100.

Mary Kelly sold to Mary G. Sheeran the dwelling occupying a plot 26 by 79.8 by irregular on the east side of the Concourse 76.9 feet north of 165th Street.

Brooklyn.

I. Salzberg sold for A. E. Morris to J. H. Connelly a plot 40 by 100 on the south side of Forty-seventh Street, 240 feet west of Fifteenth Avenue.

Queens Borough Sales.

J. Steiner has sold to M. G. Hamburger the dwelling, 40x100, on the north side of Briarwood Road, 40 feet east of Ackroyd Avenue, Jamaica.

The Trent Realty Company sold to the Jackson-Steinway Company a plot 100 by 100 feet on the northwest side of Fourteenth Avenue, 150 feet northeast of Graham Avenue, and 50 by 100 feet on the southeast side of Thirteenth Avenue, 200 feet northeast of Graham Avenue, Long Island City. It will be improved with apartment houses.

L. Wood sold to K. G. Oppenheim a plot 50 by 100 feet on the est side of Stemler Street, 503 feet north of Vandeventer Avenue, and a plot 25 by 97 feet on the west side of Luyster Street, 515 feet north of Vandeventer Avenue.

Feed Concern Buys Old Knox Factory.

The former factory of the Knox Hat Company, Inc., at Boonton, N. J., which has been vacant since the company moved its plant to Brooklyn, has been purchased by Stevenson & Co., a new concern, which will use the factory for refining coacoanut oil into edible products. The plant contains about five acres, with brick buildings, an artesian well, and railroad siding.

Pease & Elliman acted as brokers for the purchaser, Cross & Brown represented the Knox Company; Eugene B. Welch and Edward J. Cahill were also associate brokers.

Two Suburban Warehouse Sites Purchased by Mail Order House.

As a site for two four-story warehouses the International Merchandise Corporation, a mail order house with headquarters in Manhattan, has purchased two suburban plots. The properties are located at Northvale, N. J., and Hicksville, L. I.

The former is a site 140 by 100 at the southwest corner of Sunset Heights Avenue and Snedecker Place. The other consists of the lot 25 by 100 at the southwest corner of Meyers Avenue and Fourth Street.

Staten Island.

Cornelius G. Kolff sold for Theodore Kieran the three-story frame store and dwelling property, 276 Davis Avenue, Livingston, to M. Dunkel, for investment.

Leases.

Douglas L. Elliman & Co. have leased the five-story dwelling at 25 East Seventy-third Street, for the Misses A. M. and E. M. Kohlsaat to J. Searle Barclay.

M. M. Hayward & Co. leased for a long term to a new garage corporation the three-story and basement garage, 212, 214, 216 West 124th Street, at an aggregate rental of about $75,000.

Realty Notes.

A public hearing will be held on Aug. 30 by the Board of Standards and Appeals upon amendments in connection with the recently adopted ordinance permitting the erection of non-fireproof four-story garages and the legalizing of existing converted garages.

Times Building

Times Square

THE short spur connecting the Subway station in The Times Building with the Pennsylvania depot and the approaching completion of the Subway system increase the importance of The Times Square district as a business centre. As rents will be advancing, professional and business men will find it advantageous to inspect The Times Building without delay.

The entire twenty-second floor is vacant and it will be rented as a whole, or it will be subdivided to suit tenants. Natural light on four sides. On the 20th floor is a space 18x20 to be had at a moderate rental. Perfect light on two sides.

On the 10th floor is a spacious room to be rented for $1,000 a year which cannot be equaled in the City for equipment, light, surroundings—or price. Building open day and night—continuous elevator service.

THE WEATHER

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—There has been a very marked stagnation in the movement of the highs and lows across the country in the last few days. Pressure over the Western Atlantic continues to rise, and doubtless is in some way associated with the stagnation.

Numerous showers and thunderstorms have occurred in the East Gulf and South Atlantic States, Florida, and the eastern portion of the Middle Atlantic States.

Temperature is again above the seasonal average in the Plains States and the Missouri Valley, while in the Eastern districts showers have kept the temperatures moderately low.

Showery conditions in the Middle and South Atlantic and East Gulf States will doubtless continue during the next forty-eight hours. Higher temperatures are probable in Atlantic Coast districts within the next few days.

Winds for Thursday and Friday along the North Atlantic Coast will be gentle southeast to south, thunder showers; Middle Atlantic Coast, moderate south to southwest, occasional thunder showers; South Atlantic Coast, light and variable, mostly west, thunder showers.

FORECASTS TODAY AND FRIDAY.

Eastern New York, New Jersey, New England, and Eastern Pennsylvania—Occasional thunder showers Thursday and probably Friday.

Western New York—Cloudy Thursday and Friday.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at 11 P. M., taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

GERMAN INTRIGUE PROMPTED CHINA'S ACT

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—China's official explanation of the declaration of a state of war with Germany and Austria-Hungary, in the form of a statement by the Foreign Office, was received tonight at the Chinese Legation here. It said:

"In view of the many kinds of German intrigue, seeking to create disorder in China, the Chinese Government found it impossible to wait for the convocation of Parliament before declaring the existence of the state of war with Germany, especially since the rupture of diplomatic relations with the Imperial German Government had been previously approved by Parliament almost unanimously.

"Austria-Hungary has all along been acting in concert with the German Imperial Government. Moreover, the Austrians, like the Germans, nave special settlements in China which might easily be used by Germans, who speak the same language as Austrians, as a base of operation for further intrigues, thereby rendering the situation still more difficult for China to cope with.

"The Chinese Government, therefore, was unable to adopt a different attitude toward Austria-Hungary."

FORD NOW FOR WAR TILL FOE IS CRUSHED

Says Every Man, Woman, and Child Must Help to End Militarism.

BUSY ON AIRPLANE WORK

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Aug. 15.—In an interview given out here this afternoon, the first one in many months, Henry Ford made it clear that whatever views he may have once entertained with regard to war, he is now fully converted to the belief that the struggle must go on until German autocracy is crushed.

"We must prepare to go to the limit for the struggle," said Mr. Ford. "Without letting hatred creep into our hearts, every man, woman, and child should put all energy into crushing militarism. For once and all war is now discredited in the whole world, and the great thing to be reached is the destruction of war for the future.

"I cannot see that any great harm has come in waiting until now with our war preparations. Things have moved so fast in a mechanical way since this war began that many things that were new three years ago are out of date now. We are making 200,000 airplane cylinders of steel for the Government, to be delivered at the rate of 1,000 a day. We have just developed a way of making a cylinder of solid steel cheaply. We are glad to help the Government and would help even more if called on. We are glad to help in the fight to stamp out militarism; we feel we are doing that in producing the cylinders and would produce 5,000 or 10,000 a day if called upon.

"A great many of the men who work on these cylinders are of German birth, and they are just as keen for stamping out militarism as any of us. We all want the war stopped, and the way to stop it is to let the world know that this country is in it for all it is worth."

Mr. Ford has left the matter of price to be settled by the Government after the cylinders are made, the Government and Mr. Ford to figure the cost, and the Government to pay a fair recompense, but without profit to the Ford company. "It costs very little more to produce steel now than it did before the war," he said.

Asked how the war would affect the work at his plant, Mr. Ford said:

"We will not ask exemptions for any of our men. We will save the places for those who are drafted. If we are in business when the war is over they will be taken back."

Then reverting to national questions he said:

"I do not believe that President Wilson will miss any opportunity to bring about a peace that will be honorable and have a fair chance of being permanent. Some good usually can be found coming out of the worst, and I believe this war will impress us with the fact that we are the most wasteful nation on the globe and that we shall follow lines that will make for economy and efficiency."

"Craftsman Farms" Sold.

George Howe has sold for Gustav Stickley, the originator of the Craftsman idea in furniture and architecture, his 650-acre estate near Morristown, N. J., to Major George S. Weinberg, U. S. A. The property was known as "Craftsman Farms." In its accumulation and development it represents years of study and careful personal effort on the part of Mr. Stickley. More than $350,000 is said to have been spent on the property.

General Sessions Recount Waits.

The recount of the votes cast for the office of Judge of General Sessions last November before Justice Sawyer and a jury was postponed yesterday until Sept. 11, to await a decision by the Appellate Division on Justice Mullan's refusal on Monday to dismiss the suit of ex-Judge James A. Delehanty, who was a candidate for the office, for a recount.

ALL-DAY SUFFRAGE RIOTS.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—The militant suffragettes resumed their picketing of the White House today and were the storm centre of miniature riots from early morning until sundown. Many lively scrimmages occurred during the day, in which bluejackets of the Naval Reserve joined with civilians in tearing "Kaiser Wilson" banners from the members of the National Woman's Party.

During the turmoil women's dresses were torn and their hands scratched, while men and the youths of the Naval Reserve had their hats crushed and clothing rumpled. Not a few of the men and bluejackets bore scratches as a result of the skirmishes. Officers of the Woman's Party said tonight one banner addressed to "Kaiser Wilson" and forty-nine others had been destroyed during the day.

When William Bayard Hale, former special envoy to Mexico, standing at the west gate, started to sympathize with Miss Katherine Morey of Boston, whose banner had been seized by the crowd, he was set upon by sailors.

"You'd better keep out of this," yelled Hale, as a sailor began to push him along.

A jeer came from the crowd. Mr. Hale turned to get away, some of the crowd making a path for him. But as he moved along some of the men turned upon him, giving him a bad jostling that sent him reeling. Eventually Mr. Hale was allowed to proceed after somebody in the crowd shouted "Hang him up!"

No suffragettes were arrested, but nearly all of them were without banners when they finally left the White House gate at nightfall.

MRS. DE SAULLES SEES SON.

MINEOLA, L. I., Aug. 15.—John L. De Saulles, Jr., the little son of Mrs. Blanca De Saulles, who killed his father, was taken to the county jail this morning by his aunt, Mrs. Caroline Degener, and Mrs. G. M. Heckscher of Westbury. They were accompanied by Harry V. Dougherty, a detective from New York. When the automobile stopped at the jail Dougherty carried the boy to his mother's room.

Mrs. De Saulles was lying on the bed when he entered and did not rise. The boy kissed her and then for more than half an hour played about the room. He was much interested in a bird house his mother had for him, and which he carried away with him when he left. Sheriff Seaman says Mrs. De Saulles eats but little and spends most of her time in bed.

RUTH CRUGER FUND AIDS MRS. HUMISTON

TO SEEK MISSING ONES

Causes of Strange Disappearances Will Be Investigated with View to Making City Safe.

At a meeting held at the Hotel Biltmore yesterday morning a committee of prominent New York women organized the Ruth Cruger Emergency Fund, with Mrs. William Curtis Demarest as Chairman and Mrs. Felix Adler as Treasurer. The immediate purpose of the fund is to support the work of Mrs. Grace Humiston in investigating the cases of missing girls whom the police have been unable to find. Money is urgently needed and the members of the committee appeal to the public to help them raise $50,000 in the next six months. Checks should be sent either to Mrs. Adler or to the headquarters of the fund, 110 West Fortieth Street.

In a statement yesterday Mrs. Demarest said: "We want to bring just that sort of help to girls in trouble which a police department cannot give. We want these girls, and their relatives and friends, to feel that they can call upon or write to any member of our committee in absolute confidence. This fund should stand as an assurance that the women of New York will give their aid to girls in trouble."

The membership of the committee to date includes:

Mrs. Robert Adamson, Mrs. Richard Aldrich, Mrs. William Barbour, Mrs. Ira Borrows, Mrs. Bernard Baruch, Mrs. George Hilliard Benjamin, Mrs. Henry Bruere, Mrs. Jonathan Bulkley, Mrs. William Allen Butler, Miss Alice Carpenter, Mrs. H. Durant Cheever, Mrs. Edward B. Close, Mrs. Frank Damrosch, Mrs. William R. Davenport, Mrs. Norman S. Dike, Mrs. Felix Doubleday, Mrs. William P. Earle, Jr., Mrs. Frederick Edey, Mrs. Daniel Guggenheim, Mrs. Charles Evans Hughes, Mrs. Frederick C. Hodgson, Mrs. Ernest L. Ibsen, Mrs. Percy Jackson, Mrs. Helen Hartley Jenkins, Mrs. Adolf Ladenburg, Mrs. Robert Lovett, Mrs. Dave Hennen Morris, Mrs. Henry Ollesheimer, Mrs. Frederick Paterson, Mrs. Oren Root, Mrs. Jacob Shiff, Mrs. Ernest Thompson Seton, Mrs. Vladimir Simkhovitch, Mrs. R. A. C. Smith, Mrs. Henry A. Stimson, Mrs. Willard D. Straight, Mrs. Albert Strauss, Mrs. Irene Swazey, Mrs. Samuel Untermyer, Mrs. William R. Willcox, Mrs. W. A. White, Mrs. Alexander M. Bing, Mrs. Stanwood Menken, Mrs. Harvey E. Fisk.

"This is an emergency call," said Mrs. Demorest. "We have perfected the organization of a representative woman's committee of the City of New York, which has been under way for some time. Under the skilled research of Mrs. Humiston, we believe that her work during the next six months will bring to light a body of evidence which will give definite information as to the variety of causes behind the disappearance of young girls in this city, and which will be of material value in formulating better policies for safeguarding young girls in New York City.

"In this belief we appeal, with the conviction of receiving an immediate response, to all the fathers, brothers, mothers and sisters in New York City. Thousands of girls in this city are not surrounded by the normal safeguards of home and family. For these thousands the general public has an especial responsibility."

Mrs. Humiston Rebuffed.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Aug. 15.—Mrs. Grace Humiston of New York, who is investigating the mysterious murder of Mrs. Brandon here as the representative of a Washington newspaper, had a controversy today with Detective Joseph Dougherty of the Baltimore force. As Dougherty was about to visit a colored woman who, it was thought, might be able to give evidence, Mrs. Humiston insisted on entering his automobile and making the visit with him. He refused to allow her to go, expressing doubt that the New York Police Department had assigned her to the case. Mrs. Humiston objected strenuously, but Dougherty remained firm.

German Benefit Society Disbands.

After an existence of sixty years, the German Brewers' and Coopers' Sick Benefit Society of Brooklyn recently resolved to disband, as the membership had fallen to twenty-two persons in good standing and, according to the report in the local German press of the meeting at which dissolution was decided upon, there was no hope of any appreciable increase in the near future. The property of the defunct organization, which amounted to about $4,400, was equally divided among the members. Among the founders of the society were the Brooklyn master brewers, Josef and Henry Liebmann.

CITY TO WELCOME BELGIANS

Mayor Calls for Enthusiastic Greeting for War Commission.

Mayor Mitchel issued a proclamation yesterday calling upon the citizens of the city to do all in their power to give an enthusiastic welcome to the Belgian War Commission to the United States when it arrives here. In the proclamation he says:

"On Tuesday, Aug. 21, the Belgian War Mission to the United States will become the guests of the City of New York. The presence of this mission will afford the people of New York an opportunity to express their admiration for the heroic Belgian nation and their sympathy for the wrongs which Belgium has suffered from the despotism with which our own country is now at war. Our pride in receiving this mission will be intensified by the thought that Belgium, bleeding but unconquered, represents in its devotion to justice, liberty, and law the high ideals to which the United States is now dedicating its own young manhood. We who are about to commit our fortunes to the struggle may well salute the nation which has pointed the way for all who love liberty and fear only dishonor.

"Wherefore I, John Purroy Mitchel, Mayor of the City of New York, do hereby direct that during the visit of these distinguished guests the flag of Belgium shall be displayed upon all public buildings in the city, and I call upon the inhabitants of the city appropriately to decorate and illuminate their buildings, and to display therefrom the flag of Belgium beside the flag of the United States."

51 Automobiles Now Cost More

Former $1200 to $1400 Cars Advanced to Super-Six Price—Hudson Cost, Too, Must Soon Go Up

Material costs have increased so much and so fast lately that all automobile prices must be advanced.

So far the Super-Six remains at the price it has sold at all this year. That is because present cars are built of materials contracted for last year before the biggest increases became effective.

Hudson Choice When Others Cost Less

Even when such cars sold at $200 to $300 less than the Super-Six its sales were greater than those of any two makes of their class. Everyone who knows will choose a Hudson as against such cars now that there is so little difference in their cost. No material change has been made in design or construction. They are practically the same as when sold for much less than present prices.

Hudson leadership is understood by all motorists. All know the effectiveness of the Super-Six motor. No other car has or can have a motor like it. That is why no other car has ever equaled its records for endurance.

Almost 40,000 owners now drive Super-Sixes. They have made records that to many are quite as impressive as those made on the speedway and in contests which have been extensively advertised.

The Super-Six is a lifetime car. Its great endurance is due to the smoothness of the Super-Six motor. It minimizes vibration. Vibration is the most destructive force in a motor. All Hudson tests show how, by minimizing vibration endurance is obtained.

The Super-Six is the most powerful automobile motor of its size known. By minimizing vibration most of the power is delivered and is not, as with other types, consumed within the motor.

More Proof for Hudson

If you have followed Super-Six history you have been interested in each succeeding test and know it has called for greater and greater endurance. At first we did not know the limits of Hudson endurance. Then we felt we could rest content if the car would hold up in the one hour and the 100-mile trial. That was greater than any other car had done. But, the Super-Six showed no wear at the end of those runs. We wanted to know just what its true limits were so new tests were made. Each succeeding trial was made harder in an effort to reveal the real limits of Super-Six endurance. No such test has yet been found.

Each Test More Trying

When there were no more revealing stock car tests to be made then special racing cars were built. The same principle which accounts for the endurance in stock cars was built into the racing cars. On the speedway in competition with the fastest, most carefully built automobiles in the world, the Super-Six specials made records unequaled by any racing cars in the history of racing.

In nine championship races twenty-two entries were made. All save one finished within the money; an accident forced that one car out.

Hudson specials won first in four events; second in six; third in two; fourth in three; fifth in three; sixth, seventh and eighth in one each.

Almost 40,000 Cars Prove It

But, if these records do not mean so much to you, then think of the almost 40,000 cars that individual owners are using. Recall what you must have heard in the way of praise for the Super-Six from those owners you know. The Super-Six is known in every community. You do not have to go far to find a Super-Six enthusiast. There is a Super-Six for every six miles of improved roadway in America.

Can there with such evidence as to Super-Six quality be any choice now when compared to cars that now sell in the Super-Six price class?

When there was a difference of $200 to $300 some did buy other cars because of the apparent saving. Now all must choose the Super-Six. Such preference will soon exhaust the supply of materials bought in last year's more favorable market. Then the price of the Super-Six must be advanced. Until that time, judged by the standards of other cars in performance and price, the Super-Six is the best automobile value on the market.

But, you must not delay if you are to get a Super-Six at its present advantageous price.
